3 MEN HOLD UP GIRLS' PARTY AT HOME OF JUDGE AT WEBSTER

Terrified Guests at Home of Judge S. D. Hodgdon Robbed of Jewelry and House Looted of Articles Valued at Several Hundred Dollars

MRS. HODGDON ACCOSTED AT DOOR

Daughter Calls Marshal, Who Arrives as Robbers Flee in Auto, Pursued by Screaming Girls—Doctor, Calling, Held Prisoner.

Three men held up Mrs. Samuel D. Hodgdon, wife of the Probate Judge of St. Louis County, at the front door of her home, 230 Sylvester avenue, Webster Groves, at 3:15 this afternoon, and entered and ransacked the house, after terrifying a group of girls, who were guests of the daughter of the family, with their revolvers.

The daughter, Miss Teddie Hodgdon, contrived to call Marshal Donnelly by telephone, and he reached the house as the robbers were leaving. Shots were fired, but it did not appear that anyone was wounded.

The three men appeared at the door while the girls' party was in progress, and when Mrs. Hodgdon answered the bell, one of them said, "We're from the Laclede Gas. What's wrong with your meter?"

The man held out a paper toward Mrs. Hodgdon, and at the same instant another man pointed a revolver at her, and said, "Hands up!"

As Mrs. Hodgdon backed away from the door, the men entered, and two of them took charge of the girls' party in the parlor, and took articles of jewelry belonging to the girls. The third started through the house, searching for valuables.

Doctor Called in Meantime.

A few minutes later, Dr. Marshall Bake, called to see a sick child who was in a bedroom upstairs. The robbers let him go unstairs without interference, but did not permit him to leave the house.

The men were in the house nearly a half hour, and some of the young women became hysterical. The rear doors were locked.

When Miss Hodgdon was unwatched for a moment, she removed the telephone receiver from the hook, and when she heard an answer from the operator, she called "Police." The operator notified Marshal Donnelly that the call had come from the Hodgdon home, and he arrived soon afterward.

Judge Hodgdon reached the house at about the same time, and saw the men riding away in an automobile, with the marshal shooting toward them, and with some of the girls from the house running into the street and screaming.

Judge Hodgdon and the Marshal followed the robbers in automobiles. Others took up the chase.

The value of the articles taken fro mthe Hodgdon home and from the guests was not estimated, in the confusion, but it was believed to amount to several hundred dollars.

TWO BRIBERY WITNESSES GONE, ONE TO ITALY

Disappearance Forces Continuance of Two Cases Against Former Deputy Sheriff Until May Term.

Prosecuting Attorney Mueller of St. Louis County today announced that the disappearance of important witnesses in two bribery cases against William A. Rosenthal, formerly a Deputy Sheriff, would necessitate a continuance of the cases tomorrow, when they are set for trial in Judge Wurdeman's court, until the May term.

Mueller said Deputy Sheriff Mayes had been unable to find Louis Fontana, who is alleged in the indictment to have paid Rosenthal a bribe of $350, or Phillip Rebello, who is alleged to have paid him a bribe of $300, to avoid prosecution on charges of violation of the prohibition enforcement law.

Mayes reported that at Fontana's home, on the Bellefontaine road, a man who said he was Fontana's brother told him that Fontana went to Italy four months ago, and that he did not know when he would return.

At the Rebello home at Bissell's Point, Mayes was told by an elderly woman that Rebello, his wife and daughter, for all of whom Mayes had subpenas, were gone, and that she did not know where they were.

The prosecutor said it would be unsafe for the State to go to trial without these witnesses, and that he would institute a search for them in the hope of finding them before the May term of court.

PREACHER AND HIS WIFE BOTH ADMIT HAVING TWO MATES

The Rev. John H. Hemmer Escapes Prosecution on Bigamy Charge on Wife's Admission.

EACH IN FOURTH MARRIAGE VENTURE

He Declares Mrs. Hemmer Became Wife After Each Told of Third Mate's Disappearance.

The Rev. John Henry Hemmer, 55 years old, preacher in the Gospel of Truth Mission, 1110 South Fourth street, arrested last night on the charge of disturbing the peace of his fourth wife, Alice, escaped prosecution for bigamy today when Mrs Hemmer, who sought a warrant, had to admit that she did not know whether she was free from her third husband.

As for Hemmer, he admitted that the third Mrs. Hemmer had a prior claim, but he did not see that Mrs Hemmer No. 4 had anything on him. They felt the same way about it at the Circuit Attorney's office and no warrant was issued.

The Hemmers are all-square in the matter of helpmeets. Hemmer has had four, counting Alice, and Alice has had four, counting the Rev. John Henry.

Four Matrimonial Ventures.

Hemmer said his marital history began when he married Anna Brown at Barnesville, Ky., in 1885, when he was only 18 years old. She died four years later and he stayed single until 1912, when he married Fannie Hicks at White Hall, Ill. She died in 1918, and in March, 1921, he married Katherine Blanche Martin in St. Louis. They were living at 1524 Chouteau avenue, July 1, 1921, and he was proving himself a good provider and treating her as nice as could be, when she up and left him.

In November he opened a tent mission at 1200 South Broadway and among those who came to hear him preach "The Gospel of Truth" was Mrs. Alice Davis, 52 years old, of 1228 South Broadway. He went to board with her, and when they got better acquainted she told him that her husband, Tom, left her several years ago and she did not know whether he was alive. Hemmer told her she didn't have any the best of him in that, because his wife had left him and he didn't know what had become of her.

Preacher at Missions.

They went to Belleville March 5, 1922, and were married by a Methodist preacher.

Mrs. Hemmer entered the ring with a marriage to Joshua Bleyus, whom she divorced in 1914, after which she married Jim Empfield. Jim tried to divorce her in 1916 but failed, whereupon, she said, she "signed him away" in the office of a lawyer who told her that she was free. Accordingly, when she met Thomas Franklin Davis of Flat River, she married him, she said, on a visit to a house on Laclede avenue, where they obtained a license, being married in an adjoining room. Tom stayed two months and then decamped, opening the way for the advent of the Rev. John Henry.

Warrant Refused.

At the end of this recital, Assistant Circuit Attorney Ossing was quite sure Alice would not make a good complainant on a bigamy warrant and said he would not issue it.

"Where am I at, what am I to do, that's what I want to know?" queried Alice.

"Just sit still and don't rock the boat," Ossing replied.

Shortly afterward the Rev. John Henry was released from custody. He said that he was going away. That's where all the trouble began, according to Alice. He has wanted to go away and be a "traveling missionary." She did not want to go, so she had him arrested after a vigorous debate to determine her status.

Hemmer says he was ordained in the Baptist church 15 years ago at De Soto, Mo. For the past 10 years he has been a familiar figure around the downtown missions. He says he was formerly a captain of the Salvation Army.

CHAUFFEUR IS FATALLY HURT BY CAR TRAILER

Witness Says Victim Started to Cross Tracks After One Car Had Passed Him.

Michael Goetz, 43, a chauffeur, of 921 Clarendon avenue, died at St. Luke's Hospital at 8:45 a. m. today of injuries suffered 15 minutes earlier, when run over by the trailer of a Delmar-Olive street car in front of 5142 Delmar boulevard. His skull was fractured and his right leg crushed. He was taken to the hospital in an automobile truck.

None of the three members of the car crew saw the accident. The driver of an automobile truck that was on the south side of Delmar boulevard told policemen that Goetz had stepped between the car tracks in the right-of-way in the center of the street to let the car pass, and started to cross the north track after the street car had gone by, evidently not realizing that a trailer was attached to it. The front end of the trailer ran over him.

The three carmen were taken to the Page Boulevard Police Station, but were released when it became apparent they had not seen the accident.

REFUNDING BODY COMPLETED

Debt Commission Will Convert Allied Obligations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Allied Debt Refunding Commission created by Congress and intrusted with conversion into long-time securities the debts of the allied nations was formally completed today through confirmation by the Senate of the nominations of Senator Smoot of Utah and Representative Burton of Ohio, Republicans, as members of the commission.

Confirmation followed more than five hours of discussion in executive session. The principal argument against confirmation was said to have been made by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, who originally raised the ineligibility point. The vote on confirmation was 47 to 25. Two Democrats, Broussard of Louisiana and Kendrick of Wyoming, voted for confirmation, while three Republicans, Borah of Idaho, al. Follette of Wisconsin and Norris of Nebraska, voted against it. The roll call was made public by order of the Senate.

TARIFF BILL LAID BEFORE SENATE AFTER CHANGES

Measure Was Rewritten by Senate Finance Committee With Provisions Recommended by Harding.

OPINIONS OF EFFECT ON LIVING COSTS VARY

Rates in Agricultural Schedule Are Generally at About Level Sought by Republican Farm Tariff Bloc.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The administration tariff bill, as rewritten by Senate Finance Committee Republicans on the basis of foreign valuation, with provisions for flexible rates and proclaimed American valuation as recommended by President Harding, was presented today to the Senate. It was announced that it would be taken up April 21. A long fight is in prospect, with some estimates that it might continue for three months.

Taken as a whole, the bill, according to estimates of committee experts, averages slightly higher than the Payne-Aldrich law, the last Republican protective tariff act. As compared with the House measure, the specific rates generally are higher, but the ad valorem rates are generally lower, as such rates in the House bill were based on American valuation.

Treasury experts have estimated roughly that the bill will raise from $200,000,000 to $350,000,000 of revenue annually, but they have not yet had time to complete accurate calculations. The House measure was estimated to raise $300,000,000, while the Underwood law yielded between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000.

Effect on Living Expenses.

There is a division of opinion among the framers as to the probable effect the measure would have on the cost of living. In the official report accompanying the bill, it is stated that the committee majority had "endeavored to recommend rates that will afford protection to American industry and permit them to pay wages sufficient to enable our workmen to maintain an American standard of living."

With regard to the agricultural schedule, one of the longest of the bill, the report said: "The committee adopted the policy of giving to agriculture the measure of protection that has been accorded to other industries, with due consideration to the needs of all sections and of all industries."

The rates in this schedule generally average higher than those in the House bill, and include a large number of items which were on the free list on the Underwood bill, but which were placed on the dutiable list in the emergency tariff act now in force.

On Level Sought by Tariff Farm Bloc.

As a general rule, the rates written into the agricultural schedule are at about the level demanded by the Senate Republican farm tariff bloc. Committee experts stated, however, that with few exceptions, the rates in the agricultural schedule would not exceed 25 per cent. This schedule embraces meats, eggs, vegetables generally, fruit and practically all other products of the farm. The duty on wheat was fixed at 35 cents a bushel, the same as under the emergency act, but 5 cents above the figure fixed in the House bill. Under the Democratic tariff act wheat was free.

The basic wool rate of 33 cents a pound on the scoured percentage of the wool written into the bill also was that asked for by the Republican farm-tariff bloc. This rate is 8 cents higher than that in the House bill, and is about on a level with that in schedule K of the Payne-Aldrich act. Because of the different classifications used, it is difficult to compare the new wool schedule with schedule K, but Senator Smoot of Utah, who drafted the new schedule, is authority for the statement that some of the rates are as high as those in the Payne-Aldrich measure, while others are somewhat lower.

Because of the increase in the basic wool rate, the duties on manufactures proposed are higher than those in the Fordney bill. Under the Underwood law wool was free.

Hides Removed From Free List.

Cattle hides were taken from the free list for the first time in many years, and a duty of 2 cents on green and 4 cents on dry hides was proposed. These are about the rates asked for by the agricultural tariff bloc. The majority report said these duties were "necessary to equalize

HUGHES OPPOSES NAVAL REDUCTION TO 67,000 MEN

Tells Congressman Rogers Cut Would Put Force Below 5-5-3 Ratio Agreed On by Arms Conference.

BRITAIN AND JAPAN WOULD OUTRANK U. S.

Large Majority of Missouri Delegation Favor Move to Increase Figure to Minimum of 87,000 Men.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Reduction of navy personnel to 67,000 enlisted men as provided in the naval appropriation bill now being considered by the House would reduce the American navy below the 5-5-3 ratio established by the arms conference and "would be most injurious to the interests of the United States," Secretary Hughes today wrote Representative Rogers, Republican, of Massachusetts.

The Secretary of State in his letter, written in response to a request of the Massachusetts Representative for his opinion as to the proposed reduction, said he had consulted with the naval experts who advised the American Arms Conference delegation and had been "advised that the proposed number of enlisted men is far below the number required to maintain our navy upon the basis contemplated by the treaty."

Alteration of the ratio fixed by the treaty, Hughes continued, "would be a serious matter for the United States, both impairing its prestige and putting its security in jeopardy."

Discussion of the naval bill in the House today presented the unusual feature of an address made by Representative Mansfield, Democrat, of Texas, from a wheel chair. Mansfield, who has been ill for nearly a year, declared he would support the bill with its provision for a navy of 65,000 enlisted men, plus 2000 apprentices.

Cut Would Leave U. S. Outranked on Sea by Britain and Japan.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—From unexpected quarters, support is coming to the congressional group bent on thwarting the efforts of the majority of the House Appropriations Committee to slash the navy personnel to 67,000 enlisted men—a cut which, according to naval experts, would leave America outranked in sea power both by Great Britain and Japan.

Proponents of the increase in the committee's figures to 87,000, which President Harding has indicated is the absolute minimum needed to maintain the 5-5-3 ratio, hoped for only three to four votes out of the Missouri delegation of 16 members. A canvass of the delegation, however, has developed the fact that a large majority will be found voting for the increase against the "little navy" men.

Representative McPherson, who is a member of the Naval Affairs Committee and one of the strongest Missouri advocates of the "so-called treaty navy," said he believed that the delegation would cast only one or two votes against the increase. McPherson declared that the committee was attempting to give the country a "Chinese navy."

Representative Hawes of St. Louis, who is out of town, gave instructions before he left that if a vote were taken in his absence he should be paired in favor of an increase. Representative Dyer of St. Louis said he was inclined to follow the committee's recommendations.

"I expected to do all I can to increase the personnel above 67,000," said Representative Newton of St. Louis.

Representatives Rhodes, Faust, Patterson, Roach, Hukriede and Atkinson indicated they favored an increase. Representative Ellis said he was enthusiastically for an increase.

Flat-footed indorsement of the committee proposals was given by Representative Rucker, Democrat. "The bill gives the navy all the men it needs," he said.

CHITCHERIN'S PROTEST AGAINST JAPANESE ON COMMITTEE OVERRULED

Objection Based on Troops in Siberia; Opposition Also to Rumanians; Chairman Facta Decides All Nations Represented Have Right to Voice.

CHITCHERIN'S VIEW ON RECONSTRUCTION

"It Can Come Only With Disarmament; Imperialistic Nations Must Give Up Their Big Armies," He Declares.

By the Associated Press.

GENOA, April 11.—At this afternoon's meeting of the principal committee at the economic conference, which is to consider Russian affairs, Minister Chitcherin of Russia protested against the presence of the Rumanian and Japanese delegates, because Rumania was occupying Bessarabia and Japan was occupying portions of Siberia. Premier Facta of Italy, who was presiding over the committee, declined to consider the Russian protest, giving as his reason that all the countries invited to the conference had a right to be represented on its committees.

It had been decided to give representation on the committee to the smaller Powers and it was announced on their behalf they had selected Poland, Rumania, Switzerland and Sweden to represent them.

M. Chitcherin, on hearing Rumania mentioned, is quoted in one version of the incident as asking: "Why Rumania, who is holding the Russian province of Bessarabia?" He also protested against the presence of Japan.

Regarding this last protest, Viscount Ishii, representing Japan, is quoted as remarking: "Japan is here and will stay here, whether M. Chitcherin likes it or not."

Japanese Surprised.

Viscount Ishii, who declared he was greatly surprised by the Russian protest, added that Japan was occupying Siberian territory at the request of the allies against her own will.

As to Rumania, Premier Bratiano declared she had no special desire to negotiate with the Russians, but was in the conference with a spirit of moderation in an effort to better the situation in Europe. Rumania, said the Premier, did not admit the justice of the Russian protest, as Bessarabia was inhabited by Rumanians, who had voted their annexation to the mother country.

Admission of Russian and German representatives to the principal committee of the conference was strongly opposed today by both French and Belgian representatives. Premier Lloyd George, together with Premier Facta and Foreign Minister Schanzer of Italy, intervened, however, and their conciliatory attitude finally resulted in the admittance of both the Russians and the Germans.

Opposition From France.

The opposition to the presence of the delegates from the two countries was an outgrowth of the Franco-Russian incident at the opening session of the conference. M. Barthou, for France, but more especially M. Theunys, for Belgium, placed themselves in opposition to the German and Russian representatives being admitted to the principal committee, while the representatives of the smaller countries who fought with the allies were excluded.

Premiers Facta and Lloyd George and Signor Schanzer maintained it would be impossible not to permit the Russians and the Germans to be represented on the committee, which was to deal chiefly with the problems affecting Germany and Russia.

They argued that the exclusion of these delegates would stultify the objects of the committee, because all were in agreement that the cooperation of Russia and Germany was indispensable to the reconstruction of Europe.

Belgium's Argument.

Premier Theunys in his argument declared the Germans were unworthy of taking part in the work of a committee of such importance in association with the representatives of honorable countries.

The discussion became so heated that Lloyd George declared emphatically that if such an intransigi-

Russians in Top Hats and Morning Coats Make Graceful Debut at Genoa

(Copyright, 1922.)

GENOA, April 11.

RUSSIA'S debut, diplomatically, at the economic conference was a pictorial success. In morning coat and top hat, literally and figuratively, the soviet delegation made a suave, conciliatory impression in the atmosphere of diplomatic graces that opened the conference yesterday morning with a fanfare of trumpets. The goal is bourgeois recognition, so Russia has bedecked herself in bourgeois fashion. It is a festive occasion and Russia has responded.

Myriads of gaily uniformed troops in red, blue and green crowd the streets, which are lined with blazingly garbed cavalrymen. The Palace of St. George is colorful with officers in full dress. All the pomp and splendor Italy could command was displayed for the opening.

Amid all this ornamentation is George Chitcherin, the voice of Lenine, big, commanding, portly, quizzical, a typical European banker in appearance; Maxim Litvinoff, placid, courtly, immaculate; Joffe, benevolent, long-bearded, extremely dignified.

Around the Russian table are seated the bourgeois rulers of Europe for whom the scene has little novelty. An Russia looks well—little more was to be expected at the public preliminary.

REPARATION BODY EXPECTED TO STAND BY ITS DEMANDS

View in Paris That German Rejection of Moratorium Program Will Not Be Met With Alterations.

U. S. PARTICIPATION AS VIEWED IN PARIS

Official American Representation on Commission, Without Recognition of Treaty Considered Illogical

By LINCOLN EYRE.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)
Post-Dispatch Bureau,
47 Avenue de l'Opera.

PARIS, April 11.—Germany's formal rejection of the Reparation Commission's "moratorium" program reached Paris yesterday afternoon, but has not been considered officially by the commission.

The Berlin Cabinet bases its refusal on what it deems the unfeasible character of the proposals. These include 60,000,000,000 marks in additional taxation and allied supervision of the Reich's budgetary exercises.

Should the German position be maintained, France will inevitably take coercive measures of a military nature. This was said by a personage most highly competent to reflect the view of the French Government.

Right of Independent Action.

The informant declared that under the Versailles treaty any allied Power has the right of acting independently to protect its interests when appealed to by the Reparation Commission. The latter body is empowered to reduce or alter the demands. However, French official circles believe that the commission will stand by its guns in this case.

Thus the German Government will be confronted with the choice of changing its mind and accepting the plan proposed March 21 or reverting to the scale of payments of May 5, 1921. In the latter event the Reich would have to pay 2,000,000,000 gold marks this year in cash and a sum equivalent to 26 per cent of her exports. This, everybody agrees, she could not do.

The inevitable consequence would be notification of the allies that Germany had defaulted and subsequent institution of sanctions. To the French mind the only effective sanction is further advance into German territory, as vehemently demanded by Poincare before he became Premier.

Objection to U. S. Member.

It is by no means certain that all allied governments will agree to the presence on the reparation commission of an official representative of the United States. There is excellent reason to believe that Premier Poincare, for one, would oppose formal American participation in the activities of a body operating under the treaty of Versailles, to which America is not a party.

The French viewpoint is that, since the reparation commission is charged with enforcing certain provisions of that treaty, it would be highly illogical to have represented officially on the commission, with full voting powers, a nation which declines to recognize the treaty itself. That some other Entente Powers will share this opposition is regarded here as quite probable.

Poincare is known to think highly of the present unofficial American delegate, Roland W. Boyden, and has voiced great satisfaction at his good work, notably in matters of arbitration. It is common knowledge, however, that as things stand now Britain and Italy almost always are lined up in the commission against France and Belgium. This opposition occasions a deadlock out of which grow compromises.

Were the United States to cast a vote, however, it would be on the Anglo-Italian side nine times out of 10, the French say, and thus, since the commission functions by majority rule, France would be constantly outvoted.

Russians Protest Against Japanese on Committee

ent spirit was going to prevail, it might be as well immediately to break up the conference, the principal object of which was to readmit Russia and Germany to the European family.

The work of conciliation undertaken by Premier Facta and Signor Schanzer was finally successful in bridging the crisis and securing the admission of the Russian and German representatives.

The discussion over the membership of the committee arose at the first meeting of that body this forenoon. As originally planned it comprised British, French, Italian, Belgian, Japanese, German and Russian delegates. In addition to these, representatives of Poland, Rumania, Switzerland and Sweden were admitted this afternoon after the morning's argument in which Premier Theunys of Belgium urged the desirability of having the smaller countries represented.

Chitcherin, head of the Russian delegation, issued a statement today declaring it useless to discuss the reconstruction of Europe without also discussing disarmament.

Amelioration of present conditions is impossible while the "imperialistic countries" continue vast expenditures for the maintenance of large armies, he said.

The report on Russia drawn up by the British experts was referred late this afternoon to the subcommittee on Russian affairs, which then adjourned until Thursday in order to have time to examine the contents of the report.

Extraordinary police precautions were taken at the palace, and forces of military and carabiniere lined the main street leading to the meeting place. A large crowd assembled along Via Balbi to witness the arrival of the delegates.

Little Entente Meeting.

It has been announced that the representatives of the states composing the little Entente are to hold a further meeting to decide upon their precise attitude toward the problems before the conference.

The delegates today made every preparation to settle down to the serious technical work of the congress, accepting, for the moment at least, the idea expressed yesterday by Lloyd George and Premier Facta that the agenda as arranged at Cannes provided a sufficient cargo for the conference ship, with the danger of wrecking it if new and controversial problems were added.

Russian-French Clash.

The clash between the Russians and French at the opening session yesterday was still the subject of excited comment as the delegates gathered today. Allied diplomats believe that only the prompt intervention of Prime Minister Lloyd George of Great Britain and the firm attitude of the chairman averted a break which would have seriously affected the coming deliberations.

Announcement by Chitcherin that Russia was prepared to support any proposals that would avert war or lighten the burden of armament was taken up as a fling at the French military policy by Louis Barthou, who heatedly declared that France would refuse to discuss disarmament at Genoa.

While Lloyd George appealed to the delegates to adhere to the agenda as adopted by the Supreme Council at Cannes, he made the flat declaration that "unless the Genoa conference leads to disarmament it will be a failure."

"But before you get to disarmament," he declared, "you must have a durable peace. With the present agenda we have all the cargo the ship can carry."

M. Chitcherin made another attempt to gain the floor, but was refused the privilege by the chairman, who insisted the discussion had gone far enough and ruled that the agenda must be followed.

After quiet was restored, appointment was announced of the commissions on verification of credentials, the Russian question, finance, economic questions and transport.

Speeches of Several Delegates.

Speeches had been made yesterday by the presiding officer, Premier Facta of Italy; M. Barthou, representing France; Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain, Dr. Wirth of Germany, and spokesmen of Japan and Belgium, all of a conciliatory nature, and voicing adherence to the Cannes resolutions, on which the present gathering is based.

Chitcherin, the Russian, in speaking for his delegation, announced their adherence to the resolutions and then declared that Russia was ready to support any proposals that would avoid war or lighten the burden of armament.

M. Barthou immediately protested and declared with some heat that France would absolutely refuse to discuss the question of disarmament at this conference.

Lloyd George hastened to intervene, and in his contention that disarmament could not be taken up certainly not before a peace basis had been reached at Genoa, he was supported by Signor Facta.

Eventually, the discussion of this point ceased, after M. Chitcherin said the Russian delegation would bow to the collective will of the conference. M. Chitcherin said that Russia thought France would be ready to discuss this question because M. Briand, the former French Premier, had said at the Washington conference that Russia's armaments had made disarmament impossible.

Disarmament Not on Agenda.

The clash between the Russian and French delegates disclosed the fact that disarmament is not on the agenda and that therefore this matter is not to be taken up for consideration.

Lloyd George said in his speech that he believed that if the conference was successful in its achievements the United States "would not merely come in, but come in gladly."

"If you superadd to our proposals," declared Lloyd George, addressing Chitcherin, "you will wreck the conference."

Turning to the delegates, the British Prime Minister exclaimed: "If M. Chitcherin removes the load-line of our conference ship he will sink it, and I would point out that he might be among the drowned. We may have a rough time ahead, but we don't want to be overloaded."

The matters on the agenda, continued Lloyd George, were enormously important, and it would be criminal to destroy the hope of millions by endeavoring to solve more problems than could possibly be managed.

"Let M. Chitcherin finish this voyage," he advised, "and go home with all he can carry; then we will welcome him on another voyage when we know what sort of a passenger he is."

Barthou Pleased.

Louis Barthou, head of the French delegation, told representatives of the Exchange Telegraph that he was particularly pleased at the way in which Lloyd George had smoothed over the incident between himself and Chitcherin. Lloyd George, he said, had upheld views which are mutual.

ly higher than those in the Underwood law, while some are above those in the Payne-Aldrich act and others somewhat lower.

The duties proposed in the silk schedule are about at the level of those in the Payne-Aldrich law. They average slightly below the Fordney bill rates, and considerably higher than those in the Underwood act.

In the case of metals, the committee agreed on rates averaging along with the Payne-Aldrich, but higher than in the Underwood bill. The Payne-Aldrich duty of 7-40 of a cent per pound on steel rails was agreed upon.

Under the Underwood law such rails were free. The 25 per cent rate on automobiles, automobile bodies and parts, and motor cycles, compares with the 45 per cent in the Payne-Aldrich law, and the 25 per cent to 45 per cent rate in the Underwood act.

Aside from hides and shoes, and a large number of agricultural products, important articles taken from the free list include sewing machines and cash registers, mechanical wood pulp, coacoanut oil, soya bean oil, cottonseed oil, crude magnesite, lawn mowers, scythes and sickles.

Tin in bars, blocks and pigs was restored to the free list from the Fordney bill, as were shingles, manganese ore and bananas. Petroleum, crude and fuel, or refined. Fuel oil also was left on the free list. Other important items on the free list include agricultural implements, linotype and all type setting machines, typewriters, shoe machinery, antitoxins, vaccines, serums, Bibles, binding twine, books printed and bound more than 20 years, gold or silver bullion, unmanufactured chalk, coal, coke, cocoa and cocoa beans, coffee, coins of gold, silver or other metals, copper ore, grasses and fibers, guano, gums and resins, gunpowder, ice, crude India rubber and guttapercha, iron ore, jet, asphalt, manganese oxide and ore, newspapers and periodicals, oil cake and oil cake meal, ores of gold, silver, nickel, parchment and vellum, mother of pearl and shells in natural state, crude phosphates, platinum in ingots, bars or plates, quinine sulphate, rug pulp, sea herring and tuna fish, shrimp, lobster and other shell fish, raw silk, silk cocoons and silk waste, sulphur, tar and pitch of wood, tea, turpentine, rosin, wax, board, timber, round, unmanufactured, hewen, sided and squared otherwise than by sawing; sawed boards, planks, deals and other lumber not specifically provided for.

the difference in competitive conditions," and added that the imposition of a duty on hides made it necessary to provide compensatory duties on leather made from battle hides, and the various leather manufacturers, such as shoes and harness. The rates on shoes were fixed at from 6 cents a pair to 12 cents a pair, and 5 per cent ad valorem.

Under a last-minute change made in the dye provision, the President could continue the present embargo with a licensing system for one year beyond the period of one year from the date of the signing of the measure, as originally provided. Rates on dyes were fixed at 7 cents a pound and 60 per cent ad valorem on unfinished components; and 7 cents a pound and 60 per cent on finished dyes.

Duty Proposed on Long Staple Cotton.

For the first time it is proposed that long staple cotton be placed on the dutiable list with the rate at 7 cents a pound, as compared with the 15 cents asked for by the agricultural-tariff bloc. Short staple cotton is retained on the free list. The rates on cotton manufactures are generally

FAILURE OF LEAHY TO QUALIFY WORRIES MANY JOBSEEKERS

About 60 Republican Workers Had Expected to Obtain Positions in Internal Revenue Office.

GOLDSTEIN TO SEE WHAT CAN BE DONE

Circuit Clerk Departs for Washington to Take Matter Up With Senator Spencer and Leahy.

Some 60 loyal Republican jobseekers have for three months been kept out of the jobs they had been led to believe were staked out for them to occupy as soon as John S. Leahy qualified for the position of Collector of Internal Revenue in St. Louis. Leahy, although appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate in January, has not seen fit to qualify, and recent indications have been that he had no intention of qualifying.

Quite naturally the 60 jobseekers have become restless, and consequently Circuit Clerk Nat Goldstein departed at noon today for Washington, where he will meet Senator Spencer and Leahy, and, it is expected, bring about some sort of an agreement by which Leahy will qualify immediately or some other Republican will be appointed Collector and the jobs will be distributed without more delay.

Doesn't Want Jobs to Get Away.

Goldstein's mission more particularly is to try to keep the jobs from getting away from the St. Louis organization and going to the country. With a considerable show of magnanimity, the organization politicians took a position soon after the election in 1920 that they would expect only one Federal job for St. Louis. They didn't care anything about the office of District Attorney, the office of United States Marshal, Surveyor of the Port, or any of the other Federal plums to be distributed, except the Collectorship. Give that to St. Louis, they said, and St. Louis organization Republicans would be satisfied.

They did not dwell upon the fact that there were 60 jobs in the Revenue Collector's office which were not under civil service and which would be available as soon as a Republican succeeded George H. Moore, Democrat, as Collector, while four or five appointments were the most that could be expected from any of the others.

The distribution of 60 jobs was a matter requiring some consideration, and the organization was not ready to announce its selection for head of the office when Moore suddenly sent his resignation to the President in December, announcing he would retire Jan. 1. This called for immediate action by Senator Spencer to head off the hungry country horde of Republicans who had been held away from the Federal pie counter for eight years. Without definite assurance that Leahy would immediately qualify for the job, Senator Spencer obtained his appointment by the President in February and within 24 hours had obtained confirmation.

Many Things to Attend to.

Leahy had several things to attend to, he told the department in Washington, before he could qualify. He was attorney in a big insurance case which would take three weeks to try. He was told to go ahead and try it. Then he had to go to Europe, and was told to go ahead. Then he had to close up details of his law business, and was told that would be all right, too. He has been doing those various things, which were much more important to him than to the host of Republicans who were waiting to connect with the Federal payroll, and hence the disturbance in Republican job-seeking circles.

Recently, according to reports which have reached St. Louis, Senator Spencer has been deluged with inquiries from the faithful as to when they could expect action from Leahy. Spencer sent inquiries to St. Louis along the same line, intimating strongly that something would have to be done.

After Leahy's appointment Senator Spencer told Republicans that if Leahy did not take the place, it probably would go to the country. This threatened to disrupt all the plans, and called for the services of an experienced distributor of patronage.

LLOYD GEORGE AND BARTHOU MAKE PLEAS FOR HARMONY IN GENOA ECONOMIC ASSEMBLY

English Premier Tells Delegates That the Conditions Inviting Nations to Conference Apply to All Alike.

By the Associated Press.

GENOA, April 11.—Premier Lloyd George in his speech before the economic conference yesterday, said:

"This is the greatest gathering of European nations which has ever assembled on this Continent, and having regard for the magnitude of the assembly, the character of its representation and the importance of the topics we are here to discuss, the results of the conference will be far-reaching in their effects, either for better or for worse, upon the destiny not merely of Europe, but the whole world.

"We meet on equal terms, provided we accept equal conditions. We are not here as allied and enemy states; we are not here as belligerents or neutrals; we have not come together as monarchists or republicans or sovietists. We are assembled as the representatives of all the nations the peoples of Europe to seek out in common the best methods for restoring the shattered prosperity of this Continent. We may each build up in his own land, each in his own way, a better condition of things for the people than the world has yet enjoyed. But if we meet on terms of equality it must be because we accept equal conditions.

Premier Quotes the Conditions.

"These conditions inviting the Powers were laid down at Cannes. They apply to all alike; they are the conditions which heretofore have been accepted by all civilized communities as the basis of international good faith. * * *

"The first is, when a country enters into contractural obligations with another country or its nationals, for value received, that contract cannot be repudiated whenever the country changes its government without returning value. The second is that no country can wage war on the institutions of another. The third is that one nation shall not engage in aggressive operations against the territory of another. The fourth is that the nations of one country shall be entitled to impartial justice in the courts of another. * * *

"Any nation which rejected these elemental relations of civilized intercourse could not be expected to be received into the comity of nations.

"The world will follow our deliberations with alternate hopes and fears. If we fail, there will be a sense of despair which will sweep over the whole world; if we succeed, a ray of confidence will illuminate the gloom which is resting on the spirit of mankind."

Brings Support of France.

Louis Barthou, representing France, said in the course of his address:

"I bring to this conference, from which may result a new orientation for the world, the considered views and loyal support of France.

"When Mr. Lloyd George, at the Cannes conference, took his noble initiative, France gave her immediate adhesion, and if she did make a request for adjournment—an adjournment which has been usefully employed—she only did so with the desire to attain, thanks to more complete preparation, results in which she placed her confidence and her hope.

"The world is tired of vain words and solemn declamations, which declamations are fruitless. The world is suffering from ill health and lack of security and stability. May methodical and efficacious action bring to it the equilibrium it requires.

"We have come here to act. We are not onlookers; we are collaborators, ready to take our part in the common labors and responsibilities. We are not, indeed, blind to the difficulties and obstacles of our task, nor to the amount of time it must take. But pessimists are impotent to stop faith; and active faith can alone save the world.

More Than Wave of Wand Needed.

"Europe is strewn with ruins; it would be madness to believe that an enchanted castle could rise from those ruins at one wave of a magic wand, but it would be madness more disastrous, more monstrous, to sit by the road with folded hands and do nothing because there was too much to do. * * *

"It is possible that the complexity of the questions precludes simplicity of formula, and the sickness of Europe will not be cured by a panacea. Europe—why not the whole world—is a commercial unity, all the members of which have been affected by the war, even those which did not perish thereby, and it behooves each nation, whatever be the political form of its government, and provided it respects common rights, without which there can be no civilization, to aid in the reconstruction and success of all."

Russia Says She's at Conference as an Equal.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

GENOA, April 11.—In his brief address to the conference yesterday, M. Chitcherin, the soviet Foreign Minister, presented Russia's aims for the conference—economic reconstruction, universal disarmament and the establishment of a series of international conferences to discuss Europe's problems. He declared with emphasis that Russia was conciliatory, but was present at Genoa as an equal. Chitcherin spoke first in Russian and then rapidly translated his words into excellent English. The French tried to have matters arranged so only allied delegates would speak. The British stood out for speeches by M. Chitcherin and Chancellor Wirth of Germany, and Italy backed them.

The British Premier's speech was considerably toned down from that he originally planned. He referred to disarmament only by the one reference to "bowling dogs." The speech was a compromise between the screamer he desired to make and the banal phrases asked of him by Italy and the smaller Central European states, which are eager to launch the conference smoothly and get to work in committee. The Germans and Russians agreed to this program.

The Germans know any reference to reparations by themselves is impossible. However, they say, they are counting on the neutral states to force the question in commission over the discussion of stabilization of exchange.

Chancellor Wirth's words were deliberately noncommittal as their purpose was merely to show that Germany had taken a place of equality at the table. Dr. Wirth began by saying he could not fail to accept the invitation to Genoa, but at the same time he had hesitated to leave Germany, where signs of unrest are unmistakable. When Dr. Wirth had concluded, Premier Lloyd George applauded, but it was noticeable that M. Barthou did not.

The lineup of the various groups might roughly be described as follows: British, Japanese and Italians standing together; French, Belgians and Poles standing together; Germany and Russia standing together and the "little entente"—Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia and Rumania—occupying a middle course.

CHARGES FAVORITISM IN WAR OFFICE SALES

Congressman Johnson Also Declares Men, Who Should Be in Prison, Are Shielded.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Charges that the War Department has sold property and is today selling property at ridiculously and criminally low prices to favored customers, "concealing from Congress and deliberately misrepresenting the facts," were made in the House today by Representative Johnson, Republican, of South Dakota.

"As proof of the fact that the War Department is misrepresenting the facts to Congress," Johnson charged that a report by Secretary Weeks relative to sale of property, transmitted to the House last December, was "the most fraudulent, misleading and criminally deceitful document that was ever submitted to the American Congress."

Johnson declared the evidence he had obtained showed that the War Department "is trying to control the Department of Justice by putting men who ought to be in the penitentiary on the Department of Justice payroll and asking Congress to appropriate for it."

MISSISSIPPI HERE DUE AT CREST OF 33.5 FEET FRIDAY

Top Stage if 3.5 Feet Above Flood Level Is Predicted by Weather Bureau; Reading Today 31.2 Feet.

DAMAGE NEAR HERE MOSTLY TO WHEAT

The Missouri Inundates 2700 Acres at Missouri Point, in St. Charles County; Water Still Going Up.

The Mississippi River at St. Louis, which at 7 a. m. today was at a stage of 31.2 feet, or 1.2 feet above flood stage, will reach a crest of 33.5 feet Friday, according to a prediction made by the Weather Bureau today. The rise in the 24 hours beginning at 7a. m. today will be about 1.6 feet, it is predicted.

The Weather Bureau predicted a stage of about 31 feet at Alton by Friday, or 4 feet higher than the stage this morning. The stage at Chester Saturday will be about 33 feet.

The Meramec River at Valley Park will reach a stage of 18 feet, or 4 feet above flood stage, it was predicted. It was at 14.3 feet this morning. The Missouri will reach 31 feet at St. Charles, 25.5 at Hermann and 23.5 at Boonville. The Missouri at St. Charles today was 29.2, a rise of .5 of a foot since last evening.

The principal loss caused by the high water thus far appears to have been in the wheat-growing district of Missouri Point, in St. Charles County, between the Missouri and Mississippi rivers. Various estimates of the wheat acreage under water are made. At St. Charles today it was reported that 2700 acres were under water, and that the further expected rise would inundate about 1000 acres more. In Alton, however, the estimates were much higher, and it was reported that, after the breaking of the Schulenberg and Boals levees, in the neighborhood of West Alton, Mo., and Machens, 10,000 acres, of which about 5000 were in wheat, were under water. At West Alton the water was at the same stage as in 1909, the time of the last very high water. Wise levee, considered the best of the levees of the region, was holding this morning.

Submerged Wheat Lost.

The wheat which has been submerged for the longest time is counted a loss by its owners. That which escapes with a day or two under the water may be saved, the farmers say.

Some of the Missouri Point dwellers whose homes are on high plots of ground, but are surrounded by water, are going to and from their homes in rowboats.

The Bluff Line train service, north of Alton, Ill., was cut off by flooding of the tracks at Hop Hollow, two miles from Alton. It was planned to have trains meet, as nearly as possible, at that point, and make the connection by a short walk for the passengers.

East End place, below Alton, was under water, and about 50 families were reported as having to leave their homes. The Red Cross has been asked for help.

First Train Service.

The Nutwood Levee, which protects rich farm land in Jersey County, Ill., from the Illinois River, was holding this morning, according to reports which reached Jerseyville by telephone. There has been considerable overflowing of the farm land by backed-up creeks.

The first through train service on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas at St. Charles since last Friday was last evening. Washouts and landslides along the Missouri at points between St. Charles and Sedalia cut off traffic for three days.

The Missouri River at Jefferson City this morning was nearly three feet above flood stage, and was crawling over the lower part of the bottom land opposite Jefferson City, which contains some of the richest farms in Callaway County.

Weather Bureau's Forecast.

The Weather Bureau's prediction for the Mississippi, Missouri, Illinois and tributary rivers, today, was:

"The Mississippi from Louisiana to Cape Girardeau will rise. Water in sight will give close to 25 feet at Grafton Friday, about 31 feet at Alton, and 33.5 feet at St. Louis on Friday, and 33 at Chester Saturday. The river at St. Louis will rise until Friday.

"The Missouri below Lexington will rise and pass flood stage, with crests of about: Waverly, 22.5 feet; Boonville, 23.5; Hermann, 25.5; St. Charles, 31.

"Heavy rains are falling over the Illinois river drainage area, at Peru, the rise will probably go above 22; between Henry and Havana, there will be a rise, giving stages above those of the floods just receding. The crest stage cannot be forecast now. Below Havana, there will not be much change for several days.

"The Osage will continue rising slowly below Osceola, and will reach stages in excess of 36 feet at Warsaw and Tuscumbia. The Meramec will rise gradually. A stage of 18 feet is indicated for Valley Park.

Water at 50-Foot Stage at Cairo, Ill., for 24th Day.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAIRO, Ill., April 11.—All records for a continuous stage of 50 feet or more on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers here were broken today when that mark was passed for the twenty-fourth successive day, with a prospect of being up for at least another week. The guage this morning registered 50.5 feet, a rise of .5 of a foot since yesterday morning.

Stages of the Rivers.

Pittsburg, 5, fall .2; Cincinnati, 26.2, fall 3; Louisville, 12.1, fall .7; St. Louis, 31.2, rise .4; Cairo, 50.5, rise .5; Memphis, 40.4, fall .1; Vicksburg 52.2, rise .2; New Orleans, 20.9, rise .2.

WOMAN CASHIER HELD UP AND ROBBED ON STREET BY 2 MEN

Was On Way Back to Office With $35 in Cash After Depositing Company's Checks.

Miss Ruth Maddox, 22 years old, cashier of the Claes & Lehnbeuter Fixture Co., Seventh street and Russell avenue, was held up at 2 p. m. yesterday by two men on Russell avenue, between Broadway and Seventh street, and robbed of $20 of the company's money and $15 of her own.

Miss Maddox was on her way back to the office after having deposited several of the company's checks in a bank. She had withdrawn $20 for the company and $15 from her personal account. As she passed an alley east of Seventh street two men stepped out. One threw his arm about her neck and held her while the other snatched from her arm a paper folder in which she carried the money. The robbers ran east on Russell avenue and escaped.

PACKERS GIVEN MORE TIME

Must Comply With Consent Decree by March 3, 1923.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The time limit within which Swift & Co. and Armour & Co., Chicago packing concerns, must dispose of their stockyard and railway terminal properties under the Government's consent decree was extended by the District of Columbia Supreme Court today until March 3, 1923.

Under the original decree, the two concerns were required to complete disposal of the properties tomorrow but their attorneys told the court it had been impossible to complete the transactions. An extension of a full year was asked, for. In fixing the time limit as March 3, of next year, the court selected the same date named in a similar extension recently granted to Morris & Co.

TESTIMONY IS RESUMED IN TRIAL OF CITY COAL CASE

Prosecutor Says State Will Show M. B. Rosenheim Got $25 a Month for Falsifying Weight.

CONSPIRACY WITH COAL FIRM ALLEGED

Former Water Employe Accused of Receiving $2080 at $1 for Each Ton Added to Amount Delivered.

Testimony was resumed today in the trial of Milton B. Rosenheim, former weight clerk in the City Water Department, jointly charged with two officers of the St. Clair Coal and Mining Co., with obtaining money under false pretenses in connection with the delivery of alleged short-weight coal to the city by the St. Clair company.

A legal argument lasting nearly an hour took place in court in the forenoon when the State discovered that the names of seven witnesses, desired to testify to points in the foundation of the State's case, had not been indorsed on the indictment. The State asked leave to introduce these witnesses anyway, but the defense objected that their testimony would come as a surprise. The reply was made that their testimony was not material in proof of the charge and Circuit Judge Miller permitted their names to be indorsed.

Move to Discharge Jury Overruled.

The Court then overruled a motion by the defense to discharge the jury and continue the case until the nature of this additional testimony could be ascertained by the defense.

The testimony of these witnesses then began. Frank J. Doyle of East St. Louis, waybill clerk for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, told of the records kept of the weight of coal cars and contents, including cars shipped to the city and involved in this case. George Kaiser of 3236 Nebraska avenue, supervisor of the Southern Weighing and Inspection Bureau, told how coal was weighed in the East St. Louis railroad yards and how records were kept, and identified records make of coal shipments for the city.

The St. Clair Coal and Mining Co. held a contract to supply the city with coal for the water pumping station at Baden, and the efforts of the prosecution will be to show that the weight of coal as recorded at East St. Louis and Baden varied, in support of the short-weight allegation. The jury was selected yesterday and some city employes testified in beginning the foundation of the case.

Exhibit Prepared on a Board.

A graphic exhibit on a large board was prepared for the jury today. The board is to show the weight of coal shipments in the East St. Louis yards, as testified to, and the weight of the same shipments as shown by Rosenheim's record at Baden. The East St. Louis weight will be subtracted from the Baden weight, and the difference in each case will represent the alleged falsification. The Court ruled that this exhibit might be made, if no comment were offered on the figures.

The defense, in cross-examining Kaiser, got him to state that the accuracy of the East St. Louis weighing was questioned, in some cases, by shippers, and that the weighing was automatic, by the carload, at the rate of three cars a minute sometimes; also that rain increased the weight of carloads of coal slightly.

Rosenheim was ordered to trial after the indictment against John M. Brichler, secretary of the coal company, had been nolle prossed, and it was announced that Brichler would be used as a State's witness against the other defendants. Frederick W. Kleine, president of the company; his son, Edwin F. Kleine, treasurer, and Rosenheim asked to be tried separately, and the cases of the Kleines were continued.

Prosecutor Outlines Case.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Bowers in outlining the State's case to the jury, said it would be shown by testimony that Rosenheim, who was known at the office of the coal company as "Stine," had an agreement with the officers of the company by which he received $25 a month from the company for falsifying the weight of coal received at the Baden pumping station and, in addition, $1 for each ton that he added to the recorded weight of coal received. He said it would be shown that between January, 1917, and April or May of 1919, Rosenheim received approximately $2080 from the coal company for adding that many tons of coal to the weights actually received.

Discrepancies Discovered.

He said that the city ascertained, after the conspiracy had been discovered, the amount of the discrepancies by comparing the weights recorded on railroad scales in East St. Louis at the time the coal was purchased with the weights recorded by Rosenheim when the coal was delivered at the pumping station. In the period covered by the indictment, Bowcock continued, the railroad scales recorded 6,217,900 pounds and Rosenheim's entries in his receipt book totaled 6'509,920 pounds, or 292,000 pounds (146 tons) more than was actually received. The city was paying from $2.05 to $2.50 a ton for the coal, according to grade, Bowcock said, and its loss, therefore, from Dec. 24, 1918, to Jan. 10, 1919, the time covered by the indictment, was about $322.

"Paid Twice a Month."

Rosenheim was paid by the company twice a month, Bowcock said, invariably in the lobby of the Central National Bank Building, where the company had its offices, the payments being made in cash by Edwin F. Kleine and, in his absence, by Brichler.

Witnesses who testified yesterday afternoon were Richard C. Rombauer, Deputy City Register, who produced the city's contract with the coal company; Robert Junod, bookkeeper in the City Comptroller's office, who identified requisitions for coal for the City Water Department, and Francis P. Cutts, Assistant Water Commissioner, who identified Rosenheim as a former employe at the Baden water-pumping station.

STOLEN SAFE IS FOUND IN DITCH WITH CONTENTS GONE

Ring and Stocks and Bonds Missing Totaled More Than $4000 in Value; Two Other Safes Robbed.

A 400-pound safe stolen from the office of Dr. Elmer Z. Leibrock, 2601 Park avenue, by robbers who threw it from a second-floor window Saturday night, was found in a ditch near the St. Charles and Woodson roads yesterday afternoon. It had been broken open and the contents taken.

Dr. Leibrock told the police at the time of the theft that the safe contained a diamond ring he valued at more than $2000, $20 in dental gold and stocks and bonds valued at between $2000 and $3000.

A safe weighing about 300 pounds was taken from the office to the basement of the Grand Dyeing and Cleaning Co., 3128 Easton avenue, early yesterday, and broken open. Papers taken from the safe were scattered about the basement floor and $50 in cash was stolen.

Christ Panu, saloon keeper at 2135 Market street, has asked the police to investigate the theft of $409 from a safe in the saloon early yesterday. The combination was "worked" by the thieves and the inner doors forced.

WOMAN NAMED BY ST. LOUISAN IN CHICAGO ROBBERY RELEASED

Clara Billington Was Accused of Luring Man Into Alley When Three Men Held Him Up.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Miss Clara Billington, 30, of 829 Galt avenue, who was arrested yesterday following a report made to the police by Hardy Ligon, a real estate dealer, at 16 North Eighth street, St. Louis, that she lured him into an alley where three men robbed him of a $4000 diamond ring, his watch and $30 in money, was released today, the police having failed to substantiate Ligon's charge.

Miss Billington said she met Ligon in St. Louis, where she had given him her Chicago address and invited him to call. Sunday night he took her for a drive, and in taking her home drove to the rear of her home through an alley. After letting Miss Billington out, Ligon said he was robbed by three armed men.

Hardy Ligon, president of the Ligon Realty Co., 16 North Eighth street, resides at 4540 Washington boulevard. It was said at his home that he motored to Chicago Friday.

"PASSERS BY" PLEASES WIRELESS AUDIENCE

Reading of Noted Play Goes Out From K S D—Excellent Saxophone Recital.

Something entirely new was attempted at K S D radio station last evening, when a reading by Mrs. Donald MacDonald of Charles Haddon Chambers' dramatic play, "Passers By," was sent out by wireless. This gem of the stage, in which Charles Cherry appeared a few years ago, was most successfully given by Mrs. MacDonald. Telephone reports from the McKinley High School, as well as from a number of homes, came into the Post-Dispatch studio telling how perfectly the dialogues and narrative had been received.

The special music feature of the evening was a saxophone recital by Charles Hohengarten, with Charles Dienel at the piano. The selections went out so successfully that by request encores were played. The numbers included "Pancies," "When Buddha Smiles," "Pyramids," "The Virginia Blues" and "Sweet Man o' Mine." Receiving stations were troubled but little by static conditions and the entire program was one of the most enjoyable of the season.

This evening baseball fans who are also radio amateurs will have a special treat. Branch Rickey, manager of the Cardinals, will give a short address on pennant prospects. The other speaker of the evening will be James E. Smith, on the development of traffic on the Mississippi Valley waterways. For musical entertainment there will be songs by Mrs. Hector M. E. Pasmezoglu, sopfano, and a piano and saxophone program by Ted Fiorito and Don Mangan. Weather conditions today indicate there will be no static.

MYSTERY OF $10,000 FOUND ON POTOMAC'S SURFACE IS CLEARED

Notes Are Part of Loot Stolen From Engraving Bureau Year Ago and Buried.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Solution of the mystery of the finding Friday of the package of $5 Treasury bills in the Potomac River near the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was announced last night by Chief Moran of the Secret Services who said the bills were a part of a bundle of 1000 sheets, each containing four $5 notes, stolen from the bureau about a year ago.

Clayton C. Dunn of Potomac, Va., a former watchman at the bureau, who was arrested in February for passing $1 bills raised to $5, Moran said, admitted burying a part of the 1000 sheets in the swampy land near the river, and more of the bills were located there yesterday by Samuel Shiflett of Potomac, who found the first package last week.

SHAKEUP NI KANSAS CITY POLICE FORCE EXPECTED

Change Looked for When Successor to Parsons is Appointed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, April 11.—A general shakeup in the Kansas City police department is expected with the appointment of a successor to B. A. Parsons, police commissioner, who has announced he will resign. Gov. Hyde last night in Jefferson City said he had not decided on Parsons' successor.

Matthew A. Foster, former commissioner, who resigned when he was nominated for the mayoralty on the Republican ticket, today said he would not consider appointment to the Police Board.

"The appointment has not been offered to me," he said, "but if it is I positively will not consider it. Two reasons dictate this decision. In the first place, I do not think it would be a good thing for the Republican party here, and in the second place, I have already made such a sacrifice of my personal affairs that I could not accept in justice to myself."

Parsons will leave Kansas City about May 1 for Detroit to reside.

Thief Scorns Sack of Small Change.

A burglar who broke open a desk in the home of Samuel Ross, 2130 Cooper street, last night, took $65 in currency and 16 silver dollars, but refused to carry away $51 in dimes, nickels and pennies which were in a sack on the desk. The change was dumped from the sack and scattered about the desk.

HOW TO GET COLORED CLOTHES CLEAN WITHOUT FADING THEM.

Colored clothes seem to get more than their share of dirt. Play-clothes the children romp in—colored shirts and overalls the men work in—house dresses and kitchen aprons.

Haven't you done three-fourths of your washboard rubbing on those things? Rubbed till the color came out with the dirt?

Don't rub them again. Just soak them clean in Rinso suds. A half hour in these big lasting suds gently loosens all the dirt without weakening a single thread. Only the worst spots of all need a light rubbing. Try a little dry Rinso on these.

Rinso, the new kind of soap, is replacing bar soap in American homes.

HEARING ON CLAIM IN VAN BLARCOM CASE

Illinois Woman Alleges $20,000 Is Due Her for Services as Companion of Widow.

The claim of Miss Julia F. Hodge of Bloomington, Ill., against the estate of Mrs. Mary Van Blarcom for $20,000, for services as companion in the last 13 years of Mrs. Van Blarcom's life, was up for a hearing in Judge Falkenhainer's court today. The Probate Court recently allowed the claim, and the St. Louis Union Trust Co., as trustee, appealed from the Probate Court's action to the Circuit Court.

Miss Hodge, who was related to Mrs. Van Blarcom, acted as Mrs. Van Blarcom's companion after the death of J. C. Van Blarcom, who was president of the National Bank of Commerce, in 1908, and until Mrs. Van Blarcom's death in 1921. Robert E. Moloney, Mrs. Van Blarcom's personal attorney testified today in support of the claim.

Moloney said that, after her husband's death, Mrs. Van Blarcom refused to see all but a very few persons, and that he and Miss Hodge were two who were admitted. He said Mrs. Van Blarcom talked with him of ways of compensating Miss Hodge, and that she had planned to make a $15,000 bequest in her will, contingent on the death of her son, Frederick Van Blarcom, but that Frederick objected to this.

Frederick, the lawyer said, objected to Miss Hodge's presence in the home, holding that she had superseded him in his mother's affections. At that time, he was in various institutions from time to time. He was recently adjudged by a jury to be of sound mind, and he has since married.

The Union Trust Co. takes the position that Mrs. Van Blarcom had it in her power to make a gift to Miss Hodge, and that Miss Hodge is not entitled to any specific compensation. Moloney, however, testified that Mrs. Van Blarcom used the word "compensation" in speaking of the matter.

2 SOLDIERS DEAD AS RESULT OF ROCKET CAUSING EXPLOSION

Three Piles of Pyrotechnics Ignited in Night Demonstration at Camp in Texas.

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 11.—A faulty rocket which fell back and ignited three large piles of pyrotechnics was the cause of the explosion and subsequent death of two men and serious injury of 11 others at Camp Bullis, 25 miles north of San Antonio, last night.

Fifty soldiers, assisting in a night demonstration, were suddenly surrounded by a fiery furnace of explosives, with skyrockets shooting in every direction, star shells bursting and signal lights exploding.

Private John A. Brenner of Baltimore died at the army station from burns at 7 o'clock this morning. Rescue workers today tore into the burning stacks of pyrotechnics and found the body of another soldier burned beyond recognition. If is believed to be that of Private Joseph H. Miller of Reading, Pa., as all others have been accounted for.

Among the injured are Adolph Alaris of San Antonio, Joe Russian of Orange, Tex.; Harry Stasy of Detroit, Robert Muir of Washington, Ike S. Leman of Port Arthur, Ernest Hann of Palos, Ala.; Mathew Vlademer of Wilmington, Del.; Felix Catchings of San Antonio and Antonio Duarte of New Bedford, Mass.

HE RECENTLY CELEBRATED HIS HUNDREDTH BIRTHDAY

CARL B. DUENHAUPT.

CENTENARIAN CREDITS LONG LIFE TO LIVING AS HE PLEASES

Carl B. Duenhaupt Says He Drinks Beer, Wine or Whisky, and Smokes "All the Time."

Carl B. Duenhaupt of 5439 Arsenal street, who recently celebrated his 100th birthday, believes that the secret of longevity lies in living about as you please, but avoiding excesses and excitement.

"I never worried about my health," he said. "It was always good. I eat what I please, and drink beer, wine or whisky, but never to excess. I smoke all the time. If it did me any harm I would have found it out long ago. I try not to allow myself to get very excited or depressed."

Duenhaupt was born in Westphalia, Germany, April 2, 1822, and came to America at the age of 59, to find a wider field for his trade of piano making. Finding he could not compete with the large piano factories, he retired about 25 years ago and devoted his time to gardening and raising chickens. He has three sons and six grandchildren.

MAN OBTAINS WARRANT FOR THE ARREST OF HIS SON

Frank Frederick of 2755 North Garrison avenue, an electrician, obtained a warrant today for the arrest of his son, Harry, 23, on a charge of operating an automobile without the owner's consent.

The elder Frederick bought a coupe six weeks ago and recently, he said, his son had taken the car out without obtaining permission. Last night Frederick was awakened by a policeman, who had his son in custody and who said that an automobile he had been driving was at Grand avenue and North Market street, with a wheel missing, windshield broken and body bent.

"Will you go through with this?" the Circuit Attorney's office asked when the elder Frederick asked for his son's arrest.

"Yes," the father replied. "Maybe if he is sent up, he won't bother me so much." The charge is a felony, punishable with a fine or jail sentence or two years in the penitentiary.

MOTHER OF SLAIN WIFE SAYS MAN CONFESSED

Admits at Inquest Charging Murder, Daughter Also Was Wedded to Chauffeur.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., April 11.—"My daughte. told me she was married to Dr. Bryson and I believed her," said Mrs. Kathleen Kirby of New York City at a Coroner's inquest here late yesterday into the death of her daughter, who, it is alleged, was shot late Caturday night at Cassville, a remote farming community, by Dr. Herbert Bryson, with whom she had lived for the last year.

Dr. Bryson, a member of the Rainbow Division during the war, was gassed in France and since has been very nervous. He came here from New York a year ago, on advice of physicians, for the quiet of the country. The Coroner's jury held Bryson on the charge of murder.

Admits Marriage to Another.

When Mrs. Kirby took the stand, a telegram sent to the Mayor of Huntingdon by the Chief of the Washington Detectives was read to her. It said that her daughter, who was known here as Mrs. Bryson, was the legal wife of Bruce Haines, a Washington chauffeur.

The slain woman's mother stared at the Coroner for a few seconds.

"It's true," she said finally, "my daughter was Bruce Haines' wife."

When Mrs. Kirby was asked when and where her daughter was married to Dr. Bryson, she replied: "They were married in September, 1920, by a Magistrate or Judge, somewhere near Philadelphia. More than that they never told me, but I had no reason to disbelieve them. My daughter showed me her engagement and wedding rings."

Says Doctor Confessed to Her.

"Did she divorce Haines?" she was asked.

"I do not know."

Mrs. Kirby then became hysterical.

"You're trying to strip my poor daughter of her honor," she shouted at the Coroner. "Punish Dr. Bryson, but do not try to destroy her good name."

Then she sobbingly told the jury that when she interviewed Dr. Bryson in the county jail last night, he admitted killing his supposed wife.

"He told me he shot her," Mrs. Kirby wailed. This was the first intimation given the authorities that the physician had admitted guilt.

Since bringing the woman to the hospital Saturday evening, he had maintained steadfastly that she shot herself, although the victim accused him in an ante-mortem statement.

BARBER HELD UP AND ROBBED OF MONEY, WATCH AND AUTO

William F. Barton, a barber at the city sanitarium, 5320 Arsenal street, and Miss Mary C. Benson, an assistant laundress at the institution were seated in Barton's Ford coupe on Columbia avenue near January at 12:15 a. m. today when a stranger tapped on the window of the car door.

"What's the trouble in there?" he inquired.

"No trouble," Barton replied.

"Well, get out, then," the stranger ordered, and pointed a revolver through the door at Barton. Barton got out and was robbed of $17 and his watch.

Miss Benson was made to follow Barton, but nothing was taken from her.

"I need this boat for a while," the robber said as he climbed into the car and drove away.

HOUSE COAL STRIKE HEARING CONCLUDED

Labor Committee Tomorrow Will Consider Bill Calling for Commission to Deal With Situation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The House Labor Committee today had concluded its hearings on the national coal strike, for a time at least. Announcement that the committee had no plans at present for a further investigation of the strike was made by Chairman Nolan yesterday after several labor spokesmen had been heard at the final session in a general denial of charges that contract breaking by the miners' union had been a factor in the walkout.

The committee, however, will hold an executive session tomorrow to consider action on the Bland bill, which would set up a Federal coal commission to deal with such situations as the present strike.

Witnesses yesterday included Edgar Wallace, Labor Federation executive agent, and a member of the miners' union; John Hessler, president, and William Mitch, secretary, of the Indiana district of the United Mine Workers of America, and James Lord, vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 11.—Attorney-General Daugherty resumed his investigation of the pending cases in Federal Court here under indictments returned more than a year ago against 256 coal operators and mine operators. He conferred with Judge A. B. Anderson and Homer Elliott, United States Attorney, yesterday. It was reported Judge Anderson declared he would not permit dismissal of the coal cases. Operators have declared that the pending cases prohibit participation in any wage conference with miners. Daugherty indicated last night that dismissal of the indictments is under consideration.

PLANS FOR WOMEN'S INFIRMARY BEFORE PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD

Building at Koch Hospital, to Cost $200,000, Will Accommodate 200 Patients.

Plans for a new women's infirmary building at Koch Hospital, to cost $200,000, were submitted to the Board of Public Service today by President Kinsey. The building is to be of brick and limestone, three stories high, with rooms and porches to accommodate 200 women. A similar building for men is to be built later, both having been provided for by the bond issue of May, 1920. Koch Hospital is for tuberculosis patients.

The plans have been approved by experts in the treatment of tuberculosis. The building will contain no wards, but will be divided into rooms for two patients each. The rooms will be 11 by 14½ feet, and each will have a connecting space of 11½ by 11 feet on an outer screened and glass-inclosed porch. Bids for the building will be opened May 16.

CONGRESSMAN HAWES OF 11TH FILES TO SUCCEED HIMSELF

Representative Also Has Official Record Made That He Has Moved Into His Own District.

Congressman Harry B. Hawes yesterday filed in the office of the Board of Election Commissioners notification of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Eleventh (St. Louis) District to succeed himself, and also had his address changed on the registration books to show that he had moved into his own congressional district.

Hawes, when elected in 1920, resided at 4411 Westminster place, which is in the Twelfth District, represented by Congressman Dyer, a Republican. Hawes' new official address is 35 Vandeventer place, the home of Sam W. Fordyce, and is in the Eleventh District. There is nothing in the law requiring a Congressman to reside in the district he represents.

So far there is no candidate against Hawes for the nomination, and it is not expected that he will have serious opposition. The district is considered safely Democratic, the Republican effort in the 1921 Legislature to make it Republican by changing the boundary lines in a general redistricting of the State having failed through the action of the Democratic State Committee in filing referendum petitions to suspend the law.

SPECIAL INSPECTION OF PUBLIC BUILDINGS TO BE MADE

About 30 of 75 Theaters Inspected Here Found to Need Repairs—Three Have Been Closed.

The Department of Public Safety will conduct a special inspection of all places of public assemblage, except new structures known to be in good condition, with a view to finding places in possible need of repairs, Director McKelvey has announced. The inspection will include public and private schools, churches, dance halls and other places. It will follow the present inspection of all theaters, which will consume several weeks.

About 75 theaters, or 60 per cent of them, have been inspected so far, the work being prompted by the Knickerbocker Theater disaster in Washington, D. C., and about 30 of them were found to be in need of repairs. Three of them have been closed because of their condition, another one closed a month earlier than usual to start repairs, and repairs are under way in a fifth one, which has not been closed.

The decision to inspect churches and other places followed the finding of rotten roof trusses in an old church used as part of one of the theaters which was closed. Two engineers are engaged in the inspection and give special attention to roofs.

BURGLARS CUT THROUGH FLOOR

Tobacco Valued at $900 Taken and Cash Register Robbed of $50.

Burglars in the Kohlberg Pharmacy, 3900 Lafayette avenue, last night, after forcing an entrance to the basement, stood on a box and bored holes in the floor above until they were able to cut out a section of the flooring 10 by 12 inches through which they crawled into the store. Cigars, cigarettes and pipe tobacco valued at $900 in the stock of a United Cigar Store which occupies part of the drug store, was stolen. From the drug store cash register they took $50.

MME. LEBAUDY AND HER DAUGHTER STILL SOUGHT

Girl's Father-in-Law and Suitor of Her Mother Believed to Know Their Hiding Place.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, April 11.—The whereabouts of Mme. Jacques Lebaudy, widow of the "Emperor of Sahara," and her daughter, Jaqueline, who disappeared from a St. Cloud sanitarium after the girl's husband attempted to carry her off by force a few days ago, is still a mystery.

It is thought Henry Sundreau, the girl's father-in-law, who was to have married Mme. Lebaudy, knows their hiding place. Sundreau, head of the Harris Detective Agency, the largest in France, asserts that Mme. Lebaudy visited him Friday and remained with him for three hours. He says she told him her affection for him was unchanged, but she refused to allow her daughter to return to his son, Roger.

Father and son blame enemies for influencing the daughter against them. Drug addicts figure in the case, and then there is a Mme. Lakah, an Egyptian fortune teller, who is alleged to have frightened Jaqueline into leaving young Sundreau.

The husband says this woman told his wife about his dissolute habits, but a young dancing girl, also an Egyptian, defended Mme. Lakah. She told the correspondent the fortune teller was Mme. Lebaudy's closest friend.

"As for Jaqueline," she continued, "she is a mere child, brought up in American style, and had no thoughts of love when they married her to Roger Sundreau. It was the father who advised the platonic marriage, which is at the root of the whole story. Jaqueline is still a wife in name only."

Sundreau protests his love for his wife and says she is expecting to become a mother. He let it be understood, however, that if there is a divorce he will claim half his wife's estate, to which he is entitled under French laws.

The elder Sundreau denies the Lebaudy fortune figures in the marriage of his son. He pointed out Jaqueline could receive the interest on her father's estate, valued at millions of dollars, without being married, but admitted she could not control the principal as a minor unless married.

He said Mme. Lebaudy's share of her husband's estate, about $2,000,000, had gone to lawyers. He said he himself had been supporting mother and daughter for months and that Mme. Lebaudy now owes him about $100,000.

"They can't touch a cent of their money without my signature," he asserts, "for I shall put a lien on their whole fortune, which is mostly in France, England, Spain and Italy.

"Why should I or my son be suspected of engineering a marriage for mercenary reasons? Everyone knows my detective agency is a prosperous affair. I make more than 1,000,000 francs a year and had no need to seek a rich wife for Roger.

"The truth is the young couple fell in love with each other last year when we were all living together. In October we went to America, Mme. Lebaudy having persuaded me to help her compel the American administrators of the Lebaudy estate to hasten winding up of their business so she could possess the property.

"This I accomplished and we came back to France in December. To show you what the situation was, in November, Mme. Lebaudy, heiress to hundreds of millions, was vainly claiming $40,000, representing 20 monthly payments due to Jaqueline."

$655,366 REDUCTION MADE IN CITY DEFICIT IN LAST YEAR

Unemployment Situation and Incinerator Purchases Prevented Further Cut of $240,000.

The Comptroller's office today announced that the municipal deficit has been reduced, within the last year, from $1,005,366.67 to $350,000.67, and that the city will enter on the new fiscal year with a deficit amounting to the latter sum. An endeavor will be made to eliminate the remaining deficit before the fiscal year of 1923-24 begins a year hence.

Comptroller Nolte said the city could have made a much greater reduction in the deficit, but for two unexpected items of expense. One was the appropriation of $100,000 for relief of the unemployed, and the other was the payment of $140,000 for incinerators.

The money spent for the unemployed was devoted to public work, in some of the branches where retrenchment had been most severely felt.

DOCTOR SAYS SWISS BUTLER IS 'MORE LOVESICK THAN INSANE'

Former Servant Who Thought Woman Loved Him Said They Were "Nice" to Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 11.—"More lovesick than insane," in substance, was the opinion rendered yesterday by Dr. Menas Gregory, chief psychiatrist of Bellevue Hospital, in the case of August "Archie" Probst, now internationally known as the "Romeo Butler of the Rolling Rock Country Club" at Ligonier, Pa.

Dr. Gregory was allowed to appear at a third medical examination of Probst by the doctors of the United States Public Health Service at the request of the Swiss Consul-General and Bernard H. Sandler and David Steinhardt, lawyers for Probst. The latter had charged Probst was being "railroaded out of the country" because of alleged love affairs with daughters of certain millionaire members of the club.

Dr. Gregory agreed with the Ellis Island doctors that Probst has suffered from delusions, that he has drawn conclusions from false premises, that he is mentally sick—lovesick.

It was necessary for Dr. Gregory to quiz Probst about his affection for wealthy members of the club.

"I want you to tell me frankly what makes you believe these young ladies were ever in love with you?" was one of the questions.

Probst fumbled with the lapel of his pajamas and ran his fingers through his flowing locks. He replied the young women had been "nice" to him, that they had once patted him on the hand and told him to cheer up and not be disheartened over his disputes with the manager of the club, as they would fix things for him. But he could give no better reason for thinking they were in love with him than that they had cast furtive glances at him, even in the company of their own set.

HOME ROBBED WHILE MAN IS SELECTING LOT TO BURY WIFE

Jewelry, Money and Insurance Policy Taken From Kugelmann Residence in Belleville.

While the body of Mrs. Katie Kugelmann lay in her home on North Church street, Belleville, yesterday, and her husband, George Kugelmann, was away selecting a cemetery lot for her burial today, the house was entered and looted. Jewelry, some money, a bank book and an insurance policy were carried away. Neighbors saw a man and woman enter and leave the house.

Mrs. Kugelmann died from lockjaw after being pecked on the right hand by a rooster.

MAN HELD FOR SNATCHING WATCH

Walter Tiefenbrunn, 24 years old, a cook, of 615 Lafayette avenue, who, police say, has served a term in the workhouse for burglary and larceny, was arrested at Broadway and Geyer avenue at noon yesterday upon complaint of Thomas A. Pennell, 1402 South Thirteenth street, a switchman, who said that Tiefenbrunn had snatched his watch from him.

Tiefenbrunn was taken to the Soulard Street Police Station, where he was found to have the watch described by Pennell. Tiefenbrunn admitted taking it, but said he did so because Pennell had refused to pay a $10 debt which he incurred in a gambling game. Pennell denied that he owed the money.

Grocery Held Up, $70 Taken.

Three men, who stepped from an automobile, in which a fourth remained at the wheel, walked into a Kroger grocery at 4256 College avenue at 8 a. m. today and, drawing revolvers, compelled the manager, Christ McCormick of 4610A St. Ferdinand avenue, to lie on the floor. They took $70, he said, from the cash register, ran to the machine and were driven away.

DEFENSE OF PALMER RADICAL RAIDS IN 1919-20 IS MADE

Senate Judiciary Investigating Sub-Committee Makes Public Report of its Findings.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—General defense of the radical raids of 1919 and 1920 conducted by order of Attorney-General Palmer was made in a report by Senator Sterling, Republican, of South Dakota, chairman of a Senate Judiciary Investigating Subcommittee, made public yesterday with a supplemental report by Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, attacking vigorously the raids and challenging conclusions of the Sterling report.

Neither report has been approved by the Judiciary Committee which will consider them further Friday.

Senator Sterling's report drafted for the committee, found that "there was no usurpation of power," by the Department of Justice in the raids of alien radicals.

The Sterling report criticized the personnel of the dozen lawyers who originally filed the charges against Palmer, saying these had been prominent in radical movements. It referred to Felix Frankfurter, Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, and Ernest Freund of Chicago, and their identification with the American Civil Liberties Union. This organization, the Sterling report said, "was a supporter of all subversive movements and its propaganda is detrimental to the interests of the State."

RUNS INTO STORE, GETS WEAPON AND ROUTS THREE HOLDUP MEN

Salesman Fights Off Trio When They Try to Get Sample Case, and Scatters Them.

Three men who attempted to steal first the sample case and then the automobile of Felix Katke, 4218 Warne avenue, a salesman for a check protecting machine company, as he entered his car at North Market street and Elliott avenue at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, were frustrated when Katke ran to a store nearby, obtained a revolver and scattered the highwaymen with a fusillade that brought several policemen running to the scene.

The men escaped, but policemen later arrested three suspects from descriptions given by Katke, and they are being held.

When Katke, after a scuffle, ran with his sample case, the men turned their attention to his automobile and attempted to start the engine. When he opened fire the men deserted the machine and fled. Katke, who formerly was a policeman, was slightly bruised in the scuffle.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

DEVICE MEASURES ANY DEPTH

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A new device developed by the Navy Department and which makes possible the accurate measurement of any depth of the ocean, possibly will result, hydrographers said today, in the charting of spot in the sea which have never been measured because their depth was too great for the old methods of sea sounding work.

The new device was said to employ sound apparatus similar to that used during the war for detection of submarines. The principle of its use is that of creating a sound on the ship and listening for the echo of this sound from the bottom of the ocean, measuring the time between the creation of the sound and the return of the echo.

"To Do My Share"

"The war taught me to save. I was just out of high school when it started, and had been at work only a few months. Saving money had never entered my head.

. . . . . .

"When they started to sell Liberty Bonds, I wanted to do my share, but had to buy a bond on the installment plan, $2 a week. I got used to it. It became a habit. I bought bonds that way all through the war, and afterward continued the $2-a-week deposits in a savings account. I know now that I have $500 I wouldn't have if it had not been for the war."

What Rodin Found in the Face Muscles

The Thinker By Rodin

THE Museum of Luxembourg, Paris, contains many works of the noted sculptor, Rodin.

It is said of his art that he could make a SINGLE MUSCLE portray the deepest emotions.

Particularly in the FACE MUSCLES did he find means of expressing these deep emotions—the muscles which are attached to the alveolar process.

* * *

When the teeth have been lost, THIS ALVEOLAR PROCESS IS ABSORBED, the muscles are loosened from their attachment, and the cheeks sag and wither.

* * *

BE GUIDED BY THIS KNOWLEDGE, YOURSELF. If your face is to retain its plumpness, its expression, through middle life, TAKE THE SIMPLE MEASURE NOW THAT WILL INSURE THE SAVING OF YOUR TEETH.

First, don't RUIN your teeth by the DAILY USE OF GRIT, because someone attempts to prove to you that grit will WHITEN your teeth.

* * *

GRIT WILL WHITEN YOUR TEETH—BUT IT WILL ALSO CAUSE YOU TO LOSE THEM LONG BEFORE NATURE INTENDED YOU SHOULD.

Teeth can only endure for an unlimited period when THEIR WHOLE ENVIRONMENT—THE ENTIRE MOUTH—IS KEPT IN A CLEAN AND HEALTHY CONDITION.

* * *

What has caused 47,000 American dentists and 74,000 American physicians to send to the Kolynos Laboratories in New Haven for Kolynos Dental Cream, to be used by their patients?

Positive knowledge that Kolynos DIFFERS from all other dentrifices, in that IT KEEPS THE WHOLE MOUTH SANITARILY CLEAN, IN ADDITION TO POLISHING THE TEETH WITHOUT THE USE OF GRIT.

* * *

KOLYNOS NOT ONLY BEAUTIFIES—IT MATERIALLY ASSISTS IN PRESERVING THE TEETH LONG PAST MIDDLE AGE. IT DISINFECTS AND PURIFIES THE TOOTH BRUSH AFTER EACH USE, SO THAT THE BRUSH CANNOT RE-INFECT THE MOUTH.

It cleans the teeth and the toothbrush, too.

REVENGE PLOT PLEA OF FORMER POLICEMAN

August Rogge on Trial on Charge of Accepting Bribe From Saloon Keeper.

The defense of August Rogge of 4640 Alaska avenue, former special policeman of the Soulard Street District, whose trial on a charge of accepting a bribe began in Circuit Judge Hogan's court yesterday and probably will go to the jury today, is that the allegation he took money from a saloon keeper for protection was a plot for revenge because he had taken part in raids on the saloon.

It is charged that Rogge, who resigned as a policeman, afterwards accepted $75 from Antone Swetz, a saloon keeper at 1027 Geyer avenue, Oct. 28 last, and promised him immunity from police interference for two weeks.

Testimony of Saloon Man.

Swetz testified that Rogge came to him Oct. 26, which was after Rogge had taken part in two raids there in which no evidence of liquor law violation was found, and said, "You've been getting by long enough. You'll have to cough up now. I have it on you. Don't you know it would cost you $500 or $600 in court?" The special policeman then demanded $150 to protect his place, Swetz declared.

The saloon keeper said he told Inspector Gerk of the Police Department about the matter afterwards and made arrangements to trap Rogge. Gerk and his assistant, Sergt. Dudley W. McDonald, now a Lieutenant, were hidden in a shed in the rear of the saloon, Oct. 28. Rogge came to the place and went in the yard with him, Swetz said, and demanded $150. Swetz gave him $75 in marked bills, he said, and Rogge made this statement:

"I guess I'll have to take that. You can go ahead and do business and sell all the liquor you want for two weeks. I'll tell the rest of the gang to lay off."

Defendant's Version of Case.

Rogge, on the stand today, related his version of the events preceding his arrest as follows: He participated in two police searches of Swetz's saloon prior to last Oct. 26 and on that day Swetz remarked to him: "Do you need any money? If you do I can help you out." The offer was a surprise to him, but he did need money and told Swetz he would like to borrow $100. Swetz told him to come around Friday and on that day took him into a rear yard, where he said he could only let him have $75, but would give him more later. He handed Rogge the money with the remark: "Are you going to arrest me for this?" That remark was a surprise, but he replied: "No, I have nothing to arrest you for." At that juncture Inspector Gerk and Sergt. McDonald stepped from an outhouse with revolvers drawn. When he asked for a chance to explain, Gerk said: "I feel like shooting you." "It was a wonder they didn't shoot me," Rogge commented, "they were so excited." "And if they said that liquor was mentioned, they are lying," he concluded.

Police Captains Kirk, Hannegan, Doyle, Hanna, Phillips, McNamee and Gaffney and others testified to Rogge's good character.

Arthur Page of 3307 South Seventh street, a truck driver, the first witness for the defense, said he and two other men were in the Swetz saloon Oct. 26 and saw Rogge and Swetz talking. As Rogge left, he said, Swetz said to him, "Any time you want a loan of a hundred or two I'll be glad to let you have it." Then, the witness declared, Swetz walked over to him and his companions and said, "That's just what I want him to do, to frame him. He wants to break up my saloon."

Other Defense Witnesses.

Henry Beckmann, 208 South Third street, and Joseph Fiegenbutz of 2414 South Fourth street, produce peddlers, who were Page's companions in the saloon, corroborated his testimony. Dr. R. S. Vitt, former Coroner, testified as to Rogge's good character.

MISSOURI G. O. P. CONGRESSMEN TAKE UP SENATE RACE

Secret Conference at Washington Attended by Dr. E. B. Clements, Republican State Chairman.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Senatorial booms and boomlets were trotted out and critically inspected at a meeting yesterday of the Missouri Republican congressional delegation with Dr. E. B. Clements of Macon, chairman of the State Republican Committee. The session was strictly "executive" and most of those present were inclined to be noncommunicative afterward. It was learned, however, that the meeting showed a strong sentiment in the delegation in favor of "drafting" Representative Charles L. Faust of St. Joseph as a candidate, and an equally strong, or stronger, sentiment against a boom launched for himself last week by Representative E. C. Ellis of Kansas City.

The name of Walter S. Dickey, Kansas City politician and newspaper owner, figured in the discussion, but nobody appeared to know what he intends to do. There are friends of Dickey on the delegation who will not regard themselves as free agents so long as the Kansas City man is a possible candidate. They are, however, becoming extremely restive. One of them said he was going to notify Dickey that he ought, out of consideration for his supporters, to announce a decision one way or the other in the next 10 days.

Dickey's Decision Awaited.

If Dickey decides not to run, it is the opinion of this Congressman that Faust will have almost the unanimous support of the delegation.

The men now listed as Dickey supporters include Representatives Atkeson of Butler and McPherson of Aurora. Two or three others are supposed to have leanings in the same direction.

The delegation turned thumbs down on Ellis. Last week the Kansas City Congressman wrote a letter to each of his colleagues setting forth his qualifications for the Senate. Ellis said he was "well persuaded" of a favorable attitude on the part of Republicans in his home district.

"I am convinced," he said, "that were I to become a candidate I would have the earnest support of dominant forces and influences in all affiliations. Particularly am I persuaded that the negro vote would come to me with very great unanimity. Even Nelson Crews, who has just contributed the influence of his newspaper to the help of the Democratic candidate for Mayor, has given editorial assurances upon which I am confident I may rely."

Anxious to Make Race.

It would be serviceable to all the Congressmen in their several campaigns, Ellis argued in his letter, to have one of their own number "on the firing line" as a candidate for the senatorship.

"I think some one of our delegation ought to make this race," he continued. "I am inclined to think that if we should agree upon someone and take the initiative, our judgment would be very greatly respected throughout Missouri. I do not know that any other of our members is disposed to accept the task. If, in the sound judgment of my colleagues, I ought to assume the responsibility and enter upon any arduous campaign, I will be inclined to obey. If sure of what I anticipate, that James A. Reed will receive a plurality of the Democratic votes cast in the August primary, I would cheerfully, even enthusiastically, obey such a mandate."

On a separate sheet Ellis set out his qualifications in a numbered series, with the preface that "it is generally recognized that one who is a member of Congress—who wears the halo of a Congressman—has, in seeking promotion to the Senate, a distinct advantage over one outside."

Qualifications He Listed.

His qualifications were listed as (1) residence in the western part of the state (2) present and former congressional service, (3) his championship of waterway improvement, especially on the Missouri River, (4) ownership of a farm and sympathetic interest in the farmer's problems, and (5) the enjoyment "in a very high degree" of the "confidence of the business interests, including the transportation interests" of Kansas City.

On the last named point he wrote: "Should Reed be the nominee, his appeal to Kansas City business interests would be peculiarly strong unless opposed by one quite as closely identified with those interests."

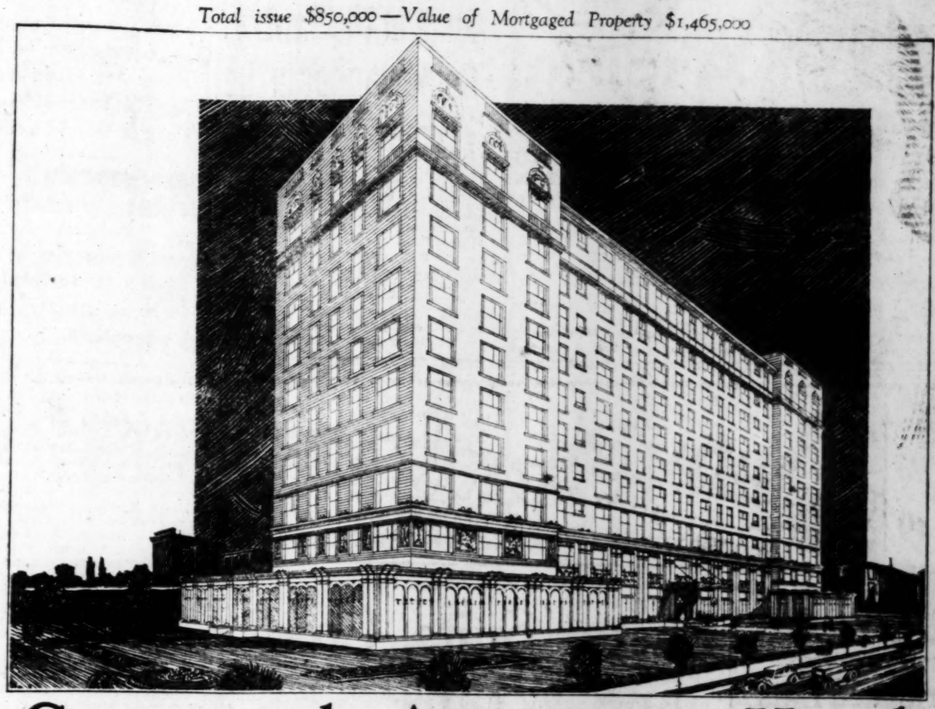

Ellis was not present at yesterday's caucus. In his absence, to paraphrase a remark of one of the members, no Ellis sentiment was visible. On the contrary, the feeling was strong that the recent Democratic victory in Kansas City proved the desirability of picking a Republican candidate from other than Reed's particular bailiwick. The story is going the rounds among the Congressmen, on the authority of Ellis himself, that on the day before he wrote his letter, he went to Senator Spencer and told him he was thinking of getting into the race, whereupon Spencer clapped him on the back in the heartiest fashion and told him that was the very thing to do.

Didn't Know He Had Been Quoted.

Apparently Spencer didn't know that Ellis had quoted this conversation, for in the somewhat jocular talk around the table about the Ellis candidacy, Spencer failed to mention it.

RUTGER STREET DOCK COMPLETED AT $210,000 COST

Government Also to Have Ready for Operation by April 20 520-Foot Floating Dock at East St. Louis.

RIVER TERMINALS HERE NOW ADEQUATE

Power Connection at New Dock Not Yet Made and Its Immediate Use Is Not Contemplated.

The Federal Government has completed its 500-foot dock at Rutger street at a cost of $210,000.

It will have ready for operation by April 20 a new 520-foot floating dock at East St. Louis, just north of the Municipal Bridge.

With the 900-foot municipal dock at North Market street, the Government River Service, which is the barge line between St. Louis and New Orleans, for the first time since its establishment in 1918, has terminals in the St. Louis district adequate for any volume of freight that may be offered for some time to come.

The Rutger street dock consists of 500 feet of piling bearing two railroad tracks, an approach of 250 feet and an all-steel warehouse 250 feet long and 58 feet wide. A second 250-foot warehouse can be built when traffic justifies.

Piling Forms Dock Wall.

The piling forms a dock wall to which barges can be moored, and is designed for the handling of freight to and from railroad cars by locomotive cranes, two of which are provided.

A facility for the handling of more fragile classes of freight not present at North Market street is provided at the Rutger dock. It is a chain conveyor running from the floor of the freight house, through the piling to the water's edge and is designed to carry two-ton trucks direct from barges to whatever spot in the warehouse is desired. Twenty-five of these trucks are on hand. The conveyor, which runs under cover protecting the freight from inclement weather, is mechanically equipped to be lowered or raised as the river rises or falls.

A railroad track runs the length of the warehouse at its rear. Carlots of fragile merchandise will be shunted to this track, loaded into the two-ton trucks, wheeled across the warehouse floor and lowered to barge-side on the conveyor. Carlots of bulky, less perishable freight will be sent up on to the dock for a short swing by the cranes from freight car to the barge hatches. No provision has been made for the delivery of freight by truck or wagon to the dock. This lack can be remedied with little expense if it seems desirable to thus serve South St. Louis shippers, which was the original contemplation.

No Power Connection Yet.

The power connection for the dock has not yet been made and it is likely that the dock will not be immediately operated unless an increase in shipping strains the North Market street facilities.

The East St. Louis terminal is designed for the transfer of carlots of freight originating in the valley. It will consist of two 260-foot concrete barges, placed end to end, the barges being equipped with tracks capable of carrying 32 freight cars. The cars will run to barge-side down a 3 per cent incline.

A photograph of the Rutger dock appears on the pictorial page of today's Post-Dispatch. The barges lying in front of it are those being prepared for East St. Louis.

Former Detective in Federal Post.

Neil Boyle, former detective-sergeant in the St. Louis Police Department, who resigned last month, has become a Federal narcotic inspector, and was in charge of the St. Louis office yesterday, in the absence of Inspector Charles Thompson. Boyle took the civil service examination two years ago and became eligible for the inspectorship.

NEW RADIO RECEIVER USES NO BATTERY

Bureau of Standards Announces Design That Works With Any Antennae.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, April 11.—A radio receiving apparatus that uses ordinary electron tubes for amplification but which does not require a storage battery has been developed by the radio experts of the Bureau of Standards.

The current to light the filaments of the electron tubes is obtained from an ordinary electric lamp socket instead of the storage battery which the experts characterize as "a drawback to the general use of radio sets and the most expensive portion of the equipment for the person who wishes to make his own set."

How to use the electric light wires themselves as an antenna and thus eliminate entirely the need of erecting an antenna has also been worked out by the Government radio engineers in connection with this new set, although the signals are likely to come in with less strength when this is done. The new design of receiving set can be used, however, with any type of antenna, either the ordinary elevated antenna, a coil or special forms.

"The new receiving set consists essentially of an amplifier with minor auxiliary parts," the experts explain. "The amplifier utilizes 60-cycle current supply for both filaments and plates of the electron tubes. This amplifier has three radio-frequency stages and two audio-frequency stages, and uses a crystal detector. The 60-cycle current when used in an ordinary amplifier circuit introduces a strong 60-cycle note, which offers serious interference. This has been practically eleminated by balancing resistances, grid condensers and special grid leaks of comparatively low resistance, telephone transformer in the output circuit, and crystal detector, instead of electron tube detector. In the final form of the amplifier, there is only a slight residual hum, which is not objectionable. The amplification obtained with a. c. supply was as good as that obtained with the same amplifier used with d. c. supply. The complete unit is light, compact and portable. For the reception of damped waves, the amplifier as constructed operated most satisfactorily for wave lengths from 200 to 750 meters. This range was determined by the working range of the radio-frequency transformers used. By using suitable radio-frequency transformers, it is expected that the amplifier will be effective for the reception of damped waves and undamped waves as long as 10,000 meters. For the reception of undamped waves, a separate hoterodyne should be employed."

A publication of the Bureau of Standards to be issued shortly will give circuit diagrams and state the values of the condensors, resistors and inductors used.

10,000 GALLONS OF MASH IN VAT

A concrete vat, 18 by 16 by 5 feet, containing about 10,000 gallons of corn mash, was found last night in the basement of a house at 1821 South King's highway, when Lieut. McKenna went there after receipt of an anonymous letter.

In a shed at the rear three barrels of mash were found, and in a garage at the rear there were 42 barrels, each containing 50 gallons of mash. In an icebox in the house he found a half gallon and a quart of "moonshine" whisky. No still was found. No one was at home. The mash was destroyed after samples had been taken.

Why they like Lifebuoy

Thousands of women have told why they like Lifebuoy.

Here are a few of the things they say:

"It leaves my skin so soft and smooth."
"It keeps my hands from feeling dry and harsh."
"It has such a pleasant after-feeling."
"When I use Lifebuoy, I can almost feel its palm and cocoanut oils flowing over my hands."

What is the secret? Simply that Lifebuoy cleans the whole depth of the pores—and opens them to Lifebuoy's softening palm and cocoanut oils.

It has given housekeepers and women who work with their hands a new idea of skin comfort and health.

It is a soap you will love to use.

News of the Business World

By Wire to the Post-Dispatch

April 11.

NEW YORK.—The high tide of Easter buying will reach its flood this week and the volume of business gives evidence of being fully equal to that of other years. The trade seems to be centering around the larger shops, however, and the demand is heaviest for moderate-priced goods. In men's wear, sport clothes are extremely active, the demand for them exceedingly that of the so-called staple lines. Millinery is selling well and so are men's hats.

Shoe manufacturers are somewhat less busy as the orders for fall footwear have not come in in any volume, and retailers apparently are holding off for price developments. Woolen and silk mills of this district still are under restricted production.

The candy manufacturers have reduced prices and report a satisfactory response in increased demand.

PLANTING IS DELAYED.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Cooler weather has delayed spring planting in the Northwest, but soil conditions are favorable and normal acreage of cereals and grain is forecast. The only seed shortage in this district is in North Dakota and the situation is being met there by loans which will enable them to pull through. Credit conditions throughout this district have improved. Farmers in this territory have received $60,000,000 in loans from the Seventh District Federal Land Bank. Bank clearings in the Twin Cities for the first three months of this year, however, totaled only $358,000,000 as against $428,000,000 for a similar period a year ago.

Employment in St. Paul and Minneapolis is approaching normal for this time of year and the whole trade compares favorably with a year ago.

EASTER BUYING GOOD.

PITTSBURG, Pa.—A canvass of 900 stores and retail shops today showed that Easter buying is progressing in large volume here. Buyers, however, are more careful as to prices and display an inclination to shop for bargains.

The miners' strike has injected an element of uncertainty into the industrial situation. Some authorities declare the supply of coal in stock and in sight is sufficient to cover needs for 90 to 100 days.

Most of the miners commonly deal at company stores and with the credit of strikers cut off at that source, they are dealing elsewhere. They continue to live in buildings owned by their former employers, however, and are postponing rent payments.

GENERAL TOPICS.

LONDON.—The losses suffered by shareholders in rubber companies as a result of the fall in price of the raw material since 1920 are strikingly illustrated by figures issued today. The depreciation in the selling price of stocks in 568 companies, the combined capital of which at par is approximately $450,000,000, has been approximately $350,000,000 since 1920.

TEMPLE, Tex.—The Santa Fe railroad has increased the force at work in its shops here. Cattle shipments on the railroads, however, have fallen off materially since the rains.

FRUIT.

HAMMOND, La.—What is said to be the finest crop of strawberries ever produced in this belt has been sold for $1500 cash. The ground planted was less than an acre. Charles Ekkers was the grower.

FORT WORTH, Tex.—It was estimated earlier in the season that the early fruit crop of this area would require 700 cars this spring, but the recent rains have so diminished the prospects that it is believed 150 cars will be sufficient.

LUMBER.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The California lumber mills are reopening. Stocks in hands of dealers have been reduced, demand is increasing and prices are moving upward.

LEATHER.

NEW YORK.—Shoe manufacturers are running into the between-seasons period and purchases of leather are smaller and the business spotty. Patent leather continues to be the leader.

OIL.

SAN FRANCISCO.—New wells which have been brought in recently have widened the Southern California oil fields and production is increasing with prices firm.

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Oil production in all the Texas fields fell off from 1,000 to 25,000 barrels daily because of the recent heavy rains.

JEWELRY.

NEW YORK.—The Russian diamond stocks have now been well absorbed and cut diamond prices gradually are rising. Orders for popular-priced jewelry are picking up, especially in the Middle and Far West.

STEEL.

PITTSBURG, Pa.—Orders in the steel trade have been heavier in the last two weeks than in any similar period since 1920. Bars, plates and shapes now seen firmly established at $1.50. Sheets are strong at the following quotations: Blue annealed, $2.40; black, $3.15; galvanized, $4.15; automobile sheets (22-gauge basis), $4.50. Tinplate is in large demand.

Four Kansas Railroads Fined.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 11.—Four Kansas railroads were fined a total of $1000 in the United States District Court here yesterday by Judge David P. Dyer of St. Louis, sitting for Judge C. Pollock, on charges of violating the law relating to use of safety appliances and the 28-hour law. The Santa Fe was fined $100; Rock Island, $500; Union Pacific, $300, and Missouri Pacific, $100.

When "No" Is Good Sometimes Isn't It Better At All Times?

A great many people have learned to say "No" to tea or coffee at noon and at night—learned it at the cost of jumping nerves and disturbed digestion.

Thousands of others who passed through that stage have learned to say "No" to tea and coffee all the time, and have found a most satisfactory "Yes" in Postum.

Postum's full, rich flavor delights the taste and meets all the demands for a hot, mealtime drink, and it contains no element that can harm anybody. Even little children may share in the delights of a hot cup of Postum with any meal.

Whether or not the thein in tea or the caffeine in coffee has begun to serve warnings on you, you can profit by the experience of others and by the information which any doctor can give you—and find charm without harm in Postum.

Suppose you make the test for ten days, with well-made Postum, and compare the "feel" with your former experience with tea and coffee.

Your grocer sells both forms of Postum: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Spirits Wed, but Have No Children, Conan Doyle Says

Marriage Is on a Higher Plane and There Is a "Paradise" Where "Normally Respectable" Persons Stay About 40 Years, He Declares

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The latest news radioed to him from spirit land was transmitted to the newspaper reporters by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle at his rooms in the Hotel Ambassador yesterday. In response to many questions he revealed these conditions in the other world:

Marriage is on a higher and more spiritual plane than here, and in reality is merely the mating of affinities who are always happy.

No babies are born, but the spirits as they go about their daily tasks keep a watchful eye on earthly matters, and are extremely interested in the births here.

There is a plane called "Paradise" where "normally respectable" persons go upon death, and this "plane" is only slightly removed from our own mundane sphere.

Bad people when they die are transported to a plane considerably lower than that tenanted by respectable ones, and they continue to sink lower and lower untill they repent.

Once a sinner becomes contrite for his earthly infractions, he or she begins to ascend, and after a considerable probationary period climbs into Paradise.

Stay in Paradise About 40 Years.

On the average the length of time spent in Paradise is about 40 years, after which one floats to higher, higher and still higher planes.

There is a very complex social scale in the higher planes, further complicated by the fact that those above can descend at will to lower planes while those below haven't permission to go up whenever they wish.

Everybody in the upper realms is busily occupied, mostly doing good toward one another, while "rest" is obtained mostly by reading (the best sellers were not specified by Sir Arthur).

Persons who commit suicide have a terrible time in the spirit world, for they are obliged to shoulder there the earthly troubles which drove them to their rash acts.

All mediums have "guardian angels," to whom they are especially subject, but they can communicate with other spirits, the "guardian angel" acting as a sort of master of ceremonies upon such occasions.

Sir Arthur specified Mrs. Wreidt of Detroit and Miss Bessinet of Toledo as among America's most successful mediums. He said mediums are born "gifted." Climatic conditions affect their communications with persons living beyond the horizon and mediums, because of atmospheric surroundings, can work better in one country than in another.

Asked what gives the medium power to communicate with the spirits, Sir Arthur answered: "It is through the ectoplasm."

(Note—The Standard Dictionary describes "Ectoplasm" this way: "The denser outer protoplasmic layer of a unicellular organism or cell without a cell-wall, as of an amoeba or of certain ova." Isn't that clear?)

Sir Arthur's description of "ectoplasm" was: "This is a substance emanating from the medium. At first it is a vapor or a gas which becomes glutinous or putty-like and which in this state can be felt. I have felt it myself. It can be photographed. I have a number of photographs of it which I use in my lectures.

"I had it analyzed by Dr. Schrenk Notzing in Germany, and also by Parisian scientists. It has a physical basis and comes from the medium body. It has been found to contain phosphates, carbonates and sulphates and some other substances which have not been determined. It is only in ectoplasm that a spirit can materialize. A spirit passing through it becomes visible to the medium."

Sir Arthur proclaimed that he once saw his dead mother's face in the ectoplasm of a medium. This was a few months after her death. He added:

"There is not the slightest question about that. It was while I was in Australia. The face seemed as solid as in life. My mother wrote me a letter through a medium, signing a pet name which could not have been known to the medium."

Communication With Son."

Communication through a medium was also established by Sir Arthur with his son in 1919, a year after his death. He remarked: "There was no question about it having been my son, either."

Sir Arthur was of very serious mien all the while he talked about happenings beyond the ken of all earthly censors. He was not questioned about the most famous of all his own mediums and the one which has brought so much entertainment to millions—Sherlock Holmes. He seemed delighted that eight of the writers who interviewed him were women, remarking that when he came to America to lecture, 28 years ago, only one woman was among the newspaper folk who talked with him.

Incidentally, 28 years ago ago, when Sir Arthur didn't lecture on spirits, he recalled he was "permitted to have a bottle of whisky on the table" at his lectures. Sir Arthur's first lecture on "The New Revelation" will be given at Carnegie Hall tomorrow night.

GREGORY ZILBOORG'S VIEW OF OUR DRAMA

Here to Produce "Uncle Vanya" and "The Violins of Autumn" at Little Theater.

"You are the drama critic of the Post-Dispatch," Dr. Gregory Zilboorg identified a visitor to his room at Hotel Statler yesterday afternon, and then continued, with an accent of genuine compassion:

"How sorry I am for a critic in the Middle West. Never to see any good plays—nothing but 'commercial successes' maintained at financial loss on Broadway, for the sake of the prestige of a 'long New York run' when they go on the road; nothing but plays like 'The Woman of Bronze,' with Margaret Anglin—how can an actress appear in plays like that?"

"At least we have the pleasure of denouncing them," ventured his interlocutor.

"Yes," came the retort, "but what good is that? If the play were here for a month, or if the same company played here continuously, you could have an effect. But only a week, and then gone! It only means that in time the press agent stops calling on you."

"We can read good plays," interjected the visitor. "I've read 'Uncle Vanya.'"

The Russian authority on the theater was mollified, for Checkov's "Uncle Vanya" is one of the plays which he is here to produce at the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild, beginning April 18. The other is Ilya Sourgouchev's five-act drama, "The Violins of Autumn," which has never been given in America, and which Dr. Zilboorg has translated into English since his arrival in St. Louis.

Russian Theater at Present.

"The Russian Theater under the Bolsheviki?" he went on, in reply to a question. "Let me say first that I lived two years under the Bolshevik regime, and that I wish to divorce any political bitterness I may feel from the statements I will make. The facts are trenchant enough in themselves.

"The situation is this: the Russian Theater under the Bolsheviki has ceased to exist. It's in a peculiar state of martyrdom. Imagine actors at the Art Theater in Moscow with no food, no clothes, no shoes. There have been cases in which actors, a few moments before they had to go on the stage, fainted from starvation and exhaustion.

"The censorship which exists in every walk of life also includes art. I will mention two instances. Maxim Gorky, who can scarcely be suspected of being a counter-revolutionist, wrote a comedy, a cheerful piece, not about politics at all, but about provincial life in Russia. He represented the people as talking all the time, and as being so overorganized in committees, subcommittees and groups, that they could do nothing. The comic point came at the end, when one of the characters said: 'What we need is organization.' This play had one performance, and was suppressed.

"One of the biggest dramatists in Russia, Zamyatin, wrote a marvelous piece called 'The Day of St. Dominick.' It is a drama dealing with one of the darkest period of the sixteenth century inquisition, and has nothing to do with politics —save that it may reflect the mood in which Russian artists now find themselves. This play didn't have a single performance. The Bolsheviki were afraid that the martyrdom of the play would be identified with the dissenters against their rule, and the inquisitors with the Bolsheviki themselves.

No New Plays Being Given.

"Actually no new plays are being given; except a few propaganda pieces written by the Bolshevist Secretary of Education, Lounachiarsk. When the stage is used as a platform, the result is only propaganda, not art."

The speaker rose and strode back and forth in the room, lighting and relighting his pipe, and running a hand over his exuberant dark hair.

"I cannot refrain," he continued, and his brilliant black eyes sparkled, "from pointing out one of the weaknesses of the American drama. Whenever the theater is made a tool of certain groups and creeds, the theater must die. It was killed in Russia by political propaganda under the revolutionary dictatorship. Here, real drama is stifled under the dictatorship of commercial New York on the one hand, and on the other by various creeds which seek to turn the theater into an instrument for forwarding conventional morality.

Art of the Theater.

"The art of the theater is basically different from the art of social life. In the latter the ideal is democracy; in the former it is spiritual aristocracy. Under democracy, it is the middle class, the public, which rules; in art the rule of the middle class, of the public, destroys the loftiness of spiritual creative power.

"I sincerely believe that American drama has a lot to learn from Russian experience—not from Russian achievements, but from Russian failures. In democracy, our ideal is international peaceful co-operation, the abolition of national rivalry and national exclusiveness. In the art of the theater, national spirit is both the motive power and the solid ground by which and on which American drama can be built.

"This statement may appear singular in view of the fact that I have come to St. Louis to give two Russian and not two American plays. But that is not at all in conflict with my ideas regarding a national American drama. Both the plays I have chosen represent the characteristic Russian spirit; but both are also nearer to the newest American intellectual movement than the public may realize. I selected these particular plays because through them I have an ambition to show to a section of the American people how American dramatic art can find and assert itself, by digesting spiritually the best there is in Russian drama.

"Ibsen, for instance, is as much an integral part of Russian drama as of Scandinavian drama. It is my sincere belief that Checkov and many other similar Russian dramatists can tune the American theater to its expression. If national harmony were free, I am the Russian ... not a single Russian bold to say I fail to produce the theater Eugene O'Neill, and with plays ... O'Neill, though not enbig mature, is to my mind the best expression of the coming theater in America.

The Realities of Life.

"There is an interesting and paradoxical fact. We Russians started with great suffering, revolt and denunciation, and now we have come slowly to a point—despite the disastrous miscarriage of our social struggle—where we take life less tragically and more cheerfully. The Americans started with an exaggeration of cheerfulness, with the wholesale production of artificial and childlike carefree smiles. But the realities of life, especially as a result of the last few tragic years, have imposed themselves upon the consciousness of American intellectuals. By opposite roads, Americans and Russians have actually arrived at the same point—at reality. As was once so masterfully said by one of the heroes of Guy de Maupassant: 'Life after all is not as cheerful as they wish it to be, and not as tragic as they pretend it to be.'"

At this point Mrs. Zilboorg, who was born in Russia but has lived in America since she was a child, leaned back in her chair.

"You see," said Dr. Zilboorg, "I've worked so hard that my wife has got tired. We have a partnership. I haven't time to get weary, so she bears the fatigue for me." He went on, with his concluding words:

"As to the theaters of England and France, suffice it to say that they are different, are less hopeful than those of Russia and America. That is why I feel so much at home in this country. I feel that I am watching a process with which I was familiar in Russia; that I can learn through American failures the secret of Russian success, and through Russian failures the secret of the coming success of the drama in America.

Future of the American Theater.

"But the American theater will not derive from Broadway. If it is born at all it must be born in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Madison, Wis., Des Moines, Ia."

Dr. Zilboorg is a graduate in law of Petrograd University, and in medicine and philosophy of the Psycho-Neurological Institute of that city. He took an active part in the revolutionary movement under the Czar, and after the revolution of March, 1917, made a tour of Russia lecturing on the events in Petrograd. On his return he was appointed secretary to the Minister of Labor in the Kerensky Government, holding this post until the Bolshevist Revolution.

He has served as literary and dramatic critic in Russia, and edited a large weekly, The Theatrical World. He taught the history of dramatic art and the psychology of the stage in the dramatic studio of one of the oldest Russian playhouses, the Theatre Solvtsov, and was corresponding adviser of the Moscow Dramatic Theater.

Coming to this country in 1919, he produced Andreyeff's "The Beautiful Sabine Women," at the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York, and translated "He Who Gets Slapped," now running in that city. Dr. Zilboorg says he has talked himself all over the world, save Japan and India, and through 46 of the states of this country.

Deterioration of Young People Attributed to Lack of Adult Leaders

Percival Chubb Points Out Failure of Elders Is Responsible for Dropping Level of Morality and Intellectual Endeavor.

Lack of adult leadership was blamed by Percival Chubb, leader of the Ethical Society, for deterioration among young people, in his second address on the latter topic, at Sheldon Memorial Sunday.

In his address of the previous Sunday, Chubb set forth some of his reasons for concluding that young people had deteriorated, as compared with those of his earlier remembrance, and some external causes, such as crowded conditions of living and transportation. ..., he

Going on from this conclu... said in his second address ...riorated,

"If the young have have failed it is because their elders, teachers and ... in leadership. Parents, leaders in the ministers are ... uring the young great task of culture, and, more in character, discovering and fostering than that, among them. ... ing leaders ... ety can go forward with- ... "No ... petent, powerful leadership. ... out great periods of history are ... The ... of great leaders. The philosopher, Schopenhauer, says, 'Humanity should labor continually to produce great men; and this, and nothing else, is its task.' There is exaggeration here, but a salutary exaggeration.

"Few Peaks Above Tableland."

"Today we are not successful in this task. We suffer from a dearth of leaders, and from a decline in the belief in leadership. Measured by our leaders, we are petty folk. Few are the peaks of eminent men that rise above the tableland of average humanity. There is this paradox: The higher the peaks, the higher the tableland; they 'pull the general level up with them. On the other hand, it takes a high tableland to throw up the lofty heights. The conditions must be favorable to the emergence of greatness, and yet greatness is, in turn, the condition of a high average of power and worth in individuals. There must be a certain nobility in the followers to produce noble leaders.

Must Help Create Leaders.

"In other words, it is no good waiting for great leaders to appear. We must, as individuals, help to create them. What leadership is there in our lives? In this dearth of living leaders, do we seek the leadership of the great counselors and inspirers of the past? Do we lift up our eyes to the hilltops of human greatness? Someone has said that the first sign of a pow... intellect ... is that it knows from ... om to learn. To whom are ... 'masters.' Inquiring at ... searc... versity after another, whether ... students hold spontaneous discussions of the merits of contemporary poetry and philosophy, I have been told that no such practice prevailed there.

Lack of Dominating Figures.

"There is a lack, too of dominating figures to whom the youth can turn as sympathetic leaders. Former President Eliot of Harvard is perhaps the nearest approach to such a figure.

"This is not always so. I recall the period when the young spirits rallied to the banner of one leader after another—Carlyle, Ruskin, Emerson, Arnold, Pater, Morris, Ibsen, Tolstoy—or even Tennyson and Browning."

The speaker discussed the influence of Carlyle and Emerson on the thought of the young, then asked whether the influence of democracy, "or of a misreading of democracy, and especially the fallacy of equality," had obscured the necessity for a leadership of the best. He cited extracts from M. Ostrogorski's "Democracy and the Organization of Political Parties." These quotations included a discussion whether an elected representative, in a legislative body, should follow his own conscience and judgment or be "a mere piece of machinery."

"Have Eye for Excellence."

"How can we be leaders in our own sphere?" the speaker asked, and directed the question to parents, teachers and ministers. Parents, he said, should "dwell on excellence, have an eye for it, command it, expect it." and must themselves be exemplars. Books, pictures and music were mentioned as suitable auxiliaries in this training.

Teachers, he declared, must aim at personality building, and must exercise leadership not only in scholarship, but in formative power. Ministers and writers, he said, must keep alive the ideals, and should be able to dwell, at least once a week, upon a mountain top. Quoting Carlyle, he said, "How shall we get heroes? By being ourselves of heroic mind."

MASTER BUILDERS MAY START WORK THURSDAY

Carpenters to Be Offered Jobs at 95 Cents an Hour, Ignoring Union.

The Master Builders' Association, which recently requested union carpenters to accept a wage reduction of 30 cents an hour, to 95 cents, may counsel its members to resume operations with carpenters Thursday at 95 cents an hour, independent of any union agreement. A letter calling the building contractors to a meeting tomorrow contained this statement:

"Come prepared to pledge, if necessary, resumption of work Thursday morning at 95 cents an hour, with either union or nonunion men. The time for a passive policy seems to have passed. The secretary has about 125 applications from union and nonunion carpenters for work at 95 cents an hour. It is certain that a general resumption of work by our members at this wage will bring the carpenters to terms."

It was said that other carpenters have applied to the member contractors for work at 95 cents. The attitude of the Master Builders' Association has been that it prefers to deal with workmen through unions, by agreements, and it has maintained that attitude since April 1, when the lower wage was to have gone into effect. On that date some carpenters quit working rather than accept a reduction from $1.25, while other carpenters have been laid off by contractors. The association has urged its members to employ no carpenters at the higher rate.

The Arbitration Committee of the Master Builders' Association arranged to meet this afternoon with the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, which has indorsed the appeal for lower ... ter wages, and learn to what ... the Chamber of Commerce ... port the contractors'.

Some Interesting Bits From Congressional Record of Tilts in Both the House and Senate

What Senator Norris Actually Said About "the Genial Chief Justice Sticking His Legs Under Tables of the Idle Rich."

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Some interesting bits from the Congressional Record:

By Senator Overman (Democrat), of North Carolina (opposing the Judges' bill): Now I come to Missouri. The senior Senator from Missouri (Mr. Reed) came here and introduced an amendment to give him a Judge in his district. What is that but pie? He got his piece of pie here in the form of an amendment. That is the way the thing goes. It is a piece of pie and the chairman of the committee was opposed to it, and yet the Senate gave the Senator from Missouri a piece of pie because the Senator from Missouri asked for it.

By Senator Williams (Democrat) ... Mississippi: With the poss... exception of David Lloyd George ... Woodrow ... without any exception thinking Wilson stands today be... not only manhood and woman... world, as the ... of America, but of selfish man in greatest and most ... as during this political life, ... God's plan for ... coming of the peace of the world, and the upbuilding of the progress and civilization of the world.

By Representative Blanton (Democrat of Texas: I said that in our splendid offices we are supplied with a secretary and clerk, at an expense of $3200 per annum, with $480 bonus added; that we are supplied with the finest furniture and carpets, two typewriting machines, comb and brush, clothes brush, soap, hot and cold water, electric fans, and clean linen towels every day. I did not say that the rug on my office floor cost $500. I said that the carpets and rugs in some of the large suites of committee chairmen cost $500. And if you will look on page 363 of our clerk's last report you will see that the rugs and carpets for the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee rooms cost the Government $1124.80. And on page 368 you will see that for the carpet on this floor our Government paid $10,078. And on page 366 you will see that for each Wilton rug that goes into our ordinary offices the Government paid $191.75. In stores they would cost citizens much more.

By Representative Garner (Democrat) of Texas after Blanton's speech about various congressional perquisites): I have in my mind's eye • • • an individual, not a man—an individual, a creature, who is as common and base a liar as ever spoke a word of English in this country • • • I speak the sentiment of every member of the Texas delegation when I tell you that we hang our heads in shame and in humiliation every time Blanton of Texas is referred to as our colleague.

By Rep. Mondell (Republican) of Wyoming: Now, I have never inquired of the keeper of the stationery room as to whether he could secure for me a whisky flask. He is an accomodating gentleman, and if a member of Congress asked him to buy a whisky flask for him I suppose he would feel it his duty to do so. I should think it would be a reflection on the member to make such a request. I am not an adept in the great American game, and I have no knowledge whether any member ever asked the gentleman in charge of the stationery room to buy him a poker set. If a member desired a poker set—whatever that is—and was ready to pay for it, I suppose the accommodating young man who is in charge at the stationery room might feel disposed to buy it for him. I do not know just why, Mr. Speaker, it is deemed essential to drag that sort of thing into a discussion relative to the Congress.

By Rep. Mann (Republican) of Illinois (referring to member's stationery credit of $125 per session): The member can withdraw the entire $125 in cash if he chooses to do so. That is what I have usually done since I have been a member of the House. Then he pays for his stationery or other supplies of that character as he gets them in cash out of his own pocket. Having the right to withdraw the $125 in cash, he may obtain from the stationery room any kind of supplies which they will purchase for him, and it is then charged up to his $125, but when he does that he pays the other bills for his stationery out of pocket. It is in no sense graft.

By Senator Shields (Democrat) of Tennessee: I have understood that while I was absent from the chamber this morning the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. Sterling) as a matter of courtesy to the junior Senator From Kentucky (Mr. Ernst) offered an amendment to the pending bill to restore to the bill a provision for a Judge for the middle district of Tennessee. Tennessee has two Senators in this body and, if I may be allowed to say so, they are both able to take care of the affa... of Tennessee and to provide al... essary Judges.

By Representative C... (Republican) of Michigan ... Speaker, ... ord I am reported on page 3557 of th... to the "old ... as refer... at Delphi." The statue of Ap... the "old temple of reference ... hi," and I ask that the Apollo a... be made accordingly.

... Chairman (an oft-repeated ...ula): The gentleman asks unanimous consent to extend his remarks in the Record. Is there objection? (Pauses). The chair hears none.

By Representative Box (Democrat) of Texas (on the bill to authorize the deportation of aliens convicted of violating the Volstead or the narcotic acts): The idea of great hordes who have just arrived in the United States going about loaded down with booze and dope and hooch, which they are peddling!

By Representative Hill (Republican) of Maryland: The old remedy of the old French monarchy, which we thought had fallen with the fall of the Bastille, is now invoked to protect the native-born members of the Bootleggers' Union from foreign competition. I am inclined to think that this bill will pass, because I hold in my hand general order No. 17, I might say, of the generalissimo of the forces who back this bill, and for the first time today I am interested to notice that the Bootleggers' Union of America is fighting under the banner of the Anti-Saloon League of America. • • • In order that you will not miss your orders on this bill I will read the order of the generalissimo of the Bootleggers' Union of America, and the Anti-Saloon League of America. (Reads a letter by Wayne B. Wheeler urging passage of the bill.) Zero hour has struck, my friends. In a few minutes we will see the forces of the Anti-Saloon League and the forces of the Bootleggers' Union of America going over the top to pass this wonderful bill.

By Representative Blanton (Democrat) of Texas: I want to say, in justice to Wayne B. Wheeler, that if there is a man on God's green earth whom the bootleggers hate, it is Wayne B. Wheeler. He is the man who had stood in their way; he is the man who is trying to put them out of business; he is the man who is trying to protect the homes of this country.

By Representative Walsh (Republican) Massachusetts: Talk about the distinguished counsel of the Anti-Saloon League (Wheeler). Why, he is the fellow that made bootlegging popular. He is not considered an enemy by the bootlegger, either native-born or alien. I am very glad indeed to learn from the distinguished gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Cramton) that nobody has contributed to his campaign and that he, as he merits, has received the indorsement of his district. I trust he will continue to do so for years to come. However, there are campaigns in Michigan where the successful candidate cannot make that claim. I mention no names.

By Representative Mills (Republican) New York: In the name of truth, in the name of honor, in the name of common sense, was there ever a more outrageous proposition put before a legislative body? To grow grapes and sell them to the foreigner to manufacture wine out of is a legitimate business, but we must deport the foreigner as a criminal.

By Representative London (Socialist: This proposition merely indicates that the mentality of Congress has become exhausted. But there are some committees that, out of their fatigued brains, bring forth all sorts of inane, incoherent, monstrous, impossible things for us to contend with. I wish Congress would adjourn. (Applause.)

By Senator Moses (Republican) of New Hampshire (replying to Democratic charges that the President had violated the civil service laws): I do not care what pretense others may make. I make no pretense whatever. I think the administration should be surrounded by its friends. (Suspends remarks while a messenger delivers a message from the President.) I hope the message contains the names of a lot of good Republicans nominated for office.

Senator Stanley (Democrat) of Kentucky asked Senator New (Republican) of Indiana: Does the Senator regard the removal of a Democrat and the placing in his stead a good loyal Republican as a sufficient reason for the change?

Senator New (replying): It certainly would be to me.

DOCTOR READY TO OPEN PSYCHIATRIC CLINIC

New York Man and Staff Will Demonstrate How Juvenile Delinquency May Be Prevented.

Dr. V. V. Anderson of New York, director of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, came to St. Louis today with a staff of four workers to set up, for the next six months or a year, a psychiatric clinic to demonstrate how a study of the causes of juvenile delinquency may be a guide for the prevention of delinquency.

The National Committee recently come into possession of a sum of money for such demonstrations and St. Louis is the first city in which the work has been undertaken. The clinic here will be attached to the Juvenile Court, but is open to all parents with children whose persistent misconduct would suggest an underlying physical, mental or environmental cause.

To Study Each Child.

"The National Committee," Dr. Anderson said, "has determined by careful surveys that from 6 to 10 per cent of the public school children of the United States exhibit disorders of conduct of such a nature as to come frequently to the attention of the school authorities. The clinic stands prepared to make careful, intensive studies of the individual child and provide a physical, mental and social diagnosis which will disclose what conditions contribute to its behavior.

"We will be prepared to furnish the Judge of the Juvenile Court with such a diagnosis on any child that comes before him, together with a recommendation of the adjustments necessary to best serve the purpose of the court, which is correction of delinquency. Courts long have considered the deed from a legal standpoint. A psychiatric clinic makes it possible to consider the child from a medical standpoint."

Personnel of Staffs.

Besides Dr. Anderson, the staff of the clinic to be set up here will consist of Dr. Thomas Heldt, psychiatrist; E. C. Wickman, psychologist, and Miss Mildred Scoville, chief psychiatric investigator, with another investigator to come on later.

BIRTH RATE IN FRANCE SHOWN TO DEPEND ON TRADE STATUS

Statistics Indicate Population Fluctuation in Reflection of Commercial Conditions.

(Copyright, 1922.)
Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, April 11.—That the birth rate in France depends on economic conditions—rising when trade prospers and declining when it falls—is indicated by statistics just published. These are so alarming that the cry of a 'national peril" again is raised.

In 1919, when trade was booming, the number of marriages increased steadily and the birth rate rose rapidly until the climax of economic prosperity was reached in France at the beginning of 1920. Since then the number of marriages and the birth rate have continued to fall. Now the births in France outnumber the deaths by only 60,000, while in Germany there are 600,000 more births than deaths.

Prof. Variot of the Children's Hospital, founder of the free milk dispensary and president of the Repopulation Committee, warns the country of its danger and declares that if the situation is not improved, France will have become a nation of 25,000,000 in 40 years. Prof. Variot attributes the fall in the birth rate to economic depression, to the business crisis, which dissuades people from marrying, to the high cost of living and to the lower standard of public morals.

In one direction Prof. Variot says there is a ray of hope. The fight against infant mortality has been successful in reducing the death rate from 18 per cent for children of one year to 11 per cent. But he urges the stern repression of criminal practices and of birth control. In many quarters, he says, France's declining birth rate is given as a reason which may tempt Germany to make war on her again in the near future.

Judge Barred From Irish Court.

BELFAST, April 11.—Armed Republican soldiers posted outside the Lifford, Donegal, courthouse, yesterday refused admission to the Donegal County Court Judge when he arrived to open the crown session. The soldiers told the Judge that only Republican courts could be held. The Judge departed.

It was spo... sored by a part of the "dear peepul," not necessarily a major part, but as a matter of fact a private part having no official connection with the Federal Government. It is all right for us to "view with alarm" as we gaze on the smiling faces of the enforcement officers sometimes depicted in the movies engaged in the business of breaking open barrels of liquor, but who will say what emotions may not be pent up in their hearts of oak. "They are more to be pitied than censured." If they do break primal laws it is the "dear peepul" who are making law-breakers of them.

As for Federal empire or states rights, as matters stand it seems to the writer that the federalists have the best points for argument (while there is no denying that your editorial was a powerful presentation of facts). In Sunday's edition you quote Thomas Jefferson. We have access to a hundred of years of hindsight that Thomas Jefferson could only see "as through a mist," when he expressed the sentiments quoted. Who will say that America stood still for a hundred years?

When the people give credit where credit is due they won't go empty-handed to Washington.

The Federal Government should set an example worthy of emulation by the states. It should show how naughty it is to use militia as strike-breakers or morale-breakers and the evil consequences that might result from exploiting helpless women and children. The idea that misused centralized power would in any way menace human liberty to the writer's mind is pure poppycock. History shows that it is easier to smash a monster with one head than it is to smash a many-headed "varmint."

Another Experience.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A FRIEND of mine who attends Washington University has had this experience: He was going out to eat and as the night was rather cool he buttoned his coat around his neck. Presently he was accosted by two uniformed patrolmen who stopped him and asked him if he had a gun and at the same time started to search him. One of them felt his pocket knife and wanted to know what it was and he told him.

Now this man is just an ordinary citizen and to have a police system that can pull off stuff like that in these times seems ridiculous. I cannot find anything to justify such a procedure. VAN.

The Sokolow Reception.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

AS chairman of the Keren Hayesod (Palestine Foundation Fund) Commission for St. Louis, I beg to thank you and your colleagues for your generous treatment of the Sokolow reception, which took place in St. Louis on April 4 and 5. I can assure you that the Jews of this city were, indeed, proud to find their great leader given such kind consideration and such large space in the columns of your paper.

I know I am justified in saying that the Christians, too, are interested in the question of Palestine. The press of the world is filled with all sorts of articles on Palestine in general and the Zionist movement in particular, and the Christians have shown a marked interest, particularly in the Anglo-Saxon countries. There are certain anti-Semitic forces which are attempting to undermine the authority of the Balfour declaration. We are too weak to fight them alone. We need the moral support of the Christian world. American public opinion is of tremendous importance at the present time, because of America's position in the world.

To crystalize American sentiment in favor of a Jewish homeland in Palestine, we need a sympathetic press. We are, indeed, grateful that your paper has manifested extreme sympathy for our cause on all occasions. GUSTAVE CYTRON, Chairman Keren Hayesod Commission for St. Louis.

Think Rule Unjust.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A NEW rule at the Koch Hospital is that visitors are not allowed to bring the patients any ice cream, cake or any home-made edibles.

I consider that an unjust rule and cannot understood why a poor, unfortunate patient should be deprived of having such little pleasures.

I am writing this to the Post-Dispatch in the hope that something can be done to countermand that rule so as to give these poor unfortunates a little pleasure and joy during the summer.

THE TASK AT GENOA.

In an eloquent plea for the recognition throughout Europe of the new source of political power—the will of the people—which has superseded the will of the monarch or the ruling class, Ferrero, the Italian historian and political philosopher, makes the pregnant remark that "of all the elements of power force is the weakest."

It was substantially from this standpoint that Pope Pius XI urged good will and mutual co-operation for peace and prosperity and deprecated the "forest of bayonets" in dealing with European problems and that Lloyd George declared that the one thing needful for Europe's rehabilitation is peace and insisted that the great task of the Genoa conference was putting an end to "snarling" and establishing peace and friendly relations as the only sure basis of reviving trade and prosperity.

One of the fundamental conditions of participation in the Genoa conference is the guarantee of peace, the pledge not to attack other nations or attempt to undermine or overthrow the political institutions of other nations. Hands off is the rule. The acceptance of this rule and its observance will go far to establish good will and confidence, the lack of which is now the cause of friction, continued business stagnation and the fear which maintains the "forest of bayonets."

The Italian Premier stressed this point and to all appearance the minds of the delegates are one on the subject of peace. Reality, however, will govern the conclusion. The test of the sincerity of the nations will be found in the actual working out of the problems confronting the conference. Will ambitions, jealousies and fears be overcome by a united effort to establish and guarantee, so far as it is humanly possible, peaceful relations and helpfulness?

Force is the weakest element of power in both internal and external affairs. Its accomplishments are merely temporary and illusive. Public opinion is the strongest element of power. ## SIR ARTHUR AND SHERLOCK.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes, has come to the United States with a walloping psychic message. Let others ponder hopelessly on "the bourne from which no traveler returns," "the mysterious sea whose shore the foot of one who comes hath never pressed." Sir Arthur knows all about it. He knows a great deal more about the next world and how he is going to fare there than he does about what would happen to him if banished to certain parts of this earth—Asia, for example, or Africa.

Everything is as it should be on the other side, he says. The unrighteous, to be sure, do not immediately come into their heritage. They have to serve a probation until fitted for the higher estate. The proposition is not debatable, we are informed. It is, so to speak, a cinch. And in 50 years, Sir Arthur predicts, everybody on this inferior plane will be as familiar with the transstygian territory as the average St. Louisan is today familiar with Grand and Olive.

Old-time readers of Sir Arthur may or may not be impressed with the author as a man of the other world, but they will unanimously grieve to learn that Sherlock Holmes has had his last adventure, that the final chapter in the faithful Watson's book of reminiscences has been written. But though dead the great detective, seemingly, has not lost all contact with the material. It is the whimsical spirit of Sherlock Holmes, possibly, that is spoofing Sir Arthur.

A CRISIS IN IRELAND.

Civil war in Ireland is inevitable and imminent, according to Michael Collins, head of the provisional government, unless the opposition led by De Valera changes its "tone and tactics." The news from Ireland substantiates the statement. For example, Mr. Collins in his present movements is obliged to resort to much the same strategy and stealth he employed in the ugliest black-and-tan times. Again, the Republican army grows steadily more insolent in its mutinous attitude and seizure of the Government and the establishment of a military dictatorship is the ultimate coup.

It is evident, too, that Collins has given up trying to win De Valera over to sanity by reason and persuasion. He charges De Valera with having become "a dangerous despot," who, "while posing as a lover of liberty and shouting the name of liberty, is trampling its form underfoot." American public opinion, we believe, will hold this characterization of De Valera to be true.

That civil war in Ireland will bring England back cannot intelligently be questioned. World sentiment would approve, might even petition, such intervention. Having returned to Ireland, England would stay in Ireland and in doing so would be upheld by world opinion.

De Valera, it must be assumed, does not realize the tragic mistake he is making or appreciate in full the consequences. He has, to be sure, spoken of Irishmen fighting, not a common foe, but one another, but does he comprehend the enormity and horror of such a war? And is there any doubt about De Valera's misunderstanding of American sentiment? Has he not been misled by perfervid resolutions of Irish organizations in the United States? Is there any doubt that thoughtful American citizens of Irish birth, lineage or sympathy are watching De Valera's destructive course with gravest misgiving? Can there be any doubt that if De Valera succeeds in overturning the provisional government, putting Ireland violently on record as refusing the liberty and dignity and dominion of a Free State, that American sentiment will have been alienated and the American source of financial supply for Irish warfare against the returned British army will have largely dried up?

ATTEMPTS to defend New York against the charge that she is a low-brow city by showing that on a single day recently 70,000 New Yorkers attended concerts, operatic performances, lectures and recitals, or else visited museums, art galleries and libraries, has aroused William Allen White, who tells us in Judge that while it may be true that one person in a hundred in New York City each day patronizes some intellectual diversion, "the other ninety and nine are out on the primrose path," or, as the old song used to say, are "out on the hills away, away from the gates of gold."

Are the drys watchful? Read this from one of their newspapers in Missouri: "Antiprohibition propaganda creeps in where all others dassent try. In the Saturday Evening Post this week, Earl Derr Biggers makes a poor hard-working mother says of her worthless husband: 'But your pa—seems like he gets worse. I thought maybe this here prohibition would make things easier, but he gets it somewhere, and he pays 10 times what he use to. Awful stuff, too—it'll kill him yet.'

"Would the mother be any better off if the prohibition restrictions were let down and the stuff released openly at the old prices? It doesn't take much imagination to picture what would happen if such an opportunity were suddenly offered to all the bootleg devotees in this country."

We find in the Kansas City Star this modern treatment of the New Madrid earthquake, which is usually described to us in the terms of 1811: "The quake was not only a big event locally, but it shook up a very considerable part of the entire continent and placed the name of New Madrid in the scientific chronicles of the world. It was the longest in duration and the most remarkable in its geological and topographical disturbances of any earthquake ever recorded on this side of the water.

• • •

"Though 111 years have elapsed since the pioneers of the wilderness of Southeast Missouri were terrorized and dispersed by this epochal cataclysm, historic and scientific interest in the event has rather increased than abated with the lapse of time and in recent years Missouri's big earthquake has acquired considerable evidential importance among scientists as a corroboration of the latest—and now most generally accepted theory—as to the origin of quakes: the earth-creeping theory. This theory, propounded by Dr. Lawson of the University of California, is, in brief, that earthquakes are not due to volcanic or local structural disturbances, but are brought about by the fact that the entire crust of the earth, by reason of the fact that the poles do not run true to the earth's axis, is continually engaged in a warping, creeping process northward. The north pole describes a circle of about 60 feet every time the earth revolves upon its axis—a deviation that sets the soil and the rocks and even the mountains and the valleys in a slow, imperceptible, but steady, motion northward. When this crowding process reaches a certain point of extreme tension something has to give way, and the result is a tearing open of the earth's crust and a consequent lateral movement, which the scientist calls an elastic rebound and the man in the street an earthquake."

Good! Ten days ago we thought Kansas City had gone back to 1492, but here she is blithely trotting beside people like Einstein!

R. R.: Can you tell me and the rest of the puzzled street car patrons what your opinion is of the new signs the United Railways Co. has on the front platform of its street cars? It seems to me that the word "To" is rather more a threat than it is superfluous. Are they going to raise the fare and have bargain sales on metal tickets, or are they going to order their conductors to refuse to accept real money as fare and compel us by law, enforced by our Hon. THE day is ending,
The coal pile descending,
The pipes are frozen,
The flivver dead.
The town is drier,
The rents are higher—
The day is ending,
As I have said.

The snow recommences,
And our expenses
Remain on the level
Like carfare, and then
From out the alleys
The robber sallies,
To lurk in the shadows
And frisk timid men.

Burglars are stealing,
While church folk are kneeling;
The landlord is scolding,
And vows he will sell.
The housewife is wailing
At prices prevailing—
And Youth bills and coos

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

NATIONAL PATERNALISM.

From Address of J. K. Shields in U. S. Senate.

WHEN the American colonies won their independence from Great Britain there were 13 separate, independent and sovereign states. They were not separately strong enough to resist foreign foes, and, for the common defense and to promote the welfare of all, they formed a Union and created the Government of the United States of America, a republic composed of sovereign states. They adopted a Constitution by which they delegated to the Federal Government all the powers necessary to carry out the purposes for which it was created and by express provisions of that Constitution all other powers of government not so delegated, with certain restrictions, were reserved "to the several states and to the people." The powers of the Federal Government extended to all foreign affairs, the national defense, commerce between the states and foreign nations, with the power through Congress to legislate and impose taxes for these purposes. The states and their people reserved to themselves the power to control all of their internal and domestic affairs through and by their local governments, fully preserving the right of local and self-government which our forefathers cherished above all things. The proceedings of the constitutional convention show the determination of the several states that there should be no interference with the integrity of their governments in local concerns. There are in the United States groups of men, some in high places, who would have all power concentrated in the Federal Government. They are the successors of the old Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, who would have destroyed democracy and government by the people but for Thomas Jefferson and his devoted followers.

There is no proposition to effect this concentration by constitutional amendment or direct legislation, but it is being effected by numerous measures assiduously and persistently pressed, which inevitably will lead to the control of all local and internal affairs of the states and of the people by the Congress of the United States, exercised chiefly through the multitudinous departments and bureaus created and established at Washington, under rules and regulations made by them having the force of law, presided over by chiefs and clerks, in whose selection the people have no voice and who have no intimate knowledge of local conditions and the interests and necessities of the people, often acting hastily and unwisely and always autocratically. Laws are constantly proposed which, if passed, will collectively produce these intolerable conditions.

The states, if this continues, will gradually be deprived of all their powers and reduced to mere provinces or geographical divisions, with no more dignity or power than our counties, and sovereignty will have passed from the people. If these un-American and unconstitutional measures are not checked, the bureaus at Washington will be directing and controlling our schools, the marriage relations, boards of health and sanitation, internal commerce, banks, our markets, highways, railroads and other public utilities, labor, industries of all kinds, primary and general elections, production, water-power development and every other thing of local concern now legislated for by our general assemblies and regulated by our county and municipal authorities.

Bills are proposed, and some put through Congress, which years ago would have provoked protests from the Governor, the General Assembly and the people of every state in the Union because of their violation of the rights of the states. It is now for the people to determine whether they wish to maintain the state governments and the control of their local affairs through officers elected by and responsible to them or allow them to be usurped by the Federal Government and administered by appointed clerks unknown to them. I have no time to go into these measures, but I have not exaggerated what is going on or what may eventually happen to our state governments and the people.

UNDIMINISHED CHARMS OF MISS BILLIE BURKE

After Seven Years' Absence, She Appears in Tarkington's "Intimate Strangers."

BY RICHARD L. STOKES.

THE pretty wit of Mr. Booth Tarkington and Miss Billie Burke's undiminished charms serve to win a popular triumph for a rather tenuous comedy, entitled "Intimate Strangers," which was disclosed yesterday evening at the American before a numerous, brilliant and delighted audience. It was Miss Burke's first appearance here in seven-and-a-half years; in the interval she became the wife of Florenz Ziegfeld Jr., who was present last night, and the mother of Miss Patricia Ziegfeld, aged 5 1-2. "Intimate Strangers" is described as tenuous neither because of its subject nor its technique. Its theme is that sad autumnal period of life when the music of spring and summer still reverberates in the heart and the silence of winter has not yet fallen; although the playwright characteristically shirks the problem at the end.

In technique, the comedy is Barrian; that is to say, there is scarcely any "action," and the interest is borne along by cleverness of talk. Those who regard language as a mere intellectual instrument than rapiers and sword-play, one more difficult to wield and requiring a subtler attention from the audience, will accept as a happy omen for American drama the fact that "Intimate Strangers" is able to exert such unflagging entertainment.

Hoosier Point of View.

It is in point of view that the play becomes thin and artificial. With a subject capable of profound insight and comedy may be profound—the author dares little more than flit over the surface. In Hoosier drama, the characters can venture no deeper than a very delicate unconventionality, with the result that the faces are masks and the persons lay-figures. It was interesting to calculate how a Russian or a Frenchman would have handled the same theme.

The play opens in a desolate railway junction in up-State New York, where two travelers have been stranded through the agency of tornadoes, washouts and sun spots. They are Miss Isabel Stewart, a lady farmer, and William Ames, a lawyer, from New York City. In their plight they strike up an acquaintance, an intimacy and then a tenderness, resulting in a proposal from the attorney.

He has been fascinated by Miss Stewart's old-fashioned ideas and manners, so different from those of modern flappers—"brazen hussies in boys' breeches," as he calls them, "with flasks of home-made gin in their hip-pockets." Wrapped in their coats, the couple lie down side by side on the station benches to sleep during the night.

Enters the Grandniece.

In the morning comes one of those selfsame hussies in breeches who has driven in a motor car to rescue Miss Stewart. This raucous maiden is, to the consternation of Ames, introduced by Miss Stewart not as her niece, but as her grandniece. Thus is posed the question which bewilders Ames until the last moment of the play, towit: "How old is Aunt Isabel?"

The party drive to Aunt Isabel's home, and there, for three acts, that lively spinster proceeds to mock and flatter her suitor concerning her antiquity. She presents as her niece a gray-haired maiden lady; she disputes on the miracles of youth which can be achieved at the color table; and speaks as of personal knowledge concerning the Tilden-Hayes controversy, and the Philadelphia Exposition in 1876. In a collection of family daguerreotypes she points out an uncle who was an officer—no, not in the Civil War; the Mexican War. The distracted lawyer finally sets out in a frantic but vain hunt for the family Bible, which should contain a record of birthdays.

The grandniece, Florence, shows a disposition to make love to Ames, while Florence's sophomoric suitor, Johnnie White, seeks to transfer his allegiance to Aunt Isabel. At the end it appears that Aunt Isabel's father, at the age of 65, married a second time, and that Aunt Isabel, despite her elderly niece and 19-year-old grandniece, is about 28 years old. Thus all ends happily.

Despite a slight matronly cast, Billie Burke is the same ingenue she always was, carrying off her part with coquetry, archness and light comedy. No one can make prettier pouts, or trip about more graciously. Alfred Lunt has a talent for portraying the fatuous male, inextricably bewildered under expert feminine handling. Florence Howard and Glenn Hunter are excellent as Florence and Johnnie, who are no other than the familiar terrible infants of "Seventeen" and "Clarence," redrawn on a new canvas.

FUN-MAKING IS ALL THEY DO AT ORPHEUM

Performers Give a Joint Number at End, After Fashion of Revues.

THERE is a sameness about the acts on this week's bill at the Orpheum Theater, but it is a sameness of lively fun-making. Songs, dancing and jokes; jokes, dancing and songs, are in nearly every one of the offerings. At the end comes a novel and welcome ensemble of the performers, made possible by the fact that this group of acts has been together for most of the season.

This final act helps to remove the difference which ordinarily exists between vaudeville and the higher-priced revues. In vaudeville, usually, when a performer finishes his act, the audience sees no more of him or her, whereas in revue the same entertainers recur throughout the program. The co-operative fun at the end of the Orpheum's bill is directed by George McKay, a principal in one of the previous acts.

By way of carrying coals to Newcastle, the first act on the bill brings mules to Missouri. The orchestra needs accident insurance during this act. Bob Carleton, once of the Great Lakes Naval Revue, and author of "Ja-Da," introduces Julia Ballew, a slender and red-haired young person who helps in his newer songs. Neal Abel, who escaped the fatal gift of beauty, tells negro anecdotes amusingly, and displays various phases of what the playbill calls his "Mobile Face." It might serve equally well as a Birmingham or Savannah face.

J. Rosamond Johnson's negro sextet is at its best in spirituals, but gives most of its time to jazz. Jed Dooley, who enters on a unicycle, jests and twirls a rope in Will Rogers fashion. The three Mosconi Brothers and a sister, billed as the chief attraction, give a few minutes of dashing and breathless dancing, which was very well received by last night's audience. George McKay, after an exchange of raillery with his team partner, Ottie Ardine, stays for the final hoop-juggling act and for the ensemble, already mentioned, which is termed the "Orpheum Afterpiece," and which the audience found worth waiting for.

The cast, entirely of men, was recruited from the Chinatowns all over America, many of them playing feminine roles. The title of the work, as translated by Henry C. Leong of Philadelphia, means "To Gather." He said that the piece was all about revolutions.

OWNERS SHOCKED AT DESCRIPTIONS OF HOMES

One Suggests That "Crumbling Ruins" in Vandeventer Place Be Exhibited to Tourists.

Residents of Vandeventer place sat fairly aghast in Circuit Judge Hall's court yesterday, as descriptions of their homes were read into the court record, in which the adjectives "dilapidated," "cracked," "antiquated" and "crumbling" played the most prominent parts.

The descriptions were read by S. T. G. Smith, attorney for Mr. and Mrs. John Mahon, proprietors of a hospital for incurables at No. 6 Vandeventer place, which residents of the district are seeking to have ousted.

Charles E. Huff, an architect, took the photographs of the homes and made the investigation on which the descriptions were based. The residences were taken singly and given individual description by Smith. Many of the residents whose homes were described in uncomplimentary fashion were in court. Several of the women left the courtroom as the descriptions were being read.

Refused to Sit There.

"I refuse to sit in there and listen to those villifications against our homes," Mrs. Thomas K. Niedringhaus, 79 Vandeventer place, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I think it is terrible. And to think, they are trying to put market values on our homes. They forget the sentiment and affection we who have lived there 25 years and longer have for the place."

Another one of the women who left the courtroom remarked that, after listening to the description of the residences, she was firmly convinced a "rubber-neck wagon" should be started to take tourists through the place and show them the "ruins," after the fashion of displaying the ruins of the Coliseum in Rome.

Descriptions of the residences, as they had been prepared by the architect, gave estimates that the various houses had been erected 35 to 50 years ago, that bricks and stones in them were loose and weather-beaten, that gutters on some of the houses had rusted away, that paint was peeling from some of them, that walls were cracked, foundations settling and, in one instance, he noted that the front steps were about to fall down.

The architect had estimated that some of the residences in the place could not be reproduced now for less than from $85,000 to $130,000. In an offer of proof, Saturday, as has been told, Attorney Smith read into the record that not more than $10,000 could be obtained for any house in the place now.

3-Year Search for Tenant Cited.

Peyton T. Carr, 62 Vandeventer place, who, as one of the trustees of the Kehlor estate, which owns the property at No. 6 in which the hospital is located, was one of the defendants in the suit, testified the residence had been leased to Mrs. Mahon in which to run the hospital, after efforts had been made for three years to find some one to take the house.

On cross examination, Carr testified that a hospital next door to his home would not be offensive to him, and that he would not object to ambulances going up and down in Vandeventer place, so long as they did not "block his driveway." Carr said that at the time the lease with Mrs. Mahon was signed, he did not tell anyone that the object was to test the restrictions of Vandeventer place.

Efforts were made by Attorney Smith to show that property along the Grand avenue end of Vandeventer place would increase greatly in value if restrictions were removed. He made an offer of proof, after witnesses were not permitted to testify, that it could be shown the lots at the grand avenue end, each of them 145 feet by 200 feet deep, would sell for $1000 a foot if restrictions were removed. With the restrictions in force neither place could be sold for more than $10,000, Smith said in the offer of proof.

Judge Hall, at this juncture, remarked that while it was true these two pieces of property would be enhanced greatly in value, if restrictions were removed, yet this would not be generally true within the place.

At the conclusion of yesterday's session, Judge Hall took the testimony under advisement. Each side has said it will appeal if it loses.

INQUIRY ORDERED INTO DEATH OF CAMPANELLA

East St. Louis Board of Fire and Police Commissioners to Take Up Case Thursday.

The East St. Louis City Council yesterday voted unanimously to have the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners make an investigation of alleged police "third degree" or torture methods in the case of John Campanella, a prisoner, who died in his cell at the East St. Louis police station the night of March 25. The police reported that Campanella hanged himself, and a coroner's jury returned a verdict conforming to this report.

The question of Campanella's death was brought before the City Council, which is composed of the city's five commissioners, by Commissioner of Public Buildings M. J. Whalen, who is of the opinion that Campanella died from injuries suffred in beatings administered by the police to exact a confession of murder, or hanged himself in desperation induced by great suffering.

What Autopsy Disclosed.

It will be remembered that an autopsy performed by Dr. Downey L. Harris, 4946 Parkview place, St. Louis, former city bacteriologist, who had been employed by Campanella's widow for this purpose, revealed severe bruises on the body and head and that death resulted from oedema of the brain, which could have been caused by the bruises on the head. Death, the autopsy disclosed, was not caused by hanging, as there was not the slightest evidence of strangulation or congestion of blood, which would have been marked, Dr. Harris said, if hanging had been the cause of death.

The City Council's action yesterday will be reported to the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, which will meet Thursday night, prepared to start the inquiry. This body will hear witnesses and consider all information pertaining to Campanella's imprisonment and death, and report the result of its findings back to the Council.

Members of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners are George Roe, president, a salesman; John Shannon, railroad track foreman, and Dr. F. C. Little.

Family Left Destitute.

Mrs. Josie Campanella, the widow, has four children, Tony, 8 years old; Fifi, 5; John, 10, and Frank, 13. Her husband had been a coal miner, but gave up that work when he was injured by falling slate about a year ago, and with compensation money opened a rooming house and soft drink saloon at 2005 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis. A man was killed in this place the evening of March 20, and it was in the investigation of this crime that Campanella was arrested. He declared that two strange men did the killing.

Adams Will Pitch Against Cards Tomorrow; 26 Browns Go to Chicago for Inaugural

Sherdel to Oppose Pirates in Opening Game of Season at Sportsman's Park—Shocker to Work for Fohlies Against Urban Faber of the White Sox.

By J. Roy Stockton.

With confidence inspired by their string of spring victories, and sharpened especially by their two Sportsman's Park triumphs over the Cardinals, highly respected opponents, the Browns departed last night for Chicago where they will test their prowess in a four-game series with the White Sox, inaugurating the American League season tomorrow afternoon.

Equally cocky were the Cardinals, who prepared to open the 1922 National League campaign tomorrow at the local bailiwick, with the Pittsburg Pirates as the opposition. Prevented by the rain from working out, the Rickeymen held a long pow-wow indoors. Pittsburg batters, pitchers and strong points were discussed and plans were formulated for the Knot-Holers' attack tomorrow, in so far as a baseball attack can be planned in advance.

Manager Fohl and his 26 Browns, who were accompanied by Coach Leifield and Secretary Johnson, felt that they were fit for any foe. Not a man was ailing, not an arm was sore and Urban Shocker was all proud and ready to pitch the opening game of the season. In the squad of players were 11 pitchers, seven infielders, five outfielders and three catchers. Only one man now remains to be disposed of to reduce the squad of Fohlies to the prescribed 25. Business Manager Bob Quinn and Phil Ball, owner, will depart for Chicago tonight, to see the series.

Fournier Out for a Week.

Regret was expressed in the camp of the Rickeymen that two men still were on the sick list, but the Knot-Holers also found much in the games with the Browns to cheer them. Jack Fournier's infected leg was reported slightly worse and it was said he might be out of hostilities for several days. Lavan, the other invalid, is recovering strength rapidly and if the field is dry and firm he probably will open the season at short tomorrow. However, Toporcer has played such a great game this spring that Lavan's absence would not detract much from the team's power. Fournier, however, is needed, particularly his fighting spirit and his batting punch.

Bill Doak's ability to go five innings as well as he did Sunday was considered cause for much rejoicing. It developed, by the way, that Bill's appearance was the result of Rickey's determination not to wait as long this year for Bill to get ready as he did in 1921.

"Doak was going to pitch five innings Sunday, even if the Browns got a 10-run lead," said Rickey this morning. "Last year he lost four games for the Cardinals before he hit his stride and it was late in May before he won his first game. If he is going to start with four defeats this year they will be April games. Doak is going to pitch the Thursday game against Pittsburg. He is too good a man to be idle as long as he was last season."

Gainer to Play Tomorrow.

Rickey said he made the Browns games experiments in more ways than one. For instance, it was decided beforehand that Barfoot was to relieve Doak, in order that the recruit might see action with an enormous crowd present. Whether he faltered or not, it was sure to do him good. Bottomly would not have been used at first if the game had been a regular league contest, Rickey asserted. However, Jim had been playing excellent baseball and Rickey wanted to see him perform under fire. But tomorrow Del Gainer, an experienced first sacker, will guard first base.

"Don't misunderstand me, though," Rickey finished. "I wanted to win those games and the Cardinals tried their hardest. But we did use men who would not have been in there if a championship had been at stake. The contests were so close that a hit or two could have changed each game. Fournier might have furnished that blow. At any rate, I know I've never been able to pit my full strength against the Browns."

Heine Mueller "Hit by a Lump."

Heine Mueller, who pulled a tendon running out his double in Sunday's game, still was bothered by the injury yesterday. Heine, in describing his accident said, typically: "I was running around putty fast and joost as I rounded first a lump hit me in the leg. It was a big lump, too, and I had to fall down when I got to second."

"Are you sure that lump wasn't in your neck, Heine," someone asked.

"Say," countered the Grand Duke of the Gravois, "you don't ketch lumps in the neck from hitting those kinds of doubles."

As Jack Smith is in a slump Clif Heathcote probably will play right tomorrow. He is a first-string fielder right now, fighting for the job. He will lead off for the Rickeymen, Gainer will bat second and the batting order then will be as usual, with Mann in center in case Mueller is unable to play.

Riviere Sent to Milwaukee.

The Cardinal squad was reduced yesterday when Tink Riviere was released on option to the Milwaukee club of the American Association; Infielder Adams sent to Wichita Falls without strings and Hunter and Perry given unconditional releases. Riviere objected to the transfer and Rickey spent two hours trying to persuade Tink that it would be better to go where he could work regularly than to do a year in the bull ring, with only occasional work.

The Pirate regulars arrived this morning from Dyersburg, Tenn., where they engaged the Minniapolis team in an exhibition. The second squad reached St. Louis yesterday and a workout will be held today at Sportsman's Park.

Without Catcher Schmidt who has been unable to arrange terms with Barney Dreyfuss, the Pirates are weak behind the bat. Their pitchers, who rank on paper with the best in the business, are said to be in excellent condition.

Adams to Oppose Sherdel.

Babe Adams, who has pitched opening games for a dozen years, probably will oppose Sherdel tomorrow. The veteran Pirate was hit in the thumb by a batted ball last Thursday, but it is expected that he will have recovered by tomorrow. Max Carey, veteran outfielder, has been shifted to left field, probably to save his legs, which have seen long service, and asle to give Bigbee, a fleet-footed fly chaser, a chance to range in the larger middle garden.

The Pirates, who were first last year until the waning days of the season, again are expected to be a strong pennant factor this campaign, and the series therefore will be an important one for the Rickeymen. Third is the lowest position that any critic has assigned to the Pittsburg tribe in pre-season predictions.

Baseball Heads Analyze Pennant Races on Eve of 1922 Campaign

By John A. Heydler,
President of the National League.

"The National League will open its forty-seventh pennant race Wednesday, in possession of world's championship honors and well-balanced clubs.

"At least five clubs in our league have a chance to win the 1922 pennant and, since nothing is certain in baseball, any one of the other three may spring a surprise and confound the experts.

"The New York club, of course, as the winner of the world's series last year, carries its strength and prestige into the new season. But it cannot be taken for granted that the team will repeat. Boston, Pittsburg and St. Louis, on the showing in 1921, must be given a chance. If Brooklyn gets off to a good start its pitching staff will carry the club far."

By B. B. Johnson,
President of the American League.

"Since the early expansion movement of the American League there have been few years when the organization approached a championship season with so many real contenders for the flag.

"It is conceded everywhere that New York and Cleveland teams again will measure strength for the prize, and those who have followed closely the much-improved St. Louis Browns and Washington Senators, are firm in the declaration both clubs will prove worthy opponents of the leaders in last year's race.

"The Detroit club is a problem with its new factors, and may challenge the respect and fear of the teams in the first flight.

"Boston, with its batting strength, will prove no mean opponent, and it can be safely asserted the Chicago White Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics have been measurably bettered."

U. S. Soccer Meeting May 22.

Winton E. Barker, chairman of the Western Committee of the National Challenge Cup Competition, yesterday received word that the ninth annual meeting of the United States Football Association would be held at Boston, May 22, 23 and 24. The dates were officially set by George Healey, president of the organization.

Leonard to Defend Title.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Benny Leonard, world's lightweight boxing champion, will defend his title at Michigan City, Ind., July 4, Billy Gibson, his manager, announced last night. His opponent will either be Johnny Dundee, Charley White or Rocky Kansas. Gibson declared that he had signed articles for such a bout with Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter.

Infected Leg Will Prevent This Cardinal From Playing Tomorrow

JACQUES FOURNIER.

It is considered unlikely that Fournier will be able to get into action during the Pittsburg series, owing to the fact that it was necessary to lance his leg yesterday. Infection, following an injury suffered in sliding to base in a practice game, caused Fournier's lay-off.

Rifle Matches Postponed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Cable advices have been received by the National Rifle Association of America that the international matches, which were to have been held in Milan, Italy, June 9 to 21, have been postponed until Sept. 12 to 20. As a consequence the competitive tryouts, through which the personnel of the United States team was to have been chosen, have been postponed from early May to Aug. 9 to 12, inclusive. The tryouts will be held at the Marine Corps rifle range, Quantico, Va.

Jim Corbett to Referee.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—James J. Corbett, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, is to referee the 150-mile Golden Gate motor derby next Sunday, on the Greater San Francisco Speedway at San Carlos near here. Tommy Milton, national automobile race king, is expected to enter the race Sunday despite his recent disqualification.

Deadlock's Derby Tryouts Win Him Many Followers

R. H. Shannon's Candidate Is Not Much on Looks, but Has a Wonderful Stride.

ROCKMINSTER BACK AGAIN

Montfort Jones' Derby Representative Seems to Have Recovered From Bruised Heel.

By C. S. Reinhart,
Kentucky Racing Authority for the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 11.—There was little activity among the Kentucky Derby candidates yesterday at the two local race tracks. Deadlock, Robert H. Shannon's son of Sir Wilfred, galloped a half mile in :55, and Chatterton, the property of F. J. Kelley, went three-eighths of a mile in :38 2-5. Neither was "turned loose" and their work was in the way of a "prep" for a long route within the next day or so.

Deadlock, while not a handsome thoroughbred, by any means, has a wonderful stride and can cover a lot of ground. He is taking to his work in great style, and if he carries on in his training he may prove a hard horse to beat on Derby day. While Deadlock is a 30 to 1 chance in the future books, this does not necessarily mean that he is not given a chance for the rich prize. He has a big following in this section and a lot of money will be right down on his beezer the day he faces the barrier in the $50,000 turf classic. Deadlock is considered one of the "real dark horses."

Rockminster O K Again.

The most pleasing feature of yesterday's training at either local track was the reappearance of Rockminster, which was out of commission for several days due to a bruised heel. The Montfort Jones colt is galloping soundly again and does not show the slightest trace of his injury. Trainer Kay Spence is confident that it will not bother him in the future and he soon will be sending him along in his regular workouts.

The Friar Rock colt missed a couple of trials, but the Derby is so far away that this will not affect him to any extent.

Violinist to Start in East.

Violinist, Bud Fisher's good son of Dick Finnell, which has been working so impressively of late, will be shipped East today for an engagement or two before running of the Kentucky Derby. This colt looks better and better every day and he is sure to give a good account of himself in the big event. Fisher has a lot of confidence in the son of Dick Fennell and he has wagered heavily in the winter books on his chances.

Pelicans After Heving.

New Orleans is making strong bids for John Heving, sturdy recruit catcher, who trained with the Browns this spring. The Pelicans need a backstop badly and if Heving is willing to go South, he probably will be sent there on option.

Indians' Pennant Hopes Rest On Comeback of Two Pitchers

Team Appears a Strong Pennant Contender if Bagby and Mails Return to the Form They Displayed in 1920—Team to Consist Entirely of Veteran Players.

No. 9—CLEVELAND AMERICANS.
By Herman Wecke.

Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians, will open the 1922 campaign with another pennant contender. However, to remain in the race throughout the year, two of the veteran pitchers of the club will have to do a "comeback." The two hurlers in question are Jim Bagby and Walter Mails.

The Indians will be an all-veteran club this season. Several changes have been made, but no youngster has a chance to displace a regular, at lease at the start.

A most important change is the placing of Stuffy McInnis, former Athletic and Red Sox star, at first base. McInnis will fit nicely into the Indians' infield. He's a good ball-player. However, to obtain him, Speaker had to give up some real hitting strength in Elmer Smith, slugging outfielder, and George Burns and Joe Harris. Whether McInnis' addition will offset the loss of this trio is a question.

But the pitching staff seems to be the important department as far as the Indians are concerned. Stanley Coveleskie, the spitballer, will again be the ace of the staff. Then Speaker also has Allan Sothoron, former Brownie, who hurled sensationally for the Indians, after falling down with the Browns and Red Sox.

Mails' Failure Costly.

Bagby and Mails, though, MUST come through. Bagby had a poor season last year, after winning 31 games in 1920, when the Cleveland club won the championship. Mails also slipped badly a year ago, after his sensational pitching at the tag end of 1920, when he was brought in from the Pacific Coast League.

The other veterans of Speaker's twirling staff are Guy Morton, George Uhle and Dave Keefe, a former Athletic right-hander. Odenwald, Pott, Guess, Lindsey and Barton have shown best among the rookies.

The catching will, without a doubt, be taken care of by veterans, with Steve O'Neill doing the heavy work. O'Neill will be unable to open the campaign because of an injury to his hand. Leslie Nunamaker and Shinault are the other receivers. Eddie Sewell probably will be sent home for more seasoning.

Four veterans will man the infield. They are McInnis at first; Wambsganss, second; Sewell, short, and Gardner third. Speaker has some mighty good reserve material in Guisto, Hammond and Stephenson. This trio will likely be carried all year.

In the outfield, Speaker will again have his changeable aggregation, although Smith is gone. Jamieson and Evans will alternate in left; Speaker himself will be in center and Wood and Graney will do the work in right. McNulty, former Ohio State star, who has made a good showing, may be carried. It all depends on how many pitchers Speaker will retain.

If Speaker's pitching holds out, the Indians will be in there fighting from start to finish.

The 1922 Indians

Pitchers: Coveleskie, Bagby, Uhle, Sothoron, Mails, Morton, Odenwald, Pott, Guess, Lindsey, Barton, Harwood, Bissonette, Henderson, Middleton, Edmeson, Harwood, Tubbs, Keidel and Keefe.

Catchers: O'Neill, Nunamaker, Shinault and L. Sewell.

Infielders: McInnis, Guisto, Wambsganss, J. Sewell, Gardner, Stephenson, Hammond, Tunn, Sorrells and Benedict.

Outfielders: Speaker, Jamieson, Evans, Wood, Graney, McNulty and Jeanes.

Anson Undergoes Operation.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 10.—Adrian C. Anson, who earned the title of "Pop" during his years of pilot of the Chicago National League baseball club, was resting well at a hospital today following a hurried operation Saturday. The veteran sportsman will be 70 years old on April 17. He was stricken while on the street Saturday and was rushed to a hospital. Physicians say his condition is not serious.

Roller Races Tonight.

Thirty-five of the world's fastest roller skaters will compete for the two-mile championship, which will be started at the Palladium rink tonight and finish with the final next Monday. Two or three heats and a final will probably be held each night.

Dempsey Departs For Foreign Tour; No Bout in Sight

Even Match With Wills for Labor Day Appears to Have Fallen Through.

By Bert Igoe,
The Post-Dispatch's Eastern Boxing Authority.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Jack Dempsey faces the toughest opponent of his career today. The world's heavyweight champion is going to sail into Kid Atlantic. The kid will probably have Jack wobbly early in the encounter.

Dempsey sailed on the Aquitania today for Europe. With Dempsey goes his manager, Jack Kearns, Benjamin, the California lightweight, and Teddy Hayes, the camp trainer.

As added starter, so far as ship gym helpers are concerned, was Walter Kinsella, holder of the American professional squash tennis title. Kinsella is sailing to meet George Covey, the English champion. They will face each other at the Mayfield Club, London, on May 26 for the world's professional title and two-thirds of a $50,000 purse. Kinsella once defeated Covey, as did Jay Gould, holder of the world's court tennis title. Both professionals have expressed a desire to meet Gould for the open title.

Trip May Last Three Months.

Dempsey left the U. S. fancy free, so far as fistic engagements are concerned. He has not signed to meet any European boxer, not even Wills, the American negro champion, as has been rumored. His fighting future, so far as the Old World is concerned, depends on just how anxious the lads across the pond are to meet him. Jack will mix pleasure with business just the same. There will be sparring, so the toffs will at least get a peek. Unless Tex Rickard stirs up something snappy on this side, the Dempsey party will remain abroad three months.

$50,000 CHAMPIONSHIP RACE AROUSES LITTLE INTEREST IN EAST

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, April 11.—The new $50,000 championship cup race for 3-year-olds, which will be offered by the Kentucky Jockey Club at Latonia in June, is not meeting with marked approval in official racing circles here.

In speaking of the new race yesterday, August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club, said:

"It is to be deplored that the various racing associations in the East, Maryland and Kentucky, do not cooperate for the best interests of the turf in giving an intelligent sequence of stakes, both as regards to distance and values.

"Time is not given owners and trainers to fit their horses properly. The long journeys and unsatisfactory transportation facilities must be taken into consideration also.

"This proposed race is not a stake with a history. It is only a big purse, and if given at all, the autumn after the 3-year-olds have fulfilled regular engagements is the date for it. It would then have a real and true meaning."

It is felt hereabouts that the championship cup, coming so soon after the Belmont stakes, would conflict seriously with the Brooklyn Handicap, drawing many good 3-year-olds from that event, and also with the Dwyer, the richest fixture for 3-year-olds at the Aqueduct meeting.

19-Year-Old Swimmer Out to Lower All Aquatic Records

Chicago Youth Has Already Shattered Seven, Defeating the Former World's Champion, Norman Ross, in One Event—Plans Trip to Honolulu to Meet Stars of That Country.

By John E. Wray.

Not since C. M. Daniels, early in the present century, startled the world by excelling aquatic marks in rapid succession has so brilliant a natatorial success been achieved as that of John Weismuller, the 19-year-old Chicago youth, who Saturday night added new luster to his crown by winning the 220-yard dash in world's record time, defeating a fine field in the national championship event at Detroit. His time was 2m. 17 2-5s.

Many aquatic stars have arisen since Daniels' day, but none has been a consistent winner at all distances, such as Weismuller promises to be. In fact, William Bachrach, the Illinois Athletic Club coach who picked up Weismuller as an unknown off Fullerton Beach, Chicago, declares that his protege will be sent after every swimming record, including the mile and perhaps distances over that. Weismuller now holds seven records, although it is only a few months since the Illinois club teacher unleashed him to astonish the world.

When Weismuller was "discovered" he was barely 18 years of age. He was a star on the beaches. He had naturally good form and required only polishing to perfect him in every feature except the breast stroke, at which he seems unable to achieve success. Norman Ross, his teammate, declares Weismuller's feet are so large that he tangles them up when attempting the breast-stroke style!

Practices Three Hours Daily.

Bachrach found Weismuller a willing pupil. He practiced daily, often for as much as three consecutive hours. His association on the same team with the former champion, Norman Ross, was important to him and probably hastened his appearance on the scene as a world's champion.

From the day of his first competitive appearance he has shocked the aquatic world regularly and there seems no reason to doubt the perfervid praise of his coach.

Weissmuller is a long, skinny youth of German extraction, with enormous "pedals," that may or may not help his speed-producing power. He is a tremendous feeder, it is said, and this may build up his endurance by the time he attains his maturity.

JOHN WEISMULLER.

Weissmuller will be tested in the greatest of all swimming "schools," that of Hawaii, which brought out the man who for several years dominated the strictly sprint distance swim—Duke Kahanamoku. Hawaiian waters fairly teem with great swimmers, and if Weissmuller can establish records against such competition he will undoubtedly go on to the achievement of his announced purpose—the smashing of all swimming records within the limit of his endurance.

WESTERN A. A. U. TO RAISE FUNDS TO SEND BOXING CHAMPIONS EAST

At a meeting of officials of the Western Division A. A. U. held last night it was decided to raise funds by popular subscription to send winners in the recent boxing tournament to the national title meet in Boston. About $350 was raised at the recent tourney and $1100 is needed to send the five winners, who have expressed a desire to compete, East.

It also was decided to hold the Western A. A. U. wrestling championships at Maccabee Hall, 911 North Vandeventer avenue, April 26, 27 and 28. Announcement was made that 47 entries had been received to date.

Another meeting will be held tomorrow night when final arrangements for sending the boxers East will be made. The men are scheduled to depart Friday. The national tourney is scheduled for April 17 and 18.

GLEASON WILL SEND FABER AGAINST BROWNS

CHICAGO, April 11.—The Chicago Americans rounded out their spring training activities today with a brief workout at their South Side park. Manager Gleason, full of hope as the result of his team's even break with the champion New York Giants in an exhibition series, planned to send Urban Faber to the mound tomorrow with the expectation of starting the season with a victory over the St. Louis Browns.

The White Sox manager is also expected to give consideration to the case of Dick Kerr, holdout pitcher, who is badly needed for the twirling staff.

The Chicago National Leaguers, rained out yesterday at Indianapolis, will engage the American Association team there today, weather permitting. From Indianapolis the team will move on to Cincinnati to open the season with the Reds.

TELLE NAMED PRESIDENT OF O'FALLON NET CLUB

The O'Fallon Park Tennis Club held its annual meeting in the Divoll Branch Library last night and elected officers for the ensuing year. Membership in the club is open to all tennis players using the courts in O'Fallon Park. A new constitution and by-laws were adopted at last night's meeting.

Officers elected were: Martin Telle, president; Miss Letitia Brosnon, vice president; Walter Straubinger, secretary; Roland Carstens, treasurer; Harry Lindeman, sergeant-at-arms, and Joe Hibschman, team captain. Telle and Straubinger were re-elected to office. The president will appoint the following committees: Membership, Tournament, Publicity and Grievance. Telle was chosen as one delegate to the Municipal Tennis Association and the other will be selected next week. The club plans an active season for its members.

ROCKFORD, Ill., April 11.—Ralph Greenleaf, world's champion pocket billiard player, defeated W. H. Leu, Illinois amateur champion, last night, by a score of 300 to 130.

Pikers Will Open Season With Well Balanced Outfit

Four Pitchers Ready for First Games Against Ames Nine Friday.

The Piker nine has rounded into shape and is ready for the first conference game of the season here Friday against Iowa State College from Ames. The two teams will clash again the following day.

Coach Davis has what promises to be a strong pitching staff in De Bolt, Trautwein, Fries and Scurlock, all men of experience. The team has a first-class defense in both infield and outfield. The batters have done well in practice games.

Shanley, Wyman, Edgars, Fries, Finn and Cristal have been rapping the ball far and wide, and unless the unexpected happens will be able to give the Pikers a strong attack. On the whole, the team is well balanced in every department, has plenty of first-string relief material available and, with the pitchers coming up to par, are entitled to serious consideration as a championship factor.

Advance dope rates the invading Iowans as having a much improved team over that of last year. They are rated as being especially strong with the stick, so Piker followers will be able to get a line on the Red and Green pitching strength from the start.

Meet With Rolla Saturday.

A feature of the Ames-Washington game Saturday will be a dual outdoor track meet with the Rolla School of Mines.

The University of Kansas, last year's Missouri Valley Conference champion, will also open its schedule Friday against Oklahoma University. Kansas owns a team which seems every bit as good as that of 1921. Nine letter men are back on the job, including two varsity pitchers, and Potsy Clark, the Jayhawkers' new coach, has a number of good men who are furnishing the regulars stiff competition.

The Kansas outfit of veterans follows: Capt. Bloomer, 1b; Boyd, 2b; Murphy, ss; Wenzel, 3b; Farrell, lf; Lashley, cf; Custer, rf and p; Frazier, c, and Rody, p. Two new men, Long and Pierce, promise to come through as hurlers, and two others, Staplin and Lonborg, have already earned berths as utility infielders.

The Kansans will start the season with the advantage of having been coached by former Manager Fred Clarke of the Pittsburg Nationals. Clarke, who is a Jayhawker graduate, has been spending the last 10 days at Lawrence.

The Kansas schedule does not provide for a meeting with the Pikers.

Principia Plays Jackson.

The baseball teams of Principia and Jackson Academy will meet in a game this afternoon, weather permitting. This contest was scheduled for last Saturday, but postponed on account of wet grounds. Today's game will be played on the municipal diamond across from Barnes Hospital and will start promptly at 4 o'clock.

Romney Quits Maroons.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 11.—Milton Romney, captain-elect of the 1922 football squad at the University of Chicago, announced last night that he will not return to that institution this fall. Romney was recently ineligible because of the large number of his scholastic credits. He is negotiating for a business proposition in Chicago and has also been in communication with the University of Texas at Austin, where he may go as coach of the backfield of the school eleven. He will complete his college course by correspondence.

Cleveland Plays Yeatman Today

Close Game Is Expected in High School League Baseball Opener.

The delayed inaugural of the Interscholastic Baseball League will be played at the High School Field this afternoon, Jupiter Pluvius assenting, when Yeatman and Cleveland will battle at 4 o'clock. This will be the regular hour for the week-day games this season.

A tight game is expected today, the rivals being rated as possible pennant contenders. The two leading hurlers of last season will do hill duty, Reinhardt for Cleveland and Stremmel for Yeatman. Cleveland, last season's champion, will present a team composed of a veteran battery and the remainder of the nine selected from recruits and second-string material of the 1921 squad. A number of the newcomers have shown well during the preseason workouts.

Yeatman owns the reputed sluggers of the league. Great clouting ability has been evinced in practice games against three independent games. The fielding of the North Enders has the coach guessing, the men playing brilliantly one day and poorly the next.

The Soldan-McKinley game will be played Thursday afternoon at High School Field.

OIL AND COPPER SHARES MOVE UP ON STOCK MARKET

Prices as Whole Irregular Today—Studebaker and Chandler Features of Motor Group—Bonds Active.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Considerable irregularity in price movements marked today's trading in the stock market. Railroad shares were largely neglected and the moderate amount of trading done in these issues was at lower prices. The oil and copper groups which had not so far participated in the upward movement to any great extent moved to higher ground today, with substantial gains scored by Mexican Petroleum and Royal Dutch.

"Trading in the motor issues was overshadowed by the transactions in Studebaker and Chandler, both of which advanced sharply, assisted by covering operations on the part of the short interest which has persisted in these two issues in spite of all discouragements. A number of specialties were bid up to higher prices, but with the exceptions noted above the speculative favorites displayed less buoyancy. Strength and activities distinguished the bond market, as for some time past with much attention still concentrated on the lower-priced issues. Reduction of the rate on call money from 4½ to 4 per cent did not serve to prevent some profit taking in the stocks which have advanced materially during the past 10 days.

Exchange Market Quieter.

"The exchange market today was much quieter and exhibited a natural reaction from the stimulus experienced yesterday with the convening of the economic conference in Genoa. Sterling in the early trading lost a cent from yesterday's closing price, but subsequently moved up ⅛ of a cent to $4.37.

French francs at 9.31 cents and Belgian francs at 8.53 cents were both off two points. Swiss, Dutch, Spanish and Scandinavian exchanges all reacted in similar fashion. German marks, however, held their own at .35⅛ of a cent. The market's most interesting feature was a rise in Czecho-Slovak crowns to 2.04 cents, a gain of 7 points for the day and of some 63 points since the beginning of the year.

"The commodity markets were dull with prices showing a tendency to soften. There was some profit taking by wheat traders after yesterday's rise, but the volume of trading was small. May wheat opened ⅜ of a cent down at $1.33⅜, sold off to $1.31¾ and then rallied to $1.32.

"Cotton moved in an even narrower range and at a closing price of 17.70c the May future showed a loss of 4 points for the day.

Car Loadings Increase.

"A further increase in our loadings is reported for the week ending March 25. This was due in part to the heavier shipments of coal in anticipation of the miner's strike. That of a total gain for the week of 22,666 cars, an increase of 10,996, was due to loadings with merchandise and miscellaneous freight. The gain in cars loaded with commodities other than coal was approximately 62,000 over the same week in 1921. This affords further evidence of the growth in the volume of trade and reflects the recent improvement noted in the country's basic industries.

CURB MARKET IS STRONG AND DEALINGS LARGER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Commission house buying on the Curb Exchange today was still larger than it has been in the past few weeks and profit-taking by professional traders was easily absorbed. The market was strong, and dealings were larger. Motor stocks were stronger, Reo reaching a new high record, while advances of several points were made in Durant, old stock, and Packard. New high records were reached in Postum Cereal and Gillette Safety Razor. Libby, McNeill & Libby was again under pressure. Cities Service old common stock rose to a new high record for the present movement and smaller advances occurred in the preferred stock and the bankers' shares. Mexican Seaboard was one of the strong features, moving up sharply on demand from commission houses. Firmness was shown in Maracaibo, Colombia Petroleum, Creole Syndicate and Mexico Oil. The two Boston & Wyoming stocks duplicated their recent lows.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

NEW YORK, April 11.—Movements on the Stock Exchange today were again nearly all of them upward. But the market had to take intervals of heavy realizing, one soon after the opening and another toward the close. The selling at these times was large enough to cause a good deal of hesitation and at the end of the day there were numerous small losses intermingled with the gains.

• • •

The Bond Market.

Bond trading on the Stock Exchange today continued heavy with many new highs throughout the list. Sterling exchange did not continue its rise, begun yesterday, and British bonds as well as most of the foreign government external loans stood still around their high levels. Czecho-Slovakian exchange was a feature of the Central European exchanges, striking a new top for the year, and this strength in the country's currency was accompanied by firmness in the new Czecho-Slovak 8 per cent external sinking fund bonds. Department of the Seine 7s got to their highest for 1922 and the new Rio de Janeiro 8s, when issued, crossed 104⅛. Liberty bonds were moderately active and firm.

In the railway section Union Pacific 6s, Delaware & Hudson convertible 5s, Chicago & Eastern Illinois general 5s, Missouri Pacific general 4s, Missouri, Kansas & Texas adjustments, the St. Pauls, Erie general 4s, Frisco incomes and prior 4s, New York, Westchester & Boston 4½s, Iowa Central 4s and Seaboard Air Line 6s and adjustment 5s all reached new high prices. Northern Pacific 6s and Big Four 4½s were reactionary. Among the industrials Atlantic Fruit 7s jumped almost 4 points. Goodyear 8s of 1931 advanced over a point to a fresh top, and the New York Edison 6½s also at their best. Consolidated Gas 7s gained about a point. New York City Traction bonds kept steady.

Motor Stocks.

Studebaker was the leader of the market. Pushing through its previous high of 119¾, it quickly shot across 120. Beyond the statement that this move was due to buying operations from the same quarters that have been active in the stock all along, there was nothing fresh to be said. Chandler Motors went along moderately in the wake of Studebaker. Those reported to be in a position to know were still emphasizing the size of the Chandler short interest and were claiming that it was on the increase.

• • •

Financial News.

The important news of the day was an advance of a cent a gallon in gasoline prices announced by the Standard Oil Co. of New York.

It remains to be seen whether the advance in gasoline price in the New York district is the forerunner of a general raising of oil prices or whether it is only a local adjustment. But following last week's similar increase by Standard Oil of Indiana, it fitted in with predictions which have been made for several weeks, that the seasonal increase in the demand for gasoline will soon wear down reserve supplies sufficiently to bring about a higher price level. The oil stocks were quick to respond to the news, the buying converging more particularly upon Mexican Petroleum, California Petroleum and Pacific Oil, but taking in also in one degree or another the other members of the oil group.

For the other feature of the day—the strength in motor and motor accessory shares—there was no fresh trade news to afford an explanation. Whether or not speculative Wall street is overdoing matters in this quarter of the market is open to question. But at the moment the speculation in such stocks as Studebaker, Chandler and Stromberg has not yet encountered any formidable resistance.

The Martin-Parry Corporation today declared the regular quarterly 50-cent dividend, payable June 1 to stock of record May 15.

March sales of the United Cigar Stores totaled $6,013,384 as against $6,496,686 in March, 1921, and $6,075,258 in 1920, it was said today.

The United States Steel Corporation denied late yesterday the report circulated that the Donora plant of the American Steel and Wire Co. had shut down owing to the coal miners' strike.

Railroad's Report for Last Year Shows $3,567,695 of This Went to Preferred Stockholders.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co., in its annual report for the year ending Dec. 31, 1921, made public today, showed a balance of income available for dividends of $5,780,258.22, of which $3,567,695 was applied to the payment of full dividends on the preferred stock.

COTTON FUTURES FAIL TO HOLD OPENING ADVANCE

NEW YORK, April 11.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 4 to 14 points on relatively firm Liverpool, reports of continued strength in the market and less favorable crop than expected. Wall street, Liverpool and New Orleans were credited with buying, houses and South were moderate sellers; prospects for clearing weather in the South led to light liquidation shortly after the call. After selling at 17.79c, May eased off to 17.72c and October sold back from 17.29c to 17.21c, or off to about last night's closing. Private cables attributed the decline of Liverpool to spinners calling and said there was a fair spot demand while there was only a moderate business in Manchester.

Reports that private returns from domestic mill consumption of 524,000 bales for March against 473,000 in February and 438,000 in March of last year, bullish comment, but failed to demand of consequence. The figures combined with favorable Manchester advices indicating a good demand for cloths from India served to check selling, however, and the late forenoon was quiet and steady with 2 or 3 points of yesterday's closing.

Trading remained very quiet during the middle of the afternoon, with July selling around 17.31c and October 17.21c, or within a point of last night's closing quotations.

Cotton futures closed steady: May, 17.72c; July, 17.31c; October, 17.16c; December, 17.17c; January, 17.06c.

Cotton—Spot quiet; middling, 17.95c.

Liverpool Cotton Steady.

Liverpool, April 11.—Cotton spot moderate business; prices steady; good middling, 10.70d; fully middling, 10.46d; middling, 10.31d; low middling, 9.61d; good ordinary, 8.76d; ordinary, 8.26d; sales, 10,000 bales, including 7100 American. Receipts, 25,000 bales, including 12,000 American. Futures closed steady: April, 10.10d; May, 10.06d; July, 10.06d; Oct., 9.95d; Jan., ....; March, 9.81d.

St. Louis Spot Cotton.

Spot cotton was strong in St. Louis today. Quotations: Good ordinary, 13c; low middling, 15c; middling, 17c; good middling, 18c; middling fair, 19c.

NARROW MARKET ON WHEAT ON CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 11.—It was a narrow market in wheat. Prices dipped early on selling, inspired by the break in cables, and on the supposed weakened technical condition of the market. There was enough commission-house buying of May at $1.31¾ and resting orders to take the slack out of the market, and later cause a rally when shorts tried to cover. A report gathered by a crop expert for Kansas mills estimated the crop of that State based on present conditions at 120,000,000 bushels. Sales of 500,000 bushels of wheat were made to go into store.

Corn trade was light. There was buying on the setbacks based on the late weakness. Locals sold early but recovered later. The undertone was rather stubborn. Cash demand was light and shipping sales small. Cash corn at Liverpool advanced 1d, while futures were ¼d lower. Export demand for corn was light.

The continued delay in seeding of oats because of wet weather is causing apprehension, and the market for oats is reflecting this feeling. There was less pressure to sell. Shipping demand was slow.

Provisions were easy as the result of hog selling by smaller packers.

A report that Minneapolis was offering hard winter wheat to Chicago caused a break in wheat. The market closed ⅜c to 1⅜c lower, May, $1.31⅞ to $1.32; July, $1.20 to $1.20¼; Sept., $1.14⅞ to $1.15.

Corn closed ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower, May, 59⅝c to 59⅞c; July, 63⅛c to 63¼c; Sept., 65⅝c to 65¾c.

Oats were unchanged to ⅛c lower; May, 37⅝c; July, 40⅛c; Sept., 42⅛c.

Pork closed unchanged; lard, 10c to 12c lower; ribs, unchanged to 5c lower.

INCREASED CATTLE RECEIPTS LOWER PRICE OF OFFERINGS

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., April 11.—Today's estimated receipts: Cattle and calves, 3500; hogs, 12,000; sheep, 1500; horses and mules, 250.

CATTLE—Increased receipts today had a bearish influence on the market and prices reflected a lower trend, many sales of beef steers and butcher stock showing a decline of 15c to 25c. Quality, though not mostly plain, was slightly improved over Monday. The top for steers up to the present writing was $8.15 per cwt. Numerous lots of yearlings sold around $8.

Quotations: Beef steers, high $8.90, $5.50, bulk $7 to $7.75; butcher yearlings, high $8.90, low $5.50, bulk $7.25 to $7.75; butcher cows, bulk, $4.25 to $5.75; canners and cutter cows, range $2.50 to $3.75; bulls, bulk, $4.25 to $5; bologna bulls, bulk $4 to $4.50; stocker and feeder steers, bulk $5 to $6.90.

HOGS—Hog market strengthened slightly after a 10c to 15c lower start and the late market was but 5c to 10c lower. Part of the hogs sold in a narrow spread of $10.75@10.80, with a light sprinkling of hogs at $10.85 on the late market. The strong weight or heavy hogs arrived, hogs weighing 240 to 250 pounds sold at $10.75. Pig market was practically demoralized. Orders were lacking and the few that sold showed 25c to 50c lower. Quotations: 120 to 150 pound pigs, $9.50@10.25; 90 to 110 pounds, $8.25@9; and light kinds, $7@8.25. Rough hogs were slow, sows going mostly at $9 and stags $8.50@9.50.

SHEEP—Sheep and lamb market was active and strong on a light Tuesday run. The offering was estimated at only 500 head and consisted principally of clipped lambs, mutton sheep and a few good native yearlings. The latter sold to a city butcher at $22. Clipped lambs sold at $12.50 to $14; medium wool lambs from $13.50 to $16; fat sheep from $8@9.50.

HORSES AND MULES—Influenced by comparatively light receipts, the horse market showed a strong, active trend during the two days this week. Approximately 1500 cleared at auction Monday. Selling was best good in the better grades of mules, but plainer kinds were somewhat slow.

Metals at St. Louis.

Meeting Severe Tests of Service

THE dominating idea which has sustained those guiding the activities of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is expressed in a series of products which have met successfully the severe test of sustained service.

The Directors of this Company, realizing that petroleum products are essential to the welfare of the community, are striving constantly to achieve an ideal of practical perfection in every product manufactured and sold by this Company.

The result is, that wherever strains are severest, wherever the need is most intense, there will be found products, devised by the experts of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), to meet the conditions and relieve the situation.

As an example of a product, which bears up under rather spectacular service tests, take Fortnite Long Time Burner Oil for railway signal lamps. Every traveler on a railroad realizes the vital importance of dependable signals. This dependability rests to a large degree upon the quality of oil used in the lamps. It has been found that wherever conditions are particularly severe Fortnite Long Time Burner Oil has delivered highly satisfactory service.

The same ideal of perfection applies to every one of the long list of petroleum products manufactured by this Company, whether the demand for them be large or small. Each of these products has a record of reliability. Each is made to meet the highest standard of quality and this quality is maintained.

This ideal of service to meet severe tests is one basis upon which to estimate the value to the community of the service rendered by this Company.

'Girls Can't Buck the Game' at Pace Set by the Boys, Says Modern Girl Author

Dorothy Speare, Who Wrote "Dancers in the Dark," Blames Prohibition for Evils Found in Social Life Today, but Wouldn't Have Our Young People Any Different—Why "Petting Parties" Exist—Glad Chaperons Are Going.

By MARGUERITE MOERS MARSHALL.

SUPPOSE we reverse the usual question and ask—

What does the GIRL of today think of the BOY of today?

We find the girl's own answer in an extraordinarily frank and entertaining novel just published—Dorothy Speare's "Dancers in the Dark." It may be described colloquially as the sort of story that tells Scott Fitzgerald and the other young men who write about "the modern girl" just where they get off. It's a tale of three girls and about three times that number of young men—or "cake-eating parlor pythons," as one of the characters describes them, in Flapperanto.

The author, Miss Speare, is only about 23 years old, and was graduated from Smith College in 1919. When I found her at the Smith College Club, 233 East Seventeenth street, I thought she looked much more like the belle of the "Prom" than the author of a novel of the younger generation and a concert singer on the eve of her professional debut. She is an amazingly pretty young person, with a complexion of carnations and cream, a curl of dark, waving, bobbed hair falling over her white forehead, a dazzling smile and a slim young figure, smartly attired, when I saw it, in a low-necked, extremely short afternoon frock.

"The most interesting thing in your book," I told Miss Speare, "is not your picture of the modern girl, but your snapshot of the modern young man. Everybody has taken a fling at the girls, but you have shown that the boys are rather more open to criticism and that they make the rules of the social game."

The young novelist's blue eyes sparkled and she sat up straighter in the armchair beside the sunniest window of the Smith College Club reception room.

"That's exactly why I wrote the book!" she cried: "I wanted to show that the girl of today simply cannot buck the game. She is the sort of girl she is because she's what the boy of today wants. The supply always answers to the demand.

"However far the modern girl goes in irresponsibility, frivolity and freedom, the boy goes several steps further. When he is in college, at any rate, his ideal of conduct, his notion of the gentlemanly thing, is to carry his liquor like a gentleman, to play a good game of golf, to know how to spend money—and not to know anything else.

"He wants a good time. He doesn't want anything else. Of course the college boy has always been like that, but it shows more today because he has so much more money to have his good time with. If the old-fashioned girl existed he wouldn't look at her. He wants to be amused. If a girl can amuse him, he sticks around. If not, he drifts on to the next one. If she tries to talk seriously on any subject he says that her 'line' is 'Noah Webster specials.'"

"I couldn't help noticing the low batting average of the conversation in your 'Dancers in the Dark,'" I told Miss Speare. "To change the figure, your young men and girls, when they were together, seemed to move in an intellectual vacuum. But aside from that, several of your male characters had moments when they verged close on caddishness. Do you consider the modern boy a cad?"

"No," denied the novelist, whose dark head was now resting comfortably—and effectively—against the watermelon silk lining of her cape, thrown over the back of the chair.

"But," she added, suddenly straightening up again and speaking with some vehemence, "anything may happen when the boy of today gets drunk. The girl of today may expect anything from him when that happens. I think prohibition the most terrible, the most awful thing, in its effect on boys of this generation—and on some girls as well. There is a perfect saturnalia. I have been to 'proms' before prohibition, and since, and I can tell the dreadful difference in conditions from my own observation. Prohibiting alcohol has made it the fashion. As a college boy said to me the other day: 'You simply can't refuse a drink nowadays—it isn't done.' It seems to me that the harm prohibition has accomplished among those who can afford to drink is so great that it completely outweighs what little good may have come to the group who can't get alcohol any longer.

"A Princeton boy said to me: 'The modern girl has a genuine case against the modern young man. He drinks so much that he is ruining his health, often permanently, and thus is making himself unfit to marry.'

"And the cigarette craze among the men is the worst thing," added Miss Speare. "People talk about how dreadful it is for girls to smoke. Yet no girl has anything like the passion for cigarettes which you find in practically every boy. I can hardly think of one who hasn't a yellow finger and whose nerves do not trouble him when he hasn't a cigarette between his lips. It began during the war, of course, when they smoked so many overseas and in the camps."

"How about the petting parties?" I asked. "Is the modern boy or the modern girl responsible for them?"

"Everybody," remarked Miss Speare, judicially, but with a twinkle in her blue eyes, "will always find out whether a girl pets or whether she doesn't pet. This is an age of investigation, and the scientific curiosity of the young man must be satisfied—that is, he must find out whether he can kiss her.

"But I should look with suspicion," added this pretty young person, with a shrug, "on the girl who complains that unless she pets she can't be popular. If petting isn't her line, she must get another line. That's all."

She gave me one of her swift smiles and touched her white throat with the tips of her outspread fingers—a characteristic gesture.

"We're coming out all right," she confided. "There's nothing very much wrong with any of us. We're excitement eaters—we live on it, and can't live without it, and scatter it around us. But I wouldn't have the clinging vine days back. I wouldn't make friends with 'old-fashioned' boys and girls if I could. Hate the attitude of that type of boy to women—just worshiping them, not telling them anything, not trying to understand them. I think the modern comradeship between boys and girls is a splendid thing. I'm glad we're doing away with chaperons because we get to know each other so much better—and we ought to know each other before we marry.

Miss Speare stopped to laugh softly to herself. "After my book had been accepted," she chuckled, "one of the officers of the publishing company read it and asked me to come on from Boston, where I was then living, to talk it over. When I saw him, he said, almost irritably, 'Your girls all marry the right men in the end—they bat around through the whole book, and still they get the right men. I don't like it.'"

"And I told him," Miss Speare recalled, with another giggle, 'That is exactly what men have been doing for centuries—batting around, and then marrying the right girl! My girls haven't gone nearly so far as most men go.'

"That's because," the modern girl's girl expositor ended, wisely, "we're just the same girls at heart. It's foolish for the men to blame us for tempting them. They get the sort of girl they want— we can't beat the game. But I'm not worried about the future of either of us—girl or man."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

Two Views.

THE office boy says: "Gee, the boss has got a cinch, I'll say; but he's so surly, grim and cross I'd like to run away. He could be playing golf [illegible] he could be at Palm Beach and feed [illegible] and hot air to some good-looking peach. He's got a million bones or two, and if I had his rocks, I'd see the whole world series through and rent the center box!" The boss looks on the office boy and thinks: "What halcyon days! What hours of bright, unshadowed joy; what simple wants, so swiftly met; what dreams unvexed by fear. Alack, alas, how I regret those bygone times, so dear! If I could be an office boy, how happily I'd quit my race for fortune, cold and coy, and never grieve a bit." Are you the boss or office boy? Which joy looks best to you? So many fellows can't enjoy the work that's theirs to do. The sort of task that makes a hit is something far away; they've no desire to do their bit that's close at hand today. The boss would be the office boy, the office boy be boss; and they would both cavort with joy to put the change across. But likely neither of the two would be content for long, and soon they'd make the air look blue with quite another song. Of course, it may be commonplace to say you're satisfied; but try to wear upon your face a grin that's bright and wide. Just try to see how it will fare to boost your own career and envy not the millionaire or joys of yesteryear!

CHECKING UP.

By JOHN BLAKE.

THE man who knows what he has accomplished, and what he meant to accomplish, can formulate an intelligent plan for the future.

It is easy to think we have done far more than we really have.

It is easy to think that we are about where we belong in the procession, allowing for hard luck and what the navigators call "slip."

But when we check up with other people in the same business we often find we are mistaken.

It is a good plan, now and then, to look up the men who started when we did, and find out what they have been doing.

This is of especial value, because we know these men—we can estimate their ability, and allow for their shortcomings.

Such checking up almost always results in an unpleasant surprise.

Many men we little suspected of passing us are far ahead. Others, who we thought were about our equals, have fallen back in the line.

Almost always our own place will be considerably behind the position we should have attained.

Had we checked up as we went along things would have been different. We would have detected the "slip" and made up for it.

However, it is too late to worry about that now.

Look over the whole line of your acquaintances and, by comparison, you can find out how far behind you are.

Then you can begin slowly and systematically to catch up.

It will be hard work at first. But hard work never hurt anybody. In fact, the mental exercise involved in overcoming a handicap is one of the most salutary things in life.

Check up by comparing yourself unmercifully with every man whom you know had an equal start with you.

Then keep on checking up—every year, every month, if need be.

Gradually you will find you are overtaking those just ahead of you. By and by, if you put in hard licks enough, you will be surpassing them.

After that the checking up process will be a pleasure instead of a humiliation.

There is nothing so satisfactory as noting progress when we are making it ourselves. It is just as impossible to go any place worth going in life without exactly knowing our position as it is for a ship to make the port she sets out for without a constant knowledge, on the part of the captain as to how he is headed, and how many knots he has logged off on his course.

After-Dinner Tricks

No. 92—Automatic Knot.

TO take the corners of a handkerchief, one in each hand, and tie a knot without dropping either corner sounds impossible, but it is really quite easy.

The handkerchief is laid on the table, and the arms are folded. By leaning over, the fingers are enabled to pick up opposite corners of the handkerchief. Then, if the arms are merely unfolded, the handkerchief will be automatically tied into a knot.

A Loveless Marriage

The Absorbing Story of a Woman's Heart

By Ruby M. Ayres.

TWENTY-THIRD INSTALLMENT.

I MADE my way back to the marquee, and laughed and chatted and smiled, and did my best to be bright and amusing.

More than once I found Francis looking at me with a sort of wonderment in his eyes.

"What's happened to you?" he asked once when we were alone. I've never known you to make yourself so entertaining."

I answered that it was not often I had the chance to enjoy myself.

Enjoy myself, when I was dancing on my own broken heart!

"By the way," Francis said, as I turned to leave him, "what do you think that fellow Tempest had the cheek to tell me this evening? Why, that he had no intentions towards Elsa—that he was years too old for her, and a lot of rot of that kind. I let him see what I thought of him, getting the child talked about, and making her think he cared. I told him she'd have a nice little fortune some day, but"——

"Money would carry no weight with him," I said.

My husband laughed.

"That's what you think; but I'm open to bet it does. I told him he could think it over; but I don't mean him to back out. If the girl wants him she shall have him."

I shuddered at his coarseness; he cared nothing whether it would mean happiness for her or not; it had always been the same; everything Elsa wanted he managed to get for her; it was of no consequence that she tired of everything before they had been hers for long.

"Tempest is an old flame of yours," my husband went on, "Why don't you speak to him? Surely you want your own child to be happy?"

I thought of those two down in the shadowy garden.

"Perhaps there won't be any need for me to speak to him," I forced myself to say. "I left them down in the garden just now together."

Francis laughed.

"I thought he'd change his mind when he heard she'd got a bit of money," he said, complacently.

I LEFT him standing there still laughing softly to himself.

For hours and hours the dancing and laughter and merriment went on; it was getting daylight when the last car and carriage rolled away down the drive.

The big marquee looked huge and deserted; trampled flowers lay here and there; a fan, a forgotten glove, one or two programs.

I stood at the doorway, and looked at it all with dazed eyes.

My body felt as if it must drop with fatigue, and yet I had never been so wide awake.

Two or three men who were staying with us for the night were talking and laughing loudly outside with Francis.

I had not seen Elsa since that moment I put her hand in Richard's.

Someone came across the parquet flooring and stood beside me; I knew who it was, though I did not look round; then he spoke.

"I have done as you wished. God help us both!"

He went away without waiting for me to answer; perhaps he knew that I could not have spoken to have saved my life.

I stood where he left me for what seemed an endless moment; then I turned stiffly, as if my limbs were working after long disuse, and went back to the house.

I went to my room, but I did not lock the door; I knew how useless it would be.

I knew Elsa would come before she went to bed that night. I sat and listened for her steps.

Presently I heard them; they came flying lightly along the landing, and the door of my room burst open.

She wore a pink silk dressing gown; her golden hair streamed over it like sunshine. She rushed across the room and flung herself down on her knees, hiding her face in my lap.

"I'm the happiest girl in the world," she whispered. "Richard says he loves me—and we're engaged."

I raised her in my arms and held her to my breast.

"I'm so glad, darling, so glad," I said.

I WAS glad—for her happiness. I tried not to remember that the man she loved was my Richard.

"I told him how afraid I had been that he did not really care," she went on in a muffled voice. "And he was so kind. Oh, I am so happy—so happy!"

I broke down then; I cried, and begged her to love me a little too.

"I haven't anyone in the world but you," I said. "Love me a little, Elsa—spare me a little in your great happiness."

She drew away from my arms and looked at me with a frown.

"Of course I love you," she said with a tinge of impatience. "How funny you are. Other girls' mothers aren't as funny as you."

"It would make so much difference to me if you'd love me a little." I went on wildly. I was starving for a kind word—for the clasp of loving arms.

Elsa seemed to be considering the position for a moment, then she laughed awkwardly.

"I hope you're not going to be like the story-book mother-in-law to Richard," she said. "Of course, he's such a dear that he'd never say anything, but he's the sort of man who wouldn't want you fussing around and coming to stay with us for ages and ages. I don't mean to be unkind, but of course you understand what I mean, don't you?"

I felt as if she had struck me; I know I laughed.

And it was for this that I had given up the man I had loved all my life.

I OFTEN look back over the years of my married life and wonder if I might have made something better of them—if I might have been more patient with Francis, and showed him more affection.

Possibly there are women in the world who could have altered him completely. One so often hears it said: "Oh, he would have been all right, married to a different woman."

But I could never pretend to be other than what I was; I could never show affection which I did not feel, and I am afraid that it was difficult for me to hide an aversion.

I never loved him, and as the years passed I seemed to think less of him than ever.

He knew it, too, and the knowledge made him bitter against me; he never lost an opportunity to sneer at me, and hurt my feelings.

God knows I am not trying to excuse myself; I was as much to blame as he, but now, when it is ended and done with, one naturally feels remorse, and wonders if things could not have been different.

I suppose I am essentially a weak woman; I had a friend once, married to a drunkard, who used to come home and swear and knock her about, and she loved him steadily right through it all. She told me many, many times that nothing he ever did could change her love for him.

I am not like that; perhaps it would have been better for us both if I had been.

The night Richard asked Elsa to be engaged to him I never went to bed.

Francis had a room apart from mine, and I locked my door, and just sat by the window staring out into the night, wondering how I could bear what lay before me.

I was so ashamed of my pain and jealousy; it was bitterly humiliating to think that I—a woman of 40—with a grown-up daughter, should be eating her heart out because that daughter had become engaged to an old love of her mother's.

I wonder if such a thing had ever happened before, and if so, how it ended.

I forced myself to look at it dispassionately. I thought of the wedding at which I must be smiling and cheerful. I tried to picture Richard Tempest at the altar steps with Elsa; I tried to face the good-by that would follow when we sent them away on their honeymoon.

"I CAN'T face it—I can never face it," I told myself with stony despair. Elsa would be so proud and happy—everyone would be congratulating her and me. Richard would be my son-in-law!

It was ludicrous, not to be thought of.

Someone tried the handle of my door; my husband's voice spoke:

"Is there anything the matter, Marjorie?"

"No, nothing. Why do you ask?"

"I thought I heard you laughing," he answered me.

But he went away, and I was left alone again with my thoughts.

It was getting light; I lay down on the bed and watched the gray dawn filtering through the half-drawn blind.

Birds began to twitter; the whole world was waking up. In the fields across the road a cow lowed sleepily.

That dawn was a nightmare to me; all my life I shall remember those long hours, and the solemn striking of the church clock.

Elsa would be married in that church—the church where I was married.

I closed my burning eyes, and tried to picture her in her wedding dress.

I knew she would look as fair as a dream. I told myself that even if Richard did not care for her now he would grow to do so.

I was up and dressed before the servants were about; I slipped the bolts of the side door, and went out into the garden.

It was so beautiful and peaceful; the air so fresh.

I opened the gate and went down the road toward the church.

SOME SUGGESTIONS F[OR] EASTE[R]

NO CHILDREN ARE PERFECT

By William A. McKeever

NINE mothers were at an informal neighborhood meeting, with many children romping about them. A comparison of evidence showed that not one of them had a perfect child, even physically. Weak eyes, weak lungs, weak stomach, or weak something else—these were the various items as to imperfection of the little ones. And yet practically every boy and girl in the group looked fairly strong and well.

Now, if these mothers had given testimony as to the intellects of their children practically the same kind of confession would have resulted—weak perception, weak memory, weak discernment, weak attention, and the like. Also, if they had continued with frank statements as to the moral condition of their adolescents the story would have been weak resistence, weak veracity, weak dependableness, weak honesty, and so on through the catalogue of imperfections.

What we parents need to realize is that child culture is essentially a care-taking of a relatively imperfect young creature—imperfect in health, imperfect in mind, imperfect in morals. Then, we must courageously and confidently bend ourselves to the task of bringing about slow and steady improvement in this threefold nature of our offsprings.

A matter which hurts the cause of child culture not a little is the false assumption of inferiority of blood and breeding so conspicuously flaunted before us by certain classes of parents. Speaking as one who has studied the problems of training from the point of view of all angles and classes, allow me to insist that we are practically all "in the same boat" when it comes to the saving of our offspring.

A superficial view would have adjudged all the children playing about the nine mothers referred to above as being physically sound. But to the discerning judgment they were all unsound. So, with the growing child's intelligence. The fond and undiscerning mother is prone to read too much genius or smartness into the character of her own child and not enough in her neighbor's.

Hence, so often we find the false idea of superiority, and the unwarranted contempt of one class of parents for another. To all these mutually unfriendly groups I offer the one positive admonition:

Get down to basic facts. Study your children intelligently and you will soon come out upon a common platform of direction and management of your young. You of the "superior class" will find your boys and girls marked by the general childhood imperfections common to the great ordinary human family. You of the reputed "inferior class" will find your little ones potentially stored with the qualities which may become a blessing to society.

You so-called "high" and "low" get together where you belong. Cultivate tolerance and mutual good will in the training of your offspring. Team work, sympathy and a common vision are what the country has a right to expect of you if we are to have a better generation to follow the present one.

In this common bond of parental fellowship, attempt to bring up for the society of tomorrow a generation united through common training and practice to act happily together in the taking over of the nation's business. That is your job, as I see it.

MARKS ON FURNITURE

MOISTEN a flannel cloth in olive, linseed, sweet or parafine oil to remove finger marks on furniture. Wipe dry and polish with flannel or a chamois skin wrung out of clear water. For oiled furniture use kerosene.

Apply raw linseed oil by means of a flannel cloth to restore the color and let stand over night. Or, for highly polished surfaces, as rosewood or mahogany, apply a cloth moistened with alcohol. Afterward polish with a soft cloth moistened with turpentine.

Do St. Louis Girls Demand Too Much of Their Escorts?

Letters to Women's Page Editor Discuss Charge That Boys Who Try to Entertain Girls Are Kept Broke.

FINDING RIGHT KIND OF GIRLS.

To the Editor of the Women's Page.

I could not help but smile when I read "Mr. Average Young Man's" letter. I sincerely sympathize with him for not having enough will power to stay away from these expensive, high-flying flappers. I also am a young man of about 23, and happen to be acquainted with quite a few boys, as well as with some of these "St. Louis girls."

I have taken them to dances, theaters and other places of amusement in machines as well as street cars, and not a one has ever suggested a taxi, whenever I found it necessary to use a street car. As far as the price of an evening's amusement is concerned, I believe that if I think enough of the girl to take her out, I should find it my duty to make the evening as pleasant and enjoyable as I possibly can.

And highballs! Who wants to associate with the type of girl that drinks? Though I am not in favor of prohibition, I strongly disapprove of any woman drinking. Any girl who is after the $6 per pint stuff would not appreciate a $3 seat at a theater, anyway.

I do not know about girls outside of St. Louis, but I will say that you cannot compare the girls of St. Louis to those in "Mr. Average Young Man's" home town, as far as the expense of their pleasure is concerned, any more than you can compare the cost of living in a small town to that of a large city.

Of course, there are many girls in St. Louis that I would consider as parasites, but why worry about them when there are plenty of others who would appreciate any nice young man's company in a moderate-priced picture show much more than attending a performance at a high-priced theater with one of these "four-flushers" that expect to receive their money's worth while out with a girl.

By advice to "Mr. Average Young Man" is to forget about the girls who are to be found at public dances most any time the music is playing, for they have been out with so many fellows and have experienced so many varieties of pleasures that they hardly know how to spend a fellow's money any more, and therefore disregard its value. I assure you that you will not need to strain your eyes looking for the other kind of girls, for there are just as many, if not more, of the better and more appreciative kind than those above mentioned.

But, nevertheless, a young man, though inexperienced, who takes out young women who demand lavish expenditures, inasmuch as he had already spent the money, he should take it like a sport and not howl about it, but charge it to experience. M. MAURY H.

DOES NOT WANT 50-50 BASIS.

To an Average Young Girl:

You say your idea of a good time is to read a book together or make fudge. Well listen, dearie, you'd have a far way to go to find the fellow who would be satisfied to sit and read a book or make fudge. They don't do those things these days. Also you say that a girl should be willing to take her friend home with her and cook a chafing-dish supper. If a girl wanted to do that why she might as well give him a bed and tell him to stay for the night or why not start a boarding house? It would be the same.

You say that girls who go out and have expensive good times are considered fast. Listen, sister, you are wrong and I must say you have plenty of nerve (unless you don't know any better.) Men should pay but they don't have to throw money away, and if they do its their own hard luck. I am not one who believes in the 50-50 basis. I think it is foolish as the men have always paid the way—why not let them continue doing so? I am satisfied with things just as they are. Women were made to be loved and men were made to love them. Women were made to have good times and men were made to pay for them.

SOMEONE WHO KNOWS.

SPANISH SAUCE

DICE a slice of lean ham and ½ pound of veal, put the meat into a frying pan and moisten with a cupful of stock, cook until the bottom of the pan is covered with a rich glaze, then add 2 cupfuls of stock, a bay leaf, a minched Spanish onion, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, 6 cloves, a teaspoonful of savory, dried herbs, ¼ bud of garlic, a chopped pepper, a tablespoonful of salt, a saltspoonful of red pepper and a tablespoonful of sugar. Cover and cook gently one hour. Strain, cool, remove the grease, reheat and thicken to the consistency of cold honey with brown roux, which is made of browned flour worked to a smooth, soft paste with unsalted butter.

STUFFED APPLES

SELECT the largest apples you can find. Wash and polish them. Cut off the tops and scoop out the inside. Brush with lemon juice to keep them from turning brown. Chop the apple removed with nuts and raisins and a small amount of celery, mix with your favorite dressing and return to the shells. Serve on individual plates with lettuce or sprigs of celery as a garnish.

The fact that she lives 30 miles from the nearest moving picture theater does not deter Mrs. Nancy K. O'Brien of Osceola, Wis., driving her car that distance in one night just to see a show.

While You Wait for the Doctor

INDIGESTION is caused by overeating quite as frequently as by insufficient or wrong food. A child should never be forced to eat. Children are quite as apt to have no appetite at times as grown-up folks are. We cannot always partake of the same amount of food at each meal, and why should not children be similarly afflicted? They are constituted just as we are and when fatigued or cross cannot eat heartily any more than we can.

To reprimand a child at mealtime and then force him to eat what is served to him is cruelty. If a poor appetite is habitual there is something wrong either with the child or the food. In the first case a physician should be consulted and in the latter the mother should study dietetics for children, then cater to her child's taste and desires as far as a healthful and well-balanced diet will permit. Never employ threats to make the child eat and do not force.

"My little boy lies awake an hour and longer when I put him to bed and all threats and scoldings are of no avail. What can you suggest for this willfulness?" asks a perplexed mother. Inability to sleep is not necessarily willfulness. Your child is merely unable to conquer the restless condition of the nervous system and should be patiently dealt with. Threats and scoldings will only aggravate the difficulty.

It would be better to take him out of bed, give him a warm bath, then gently rub his entire body. Give him a glass of warm milk and before he gets into bed see that his feet are warm.

In extreme cases an icebag at the back of the neck will draw the blood from the brain and induce sleep.

Perhaps you tell your child exciting stories before he retires or Daddy has a rough and tumble frolic with him. Anything of a disturbing nature should be avoided before bedtime. Stories and conversations should be in a pleasant and happy vein. Possibly the diet is too stimulating for the delicate nervous system. Do not give too much meat, substitute fish, milk and cereals. The evening meal should be light for all children under 10 years.

VEAL STEAK PIE

WASH small piece of veal steak. Cut it into squares. Roll in flour and brown in hot buttered skillet. Make gravy over meat and place in casserole.

Use a good biscuit dough. Cut with small round cutter and put around outside edge of casserole. Bake in oven until biscuits are done. This makes a very attractive and delicious dish.

The New Houses Are Inspected

By Thornton W. Burgess

'Tis little things that make for joy
In bird and beast and girl and boy
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

AS soon as Farmer Brown's Boy had left the Old Orchard after putting up new houses to replace the old ones which he had taken away, Winsome and Mrs. Bluebird and Tommy Tit and Mrs. Chickadee began an inspection of all the houses. Inspection, you know, means looking over and into and finding out all that can be found out about a thing by looking at it. There wasn't one of those houses that Tommy Tit and Mrs. Chickadee didn't go inside of. You know, they are very spry. Winsome and Mrs. Bluebird do not move so quickly, and they took their time. They also visited every house, but they didn't get inside of all of them as Tommy Tit and Mrs. Chickadee did. You see, the doorways of some of those houses were not big enough for Winsome and Mrs. Bluebird. All those that had big enough doorways they entered.

"What do you think of these new houses? asked Mrs. Chickadee of Mrs. Bluebird.

Mrs. Bluebird's eyes sparkled. "They are the best houses I've ever seen," she declared. "I thought the old house we used last year was good enough for anybody, but I've found three of these new houses that are better. You know it is hard work to improve on one of Drummer the Woodpecker's old homes in a dead stump or tree. One of those houses never gets too hot in the summer. It is always cool and comfortable even in the hottest weather. But one cannot always find an old home of Drummer's where one wants to live. There hasn't been one here in the Old Orchard for a long time. I have wanted to live in the Old Orchard, and so last year I used one of those houses Farmer Brown's Boy had put up. It did very well, but I must confess there were times when it was terribly hot. I used to have to stick my head out and gasp for breath. I've looked these new houses over very carefully, and do you know I believe they are going to be just as cool and comfortable as the best of Drummer's houses.

"I've already picked out one and I am going to move in at once. There is another thing I like about them. I have examined a lot of houses in my time and most of them never have the perch in the right place. Either the perch is right under the doorway and I scrape myself on it every time I go out, or else it is on the wrong side and I have to turn around in order to enter. That is a nuisance. I always approach from the right. These houses have the perches just to the right of the doorways and there is no bother in entering them."

"I don't need a perch myself," said Mrs. Chickadee, "so those perches don't interest me. Perhaps you noticed that some of those houses haven't any perches."

Mrs. Bluebird nodded. "None of those have a doorway big enough for me, so they haven't interested me," said she.

Mrs. Chickadee chuckled. "I suspect that those houses were put up especially for me," said she. "The doorways are just big enough for me and they are too small for any one any bigger. Inside they are just like all the other houses. I have had the same trouble you have had. In some houses I have lived in they have been so hot that it seems as if I just couldn't stand it. But I know these houses are going to be just right. I've picked out my new home and Tommy Tit and I are going to start in housekeeping right away. If I know anything about it, the Old Orchard is going to be the most popular place anywhere around when the other birds arrive and discover these new houses."

MY FAVORITE STORIES

THE TRUTH FROM THE INSIDE.

THE dining-car waiter was one of those persons who feel a sense of personal proprietorship in the institutions they serve—a type not at all uncommon among members of the colored race in America. His manner, his voice, all about him, subtly conveyed the idea that here was one who took a deep pride in the undertaking of feeding people on a transcontinental train, who realized his own responsibilities, who was determined that no blot ever should besmirch the fair name of the system.

So when the gentleman who was going to California gave a breakfast order of grapefruit, toast, coffee and soft-boiled eggs, he bent over the patron and in confidential tones whispered:

"Boss, I would not keer to reckermend the aigs this mawnin'! Naw, suh, I would suggest you tuck somethin' else on the bill."

"What's the matter with the eggs—aren't they fresh?" asked the customer.

The waiter's voice sank still lower.

"I don't know ef they's fresh or ef they ain't," he said; "but to tell you the truth we ain't got any."

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

MODERN EFFICIENCY.

When Reuben used to come to town
A stranger, suave and bland,
Would sedulously track him down
And grasp him by the hand.

And did old Reuben see the sights
And games that were forbid,
And spend long, entertaining nights
In playing them? He did.

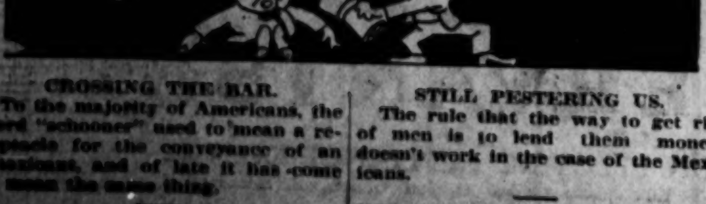

And did he wake some chilly dawn,
In some strange cheerless place
To find his roll of money gone?
That also was the case.

Today, when Reuben comes to town,
Before he's here a day,
Some dog-faced stranger knocks him down
And takes his roll away.

Abrupter than the former style
This modern form of crime,
But it has got it beat a mile
In point of saving time.

Far less of time's remorseless flight
Need Reuben reckon now—
He's on the farm the following night
To polish up the plow.

Which seems to show that even those Whose trade is doing wrong
Are always up upon their toes
And hustling right along!

CROSSING THE BAR.

To the majority of Americans, the word "schooner" used to mean a receptacle for the conveyance of an intoxicant, and of late it has come to mean the same thing.

ALSO SPINELESS.

STILL PESTERING US.

The rule that the way to get rid of men is to lend them money doesn't work in the case of the Mexicans.

NOT ALL BEER AND SKITTLES.

Movie stars are widely envied, but they seem to have their trials every little while.
